AWAY FROM HOME

Tense review and informal language

- 1 CD1 2 Listen and read "Tyler's Tweets."
 Is the style formal or informal?
 Where is Tyler from? What does he find strange in London?

I'm spending a year in London!

TYLER'S TWEETS

Tuesday, September 4, 1:42 p.m.

Still sitting in the airport in NYC. Been waiting three hours but seems like FOREVER!

Tuesday, September 4, 3:20 p.m.

Just boarded the plane for London. Haven't been abroad before except for a week in Mexico last year. I'm going to stay with my buddy Dave for a few days in north London before I meet my host family. Dave lives in a place called "Chalk Farm." I don't get it – a farm in London?

Thursday, September 6, 4:35 p.m.

It's fun here, but kind of weird. Dave doesn't live on a farm. His folks have a large apartment in a big old house. They call it a "flat." I asked for the "bathroom" – they thought I wanted a bath. I'm learning fast.

Friday, September 7, 10:30 a.m.

Dave and I are hanging out together today. We're on a bus! Upstairs! Just drove past Buckingham Palace. But they drive on the WRONG side of the road here. Crazy! Also, people say "cheers" all the time. Isn't that for making toasts? A guy just said it to me because I'd let him pass and go through a door ahead of me.

Saturday, September 8, 7:19 p.m.

First night with my host family, the Wilsons. They seem very nice, but their house is a million-mile walk to the subway! (They call it the "Tube" here!)

Saturday, September 8, 11:10 p.m.

Big day tomorrow. We're visiting Shakespeare's hometown. He wrote plays and stuff hundreds of years ago. He's mega famous.

2 Complete the questions and answers. Then ask and answer them with a partner.

- 1 "Where is Tyler spending the year?"
"In London."
- 2 "Is this his first trip abroad?"
"No, it _____. He _____ abroad once before.
Last year he _____ to Mexico."
- 3 "Where _____ Dave _____?"
"In north London."
- 4 "How long _____ Tyler _____ to stay with Dave?"
"A few days."
- 5 "Why _____ the guy say 'cheers' to Tyler?"
"Because he _____ him pass."
- 6 "_____ he like his host family?"
"Yes, he _____. He _____ they're very nice."
- 7 "What _____ they _____ on Sunday?"
"They _____ Shakespeare's hometown."

From: Teresa Sayers <teri.says@yoohoo.com>
To: "mom n dad" <m.b.sayers@chatchat.net>
Subject: Hotter and hotter in Tanga!

Hi Mom! Hi Dad!

Thanks for your messages – always love news from home. Since I arrived here last September, it's been getting hotter and hotter. Wish we had air conditioning and not just two junky fans. Thank goodness I start work early, 7:00. It's the only cool (no – less hot) time of day in Tanzania. But hey, I have some cool news. I just bought a bike – well not exactly a bike, but a "piki-piki." It's a kind of little motorcycle. Everyone has one. Great for getting around. Don't freak, Mom! I'm really careful, especially on the bumpy road to school.

Last Sunday a group of us (on our piki-pikis of course!) headed up the coast to a really awesome beach, Pangani Beach. Incredible white sand covered with fabulous shells. Did I tell you? Shelling is a really popular pastime here. I've already collected hundreds – some are huge and all shades of pink and orange. I'm going to bring a few home. Anyway, we took a bunch of picnic stuff and barbecued fish and swam until the sun went down. The sunsets here are unbelievable – very quick but spectacular. I'm sending you some photos with this email.

So that's it for now. Missing you tons. Can't wait to see you.

Love, Teri

Vocabulary work

- 4 Find the highlighted words or phrases in the text. Guess the meanings from the context.

Lost & found

Saroo Brierley was only five years old when he got lost. He was working with his older brother as a sweeper on India's trains. Together they traveled hundreds of miles up and down the vast network.

"It was late at night. We got off the train, and I was so tired that I just sat down at the train station, and I ended up falling asleep."

That fateful nap would determine the rest of his life. He thought his brother would come back for him, but when he woke up the brother was nowhere to be seen. There was a train in front of him. Perhaps his brother was on board. He got on it to look for him. However, Saroo did not meet his brother on the train. Instead, he fell asleep again and when he woke up 14 hours later, he had a terrible shock. There were hordes of people pushing, rushing, speaking in an unfamiliar tongue. He had arrived in Calcutta (Kolkata), India's third biggest city and notorious for its slums. He was nearly 1,500 kilometers (930 miles) from his home. Soon he was sleeping in the streets.

"It was a very scary place to be. I don't think any mother or father would like to have their five-year-old wandering around alone in the slums and train stations of Calcutta. I was scared. I didn't know where I was."

The little boy learned to fend for himself. He became a beggar, one of the many children begging on the streets of the city. Once, he was approached by a man who promised him food and shelter. But Saroo had learned to be suspicious of such people and ran away. In the end, he was taken in by an orphanage and put up for adoption. He was adopted by the Brierleys, a couple from Tasmania, Australia.

"I accepted that I was lost and that I couldn't find my way back home, so I thought it was great that I was going to Australia."

Lost Indian boy finds his mother 25 years later!

Saroo settled down well in his new home. But as he got older the desire to find his birth family became increasingly strong. The problem was that as an illiterate five-year-old he had not known the name of his hometown. All he had to go on were his vivid memories. So he began using Google Earth to search for where he might have been born.

It was difficult, but eventually Saroo found an effective strategy.

"I multiplied the time I was on the train, about 14 hours, with the speed of Indian trains and I came up with a rough distance, about 1,200 km."

He drew a circle on a map with its center in Calcutta, with its radius about the distance he thought he had traveled. Incredibly, he soon discovered what he was looking for: the town of Khandwa.

"When I found it, I zoomed down and bang – the waterfall where I used to play."

He journeyed to Khandwa. He found his way around the town with his childhood memories. Eventually he found his home. But it was not what he had hoped for. It looked old and shabby, as if nobody had lived there for a long time. A neighbor said that his family had moved. Then he struck gold. Another neighbor said he knew where his mother lived now. The man guided Saroo to where three women stood waiting. He stared at them blankly. Only the woman in the middle seemed remotely familiar. The man gestured towards her. "This is your mother," he said.

She had been young, in her thirties, the last time he saw her. She looked so much older now. But behind the weathered face, there was something unmistakable, unforgettable, his mother, Fatima.

"The last time I saw her she was 34 years old and a pretty lady. I had forgotten that age would get the better of her. But then I recognized her and I said, "Yes, you are my mother." She grabbed my hand and took me into her house. She couldn't say anything to me. She had a bit of trouble grasping that her son, after 25 years, had returned. She had long feared I was dead."

Fatima had searched the train stations for her missing son, but she had never ventured as far as Calcutta. She couldn't imagine he had gone so far. However, she had never lost hope – a fortune-teller had told her that one day she would see her son again.

And what of the brother with whom Saroo had originally gone traveling? Unfortunately, the news was not good.

"You see, a month after I'd disappeared, my brother was found in two pieces on a railway track. We were extremely close and when I left my mother, I was heartbroken knowing that my older brother had passed away."

His mother had never known whether foul play was involved or whether the boy had simply slipped and fallen under a train.

Saroo Brierley's lifelong wish had been to see his birthmother again. He feels incredibly grateful that this wish was granted. He has kept in touch with his newly found family. And now a Hollywood studio has even made a movie of his amazing story.

SPOKEN ENGLISH Fillers

When we speak (in any language!), we often use fillers to help give us time to decide what to say next. These are words and phrases such as like, you know, I mean, kind of, etc.

Bernie Um ... there was a nervous kind of feeling among us.

Carol I was wearing, like, only a summer dress and sandals.

Look on page 118 and find more examples of fillers.

READING AND SPEAKING

Our plastic planet

1 The article you are going to read talks about “the infinite number of plastic products that fill our lives.”

In groups, make a list of all the plastic products you use in a typical day.

Share your list with the whole class.

2 Here are some more lines from the article. What do you think they are talking about?

I realized the sandy beach was being transformed into a plastic beach.

Twice the size of France, the Garbage Patch is like a plastic soup in the ocean.

They are being gobbled up by small fish, which in turn are eaten by larger fish – which in turn are eaten by us.

We need to spurn and reject the main culprits.

3 Read through the article quickly. Answer the questions.

- 1 Who is Simon Reeve?
- 2 Which products from your list in exercise 1 are mentioned?
- 3 Which of your ideas about the lines in exercise 2 were correct? Which were not?
- 4 Which places in the world are mentioned?
- 5 What are “nurdles”?

4 Read the article again. Are these statements true or false? Correct the false ones.

- 1 Hawaii is protected from trash because of its position in the Pacific Ocean.
- 2 Volunteers clear the nurdles from the beaches.
- 3 The sea makes the nurdles smaller and smaller.
- 4 Six hundred thousand tons of plastic trash is polluting our oceans.
- 5 Factories are reducing the amount of plastics they produce.
- 6 There are three major ways that plastic is ruining our planet.
- 7 Most of the plastic garbage is made up of plastic bags, bottles, and packaging.
- 8 Bangladesh and Modbury have something in common.

A planet

“From Hawaiian beaches to the coast of Britain, we’re paying a lethal price for our throwaway society.”

says TV adventurer
Simon Reeve

Hawaii is generally considered to be the one place in the world where you should be able to guarantee finding paradise. The beautiful tropical islands have been used as the setting for countless TV series and movies, ranging from Lost to Jurassic Park. Isolated in the middle of the vast Pacific Ocean, distance alone should protect Hawaii’s spectacular landscapes and turquoise water from the environmental problems facing the rest of the planet.

So when I arrived in Hawaii, I was staggered to discover beaches covered in plastic trash washed up from around the world. Pristine sand was covered by old plastic toothbrushes, combs, shoes, belts, and moldings. Sam Gon, a Hawaiian conservationist, took me to one beach where 70 local volunteers were doing their best to remove tons of garbage. But as soon as it was cleaned, the waves dumped another mountain of trash.

The larger pieces of waste can be collected by hand. But when Sam and I dropped to our knees, I could see the surface of the beach was covered with millions of small plastic pellets, known as “nurdles.” These are the raw material that factories use to form the infinite number of plastic products that fill our lives. These are dumped out of factories into our oceans in their trillions.

Yet the big shock came when Sam told me to dig into the sand. Plastic doesn’t biodegrade. Instead it breaks down into ever smaller pieces. Among the grains of sand were billions of tiny plastic flecks, which the pounding of the ocean was reducing in size. As I dug through the plastic, I realized the sandy beach was being transformed into a plastic beach. A chill went down my spine.

From the beaches of Hawaii to the waters around Britain, we are soiling our own nest. It was a shock to realize how much British beaches have changed since I was a child playing on beautiful coastlines in Dorset and south Wales. Just like those in Hawaii, they are now covered in more litter than ever before.

“the beach was covered with millions of small plastic pellets, known as ‘nurdles.’” poisoned by plastic

Since 1994, plastic litter has increased by an extraordinary 121 percent. The plastic we see on our beaches is just a fraction of the plastic waste that is clogging our oceans. Incredibly all the plastic ever created – totaling hundreds of millions of tons – is still out there in the environment in some form.

There are an estimated 600,000 plastic containers dumped overboard by ships every single day. In total, at least 100 million tons of plastic trash is thought to be sloshing around in our oceans. The scale of the problem is extraordinary. The beaches I visited in Hawaii are being swamped by rubbish from the Great Pacific Garbage Patch, a vast accumulation of the world's plastic debris floating in the Pacific Ocean. Twice the size of France, the Garbage Patch is like a plastic soup in the ocean and is doubling in size each decade.

And it is not alone. Scientists believe that water currents have created five vast swirling garbage patches in our oceans, including a huge one in the North Atlantic with up to 520,000 pieces of trash per square mile. This is an international scandal and a global problem, for which we are all responsible.

“Factories produced more plastic in the first decade of this 21st century than in the entire 20th century.”

From bicycle helmets to food packaging, from water bottles to toothbrushes, plastic makes our lives easier. But its production and use is completely out of control. “Factories produced more plastic in the first decade of this 21st century than in the entire 20th century.”

Because tiny fragments of plastic in our oceans are so small and look like food, they are being gobbled up by small fish, which in turn are eaten by larger fish – which in turn are eaten by us.

So plastic is ruining our beaches, choking the oceans, and poisoning our food chain. The consequences are still not fully understood, but they are likely to be devastating. We need to spurn and reject the main culprits: plastic bags, packaging, and single-use water bottles, a wasteful obscenity. These make up the bulk of plastic garbage.

In Bangladesh, they have done away with plastic bags and replaced them with natural jute bags. If they can do it, so can we. England has recently joined the growing number of countries which impose a tax on plastic bags, and the small town of Modbury in Devon has banned them completely.

At stake is the future of beaches, our seas, and the food chain. It is nothing short of an environmental emergency.

Man survives 60 days stuck in snow

A 44-YEAR-OLD SWEDISH MAN survived for 60 days by eating handfuls of snow when his car had become trapped in snowdrifts.

Yesterday he was recovering in a hospital after being pulled out barely alive. Experts think he went into a form of hibernation after temperatures plunged to as low as -30°C.

The emaciated man, whose name was reported as Peter Skylberg, had been driving on a remote forest road in northern Sweden and had become stuck during a snowstorm. He was finally found last Friday by a passing worker on a snowmobile. The rescuer said: "I was clearing the road when I noticed the car. I stopped to scrape some snow from the windshield and saw movement inside. The man was in a very poor state. He could hardly speak, but I understood that he had eaten nothing but snow for over two months." Skylberg was wrapped in a sleeping bag but had no other warmth. His fuel had run out weeks earlier because he had kept the engine running to keep warm.

He is now in intensive care, being treated for hypothermia. Police think that perhaps he was a nature lover who had been trying to photograph elk. Tommy Cederholm, a professor of nutrition at Uppsala University, says that humans can survive 60 days without food, but other experts are highly skeptical about the story.

5 CD1 27 Listen to two people discussing the article. Complete the lines from their conversation.

- 1 _____ he _____ by an avalanche while he _____ skiing?
 - 2 No, he _____ skiing.

READING AND LISTENING

Book at bedtime

1 You are going to listen to The Clinging Woman as told on the radio.

Look at the picture and answer the questions.

- 1 What is the woman doing?
 - 2 What is the man in the window doing?
 - 3 What is she thinking?
 - 4 What is he thinking?
 - 5 What do you think happens next?
- 2 CD1 33 Listen to the introduction to the radio program. Listen and read Part 1 of the story. Complete the facts that are established in this part.

- There are two characters: a man and ...
- He lives ...
- She lives ...
- It is ... in the morning.
- The weather ...
- He sees ...

The Clinging Woman

Part 1

The girl was hanging by her hands from the railings of a balcony. The balcony was on the twelfth floor of the high-rise building next to his. His apartment was on the ninth floor and he had to look up to see her. It was six thirty in the morning. He had been awakened by the sound of an aircraft flying dangerously low overhead, and had gotten out of bed to look. His sleepy gaze, descending from the blue sky which was empty of clouds, empty of anything but the bright vanishing arrow of the aircraft, alighted - at first with disbelief - on the hanging figure.

Part 2

He really thought he must be dreaming, for this sunrise time was the hour for dreams. Then, when he knew he wasn't, he decided it must be a stunt. This was to be a scene in a film. There were cameramen down there, a whole film unit, and all the correct safety precautions had been taken. Probably the girl wasn't even a real girl, but a dummy. He opened the window and looked down. The parking lots, paved courtyards, grass spaces between the buildings, all were deserted. On the balcony rail one of the dummy's hands moved, clutching its anchorage more tightly, more desperately. He had to believe then what was obviously happening - unbelievable only because melodrama, though a frequent constituent of real life, always is. The girl was trying to kill herself. She had lost her nerve and now was trying to stay alive. All these thoughts and conclusions of his occupied about thirty seconds. Then he acted. He picked up the phone and dialed the emergency number for the police.

The arrival of the police cars and the ultimate rescue of the girl became the focus of gossip and speculation for the tenants of the two buildings. Someone found out that it was he who had alerted the police and he became an unwilling hero. He was a modest, quiet young man, and, disliking this limelight, was relieved when the talk began to die away, when the novelty of it wore off, and he was able to enter and leave his apartment without being pointed at as a kind of St. George* and sometimes even congratulated.

About two weeks after that morning of melodrama, he was getting ready to go to the theater, just putting on his overcoat, when the doorbell rang. He didn't recognize the girl who stood outside. He had never seen her face.

She said, "I'm Lydia Simpson. You saved my life. I've come to thank you."

St. George: A hero who, according to legend, killed a dragon that was terrorizing a town.*

3 CDI 34 Listen and read Part 2. Answer the questions.

- 1 What is the man's initial interpretation of what he sees?
- 2 What is his second interpretation? How does he know it's wrong?
- 3 What is his third interpretation? What does he do?
- 4 How do the neighbors react?
- 5 How does the man react to this attention? What do you learn about his character?
- 6 What happens two weeks later?
- 7 Why doesn't he recognize the person at the door?

4 CDI 35 Listen only to Part 3 of the story and answer the questions.

- 1 How does the man feel as she talks? What does he say?
- 2 What does he want her to do?
- 3 What doesn't he want to happen?
- 4 How does he feel as she goes? How does she appear?

What do you think?

- 1 Why is it "curious" that they meet the next morning?
- 2 What do you think happens at the bus stop? Do they get to know each other? Go out together?
- 3 The writer doesn't ever give the man a name. Why not?
- 4 Read some lines from the rest of the story. What do you think happens?
 - "My life has been yours ever since you saved it."
 - "We don't need children to bring us together. You're my husband and my child and my friend all in one."
 - The first thing he noticed when he let himself in at his front door at six was the stench of gas.
 - "How long," she asked dully, "will you be gone?"
"Three months." She paled. She fell back as if physically ill.

Look at page 158 and read a synopsis of the story. Were your predictions right?

- What is it about the Internet that breeds such theories?
- Think of a recent news event and work in your groups to devise conspiracy theories about it. Describe the event and your theories to the class.

▶▶ WRITING Linking ideas – Conjunctions p. 103

digi ZABAN OF MALAYSIA AIRLINES FLIGHT 370

Almost as soon as Malaysia Airlines Flight 370 allegedly crashed into the Indian Ocean on March 8, 2014, conspiracy theories about its disappearance began popping up all over the Internet. Typing “missing plane MH370” into a search engine like Google can yield up to 1,000,000 results – breathtaking by anyone’s standards. Hypotheses range from military thriller movie plots (“it was shot down during a military operation”) to farce (“it was abducted by fiendish aliens”). And most popular of all – that a fire in the cockpit caused the crew to pass out from smoke inhalation, and the plane flew a great distance before it ran out of fuel and crashed.

Subscribers to this theory say that the simplest theory for the missing airplane is probably the best explanation. The senior pilot had 18,000 hours of flying time during his career, so experts presume the plane was in capable hands. The last words spoken by the crew were “good night” implying the flight was running smoothly. Until the plane is found, we’ll never really know what happened.

You don’t buy into any of these theories? Don’t worry. There are plenty more to choose from.

For example, some conspiracy theorists claim that the rapper Pitbull predicted MH370 would go missing in his song “Get it Started,” recorded in 2012. The speculation is that lines from Pitbull’s song, which go, “Now it’s off to Malaysia” and “Two passports, three cities, two countries, one day” refer to specific details in the plane’s disappearance. For example, two of the passengers were traveling with stolen passports, the three cities refer to the capital cities of Kuala Lumpur, Beijing, and Hanoi, while the two countries refer to the departure country of Malaysia and the arrival country of China.

These theories multiply because it is so hard for us to believe that a plane with 239 people on board could completely disappear in our technologically advanced world. Psychologically, we need conspiracy theories to make the tragedies of life more bearable. And the Internet helps feed the global paranoia.

For over 40 years rumors have been circulating that the Apollo moon landings were faked. They say astronaut Neil Armstrong made no “giant leap for mankind,” they assert that the 1969 moon mission was a hoax to prove America won the space race, and that the astronauts were “astro-nots!” The high point in the Great Moon Landing Conspiracy came on February 15, 2001, the date that Fox television broadcast a program entitled “Did We Land on the Moon?” This alleged that the whole moon landing had been staged inside a movie studio on a US military base somewhere in the Mojave desert.

The program claimed:

- 1 The US flag planted on the moon’s surface is seen fluttering, and there is no breeze of any kind on the moon.
- 2 The photographs taken by the astronauts do not include any of the moon’s night sky, where there would have been a stunning array of stars on view.
- 3 The shadows in the pictures are clearly coming from more than one angle – an impossibility on the moon, where the only light source is the sun, but more than plausible inside a movie studio.
- 4 One of the famed moon rocks brought back by the Apollo astronauts is marked with a telltale letter “C,” suggesting the markings not of some alien life force but of a movie prop.

After the program, the Internet went crazy with theories and counter-theories. However, scientists have unanimously agreed that the conspiracy theorists don’t have even the beginnings of a case. Too many things about the Apollo missions were impossible to fake, from the radio signals picked up at listening stations around the world, to the moon rocks, which have been subjected to repeated geological analysis and clearly date back several millennia.

Finally there are the UFO “nuts.” They actually do believe that astronauts went to the moon, but that not only did they find a load of rocks but also widespread evidence of an ancient alien civilization – a discovery so terrifying that NASA has been desperately trying to conceal it from the public ever since.

NEETS

the facts and figures

The term NEET is used to refer to people who are “Not in Employment, Education, or Training.” In the US, NEETs are usually defined as being between the ages of 16 and 24. The 2013 US figure is estimated at six million, which is approximately (5% / 15% / 18%) of this age group. In Mexico, for 15–29 year olds, the number is approximately 7.5 million, although there are huge differences across countries. These range from 13% in (Canada / Brazil / Peru) to about 35% in (Greece / Turkey / Egypt). The estimated annual cost to the US per year is about ($370 / $3,700 / $37,000) per NEET youth.

Figures for the EU reveal similar challenges. In the UK, the 2014 figure stood at 13.1%, 5.5% in (the Netherlands / Italy / Sweden), to about 25% in (Germany / Bulgaria / Sweden). And a university degree is no longer a guarantee to a job. In the UK in 2011, (a tenth / a fifth / a quarter) of graduates aged 21 were unable to find work after leaving school.

What do you think?

How can young people get “from NEET to EET” (Educated, Employed, and Trained)? Look at the list of possible solutions from around the world. Which of them would work best? Why?

- military service/volunteer work
- apprenticeships
- one-on-one mentoring from a personal adviser
- free transportation/books/access to IT
- grants for higher education
- help in setting up a small business
- school-based education with in-company training

The wish granter

Today's youth often get a bad rap, but they are not all hanging out on street corners or sulking in their bedrooms. The ones featured here – and many others around the world – are ambitious, talented, and making the most of their lives, often against the odds. Judith Woods and Fiona Holloway report.

“We get a bad rap, but we're all right!”

Nick D'Aloisio is the founder of Summly. He grew up in Perth, Australia. His dad is a banker and his mom is a lawyer. The family moved to London when Nick was 7. At 9 he was given his own computer, which he put to use creating movies. At 12 he got an iPhone and began writing apps. He created Facemood, an app that looked at your friend's Facebook timeline and summarized what mood they were in. Nick wanted to summarize more.

“The thing is, I don't have time to click in and out of every story and article on the Web that interests me. I want to find a way to skim-read content before reading the complete article. The time is right for this; even Google knows that something needs to be done to make sense of the Web overrun by a diarrhea of words.”

So, at just 16 he created Summly, which automatically summarizes Web pages and news articles. It had 100,000 downloads in its first month and attracted $250,000 in funding from the Chinese billionaire Li Ka-Shing.

How does Nick reconcile his life as an entrepreneur with his other life as a student and a young adult?

“I like a lot of things. I'm a big fan of rugby and cricket. I enjoy school and being with my friends, and I work hard at school. I'm learning Russian and Mandarin. I don't want to be seen as a kid who created an app. It's an app which happens to have a kid behind it. Steve Jobs is an idol of mine. He had a clear vision of his product. Like him, I'm obsessive about controlling every aspect of my product.”

Nick's ambition to summarize the entire Web is still a journey in progress, but the world of technology will be hearing about his exploits for a long time to come. He has recently sold Summly to Yahoo for $30 million.

Jake Bugg grew up in a public housing development in Nottingham, but he has already achieved a lot. He started playing the guitar at the age of 12 when his uncle gave him one as a present. By the time he was 14, he was writing his own songs, and at 17 he took part in the Glastonbury Festival as one of the BBC “Introducing” acts.

“The day before I got the call from the BBC, I had an audition for another festival and they'd turned me down. The next day the BBC called and said, ‘Do you want to play at Glastonbury?’ It was just so inspiring and has helped quite a lot.”

Unlike a lot of his school friends, Jake's musical tastes extend past the Top 40 and latest pop releases. Like others at his age, he browses the Web to explore the artists he is into, but there are other influences as well.

“My mom used to play old records around the house. Sometimes the stuff she played was awful, but sometimes they were alright.”

Jake's songs have been played on various BBC radio shows and one called Country Song was used in a TV advertisement. Jake himself has appeared on TV in a music program called Later...with Jools Holland. He still has a lot of aspirations.

“Of course I'd like to have a number one hit – everyone wants that, but the thing I'd like most is to have a jamming session with Noel Gallagher of Oasis. That'd be so cool. And I guess it would be good to work with one of my heroes, Donovan or someone like that.”

His debut album includes single Lightning Bolt and the song Trouble Town, which is an autobiographical look at life in public housing.

Caitlin Crommett grew up in Orange County, California, attending school, hanging out with friends, and playing basketball. At the age of 12, she took it upon herself to do volunteer work for a local hospice, a home that provides care for the terminally ill. When she was 15, Caitlin decided that she wanted to do more for the hospice patients, so she started DreamCatchers, a club that aims to fulfill patients' final dreams and makes their last days happy.

“I had been volunteering with a hospice near me for a few years, helping out around the office and singing at memorial services,” Crommett recalls. “I then saw the movie Patch Adams, which inspired me to do something more to make these patients happy at the end of their lives. I wanted to be able to have their last dreams fulfilled and help people believe in happy endings once again.”

Ann Klein, the wife of hospice patient Bernard Klein, was Caitlin's first beneficiary. The couple had gone sailing nearly every weekend before Bernard got sick. Ann mentioned that if Bernard could go sailing one more time, he'd be happy. Caitlin made arrangements for the Kleins to sail on an 82-foot double-mast schooner. When the crew lifted Bernard aboard, he laughed. Ann says, “It was the first time we had laughed together in a long time.”

Since then, DreamCatchers, has granted dreams to dozens of terminally ill patients including final family reunions with loved ones who live far away, trips to Disneyland, and hot-air balloon rides.

“I love granting dreams. I hope that it will serve as a bridge between generations, as students everywhere can give back to the communities that raised them.”

Caitlin is currently a senior at the University of Notre Dame studying film, TV, and acting. In addition, she travels around the country sharing information about DreamCatchers with students, teachers, hospice administrators, and community centers. Her hope for the future is for DreamCatchers to become a nationally recognized foundation.

Rachael Ray

has hit the big time in a big way. She's famous as an extremely successful chef, cookbook writer, spokeswoman, and media personality. Her numerous TV shows have been broadcast in more than 10 countries around the world including the US, Australia, Canada, Brazil, and Turkey. In addition, she has written over 20 cookbooks that have sold more than 1 million copies. Since 2006, she has given a great deal of time and energy to improving unhealthy diets for kids in the US.

Her rise to fame and fortune was swift. She began her career working in her parents' restaurants, where it was easy to earn a few dollars.

In 1995, with no formal chef training, she landed her first professional job at Macy's Marketplace candy counter in New York City. After two years there, she moved back home to manage restaurants.

In 1998, she came up with the idea of teaching people how to make plenty of tasty, nutritious meals using a few simple supermarket ingredients in 30 minutes or less. Even though she had hardly any TV experience, she had plenty of enthusiasm, and she found herself doing

Apple

Mac or PC? For many, home computers have become synonymous with Windows and Bill Gates, but there has always been a loyal band of Apple users, whose devotion to the brand and its co-founder, the late Steve Jobs, is almost religious.

Within minutes of his death on October 5, 2011, Twitter was overwhelmed with tributes from shocked fans. In the hours and days that followed, thousands of people made their way to Apple headquarters in California and to Apple Stores right across the world to lay flowers and light candles. In a fitting tribute to this gadget guru, many held up an image of a burning candle on their iPhone or iPad. So how did a company named after a fruit create so many fans?

Steve Jobs and Stephen Wozniak dropped out of college and got jobs in Silicon Valley, where they founded the Apple Computer company in 1976, the name based on Jobs's favorite fruit. They designed the Apple I computer in Jobs's bedroom, having raised the capital by selling their most valued possessions – an old Volkswagen bus and a scientific calculator. The later model, the Apple Macintosh, introduced the public to point-and-click graphics. It was the first home computer to be truly user-friendly, or as the first advertising campaign put it, "the computer for the rest of us."

STARBUCKS

Coffee anyone? What about a Skinny Latte, or perhaps an Iced Caramel Macchiato, or even a Mocha Cookie Crumble Frappuccino? These are just a few of the many speciality coffees for sale at Starbucks, the world's leading coffee roaster and retailer.

Starbucks serves over 60 million customers a week in over 20,000 stores in over 60 countries around the world. And these figures continue to increase. So how did a company currently worth $13 billion get started?

Starbucks Coffee, Tea and Spice, as it was originally known, roasted its first coffee beans in 1971. This tiny coffee house in Seattle, named after a character in the novel Moby Dick, was the vision of three men – Baldwin, Siegl, and Bowker – who cared passionately about fine coffee and tea. Their determination to provide the best quality coffee helped their business to succeed, and a decade later, their fourth store in Seattle opened.

Meanwhile, in New York, Howard Schultz, a businessman specializing in kitchen equipment, noticed that a small company in Seattle was ordering a large number of a special type of coffeemaker. Out of curiosity, he made the cross-country trip to Seattle to find out more. As soon as he saw the Starbucks store, he knew that he wanted to be part of it. The three founder members weren't initially very interested, but a persistent Schultz was eventually hired to be head of Starbucks marketing in 1982.

READING AND SPEAKING

Two famous brands

1 What do you know about these brands? What is their reputation? Are they popular among your friends and family? Who are their rivals?

2 Work in two groups.

Group A Read about Apple.

Group B Read about Starbucks.

Read your article and answer the questions.

- When and where did the company begin?
- Who founded it?
- Where did the name of the company come from?
- Why did the brand become a success?
- Has the company's progress always been easy?
- What makes the brand special?
- What features of the product or company do people see as negative?
- What are some examples of the company's products?

3 Find a partner from the other group. Compare and exchange information.

4 Here are eight answers. Decide which four are about your article. Then write the questions.

- In Silicon Valley.
- About 900.
- $13 billion.
- In 1997. (When ... launched?)
- Ten years. (How long ... take ...?)
- Because he argued with his partner. (Why ... resign?)
- Because they can't compete. (Why ... out of business?)
- By selling some of their possessions. (How ...?)

When IBM released its first PC in 1981, Jobs realized that Apple would have to become a more grown-up company in order to compete effectively. He brought in John Sculley, the president of PepsiCo, to do the job, asking him, "Do you want to just sell sugared water for the rest of your life, or do you want to change the world?" Sculley and Jobs began to argue bitterly, however, and after a power struggle, Jobs was reluctantly forced to resign.

By 1996, Apple was in trouble, due to the dominance of Windows software and the increasing number of PC clones that could use it. Jobs was brought back to the ailing firm for an annual salary of $1, and the company gradually returned to profitability.

Apple's computers cost more than most PCs, and have a more limited range of software available for them, but their great appeal has been the attention to design, making Apple the cool computer company. The launch of the stunning multicolored iMac in 1997, followed by the sleek new iMac in 2002, marked the end of the computer as an ugly, utilitarian machine, and brought the home computer out of the study and into the lounge.

Apple's fortunes were transformed again with the development of the iPod in 2003, the iPhone in 2007, the iPad in 2010, and the iCloud data storage service in 2011. These beautifully stylish products and the ease with which they are networked, have changed the way the world reads, watches, listens, and communicates.

He modeled the Starbucks stores on Italian espresso bars, and made them comfortable places to relax. Within the next ten years, Schultz had already opened 150 new stores and had bought the company! In 2011, a new logo was launched, surprisingly without the words "Starbucks" and "coffee." Despite criticism from branding experts, this was a clever way of allowing the company to extend its product range. The following year saw the introduction of Refreshers – energy-boosting drinks made from real fruit juice and green coffee extract.

"17,000 stores in 58 countries"

But global success comes at a price. Although Starbucks has a company policy of fair trade and employee welfare, it has been the recent target of antiglobalization protests. Many people feel that big corporations, even responsible ones, are never a good thing, as small, independent companies can't compete and so go out of business. Added to this, fierce competition from other chains in the middle of a recession caused Starbucks to close 900 of its 17,000 stores worldwide. And its worries didn't end there. Starbucks UK came under close scrutiny over how much tax it pays to the government, resulting in some people boycotting the chain altogether. But despite these challenges, Starbucks remains one of the world's most recognized brands. Its blend of commercialism and comfy sofas is still proving a recipe for success.

- 2 Work with a partner. Read the first part of the article on this page.
 - 1 What did Marianne’s father want to talk to her about?
 - 2 Why has he “miraculously” avoided the topic so far?
 - 3 Why say “downed,” and not just “drank” a glass of water?
 - 4 What does “I dunno” mean? Why is it unusual that Marianne says it?
- 3 Read the rest of the article. Answer the questions.
 - 1 In what ways had Marianne’s father “settled down” at her age? How old was he when she was born?
 - 2 How does Marianne’s life now differ from his back then?
 - 3 What plans does she have for the future?
 - 4 In what ways is Marianne already a grown up?
 - 5 How is the “Peter Pan generation” described?
 - 6 What does “adultescent” mean? Which two words form it?
 - 7 What comparisons does Professor Furedi make between the 1970s and today?
 - 8 In what ways does the economy affect the behavior of young people? What else is to blame?
 - 9 What choice cannot be postponed forever?
 - 10 What is making Marianne think that it may be time for her to grow up?

What do you think?

- Do you agree with Marianne’s father? Why? Why not?
- Why do more and more young adults still live with their parents? Why more men than women? Is this true in your country?
- Does having lots of life choices make you happy? What choices do you have? What choices did your grandparents have?

The Peter

NO mortgage.
NO marriage.
NO children.
NO career plan.

Like so many 30-somethings,
 Marianne Power admits she’s one of them ...

The other day I had lunch with my father, who was in town on business. He took me to his favorite restaurant and started a conversation that he has, until now – miraculously – avoided. He coughed nervously, downed a glass of water and got started – asking me about my plans for life: Did I see myself settling down and starting a family? Am I saving up to buy a house? What is the next step in my career?

There was a pause. I looked at him and shrugged, before muttering that immortal phrase, loved by teenagers: “I dunno.” Except I’m not a teenager. I am 34!

Pan generation

Life plans then and now

When my father was my age, he was putting my six-year-old sister and eight-year-old me through school, and had another three-year-old daughter at home. He had been running a business for ten years, he owned a house, and had a pension.

I, on the other hand, live in a rented apartment with my youngest sister. I have little to no savings to speak of. I certainly don't have a pension. As for the idea of marriage and children, well, it's exactly that: just an idea – it's no closer to being a reality than it was when I was 23. My "life plan," as my father so sweetly called it, goes as far as this weekend.

"Don't you think you should start thinking about these things?" he asked. "You're not 20 any more."

In many ways I am a full-fledged member of adult society – I pay taxes, cast my vote, and give money to charity – in other ways, I am in denial about my age. I behave in much the same way I did ten years ago. I am not alone. Last week, I read that there is a name for people like me. We are the "Peter Pan generation"; a sizeable group of 25 to 40-year-olds who are avoiding the responsibility of marriage, mortgage, children for as long as possible.

The sociologist

Professor Frank Furedi, at the University of Kent, has been studying this phenomenon. He says:

"A word sometimes used to describe these people is 'adultescent' – someone who refuses to settle down and make commitments, and who would rather go on partying into middle age. These people might live with their parents until they are in their 30s, continuing the life they had in their early 20s. Back in the 1970s, men typically got married at 24 and women at 22. Currently, the average age at which people marry is 32 for men and 30 for women. The average age for starting a family today is 28 for women, up from 24 in 1970."

Why has this come about?

Well, you could blame the economy. Buying or renting a house gets more and more expensive. Every day we see headlines about adults having to move back home with their parents. Three million 20 to 34-year-olds now live with their parents – one in three men and one in six women.

However, Professor Furedi, who is in his 60s, says we cannot blame the economy. He believes that the root of our refusal to grow up is fear. We are scared of getting old because all our cultural values are with youth.

And, young people today are spoiled with too many choices. We can decide whether to get married or not, start a family or not, travel the world or not, stay at a job, or try to find a new one. However, are we happy? So many choices can make us anxious and depressed. And of course, there is one decision that a woman cannot put off for ever, and that is whether to have a child.

I talk about these issues with my "Peter-Pan" friends, but I've noticed, recently, that we are getting fewer in number. I now have many more friends who have found ways to buy a house and start a family.

They are very happy in their new phase of their life, while I am still clinging on to the old one. Perhaps, finally, it is time to grow up.

- 6 Read the speech. Who is speaking? Why? Rewrite the speech and make it sound more extreme by changing and adding adjectives and adverbs.

“I am very surprised and happy to receive this award. I am grateful to all those nice people who voted for me. It is unusual for a musical to win best movie, so this is a big honor. None of us could have predicted Angel Voice would be such a big success. It was a good movie to do, not only because of all the smart people who worked on it, but also because of the amount of new talent we were able to develop. My special thanks go to the writer Clarke Miller for the interesting characters and funny script; to Michael Kellerman, the musical director, for the great songs and exciting musical score; to the set and costume designers for their creativity, and last but not least to my wife, Marcia, for her valuable support. I love you all.”

Happy ending in New York

- 1 Write down three things you know about New York City. Share ideas with the class.
- 2 You are going to read about a young man, Bob Redman, who lives in New York City. Read the paragraph below, which is the conclusion of his story. Answer the questions.

This story just goes to prove that America is still a land of opportunity, where dreams can become reality. And, in our hectic, competitive world, it is comforting to know that a man like Bob Redman exists.

- Is America “a land of opportunity”? What does this mean?
 - Why is New York City called “hectic” and “competitive”?
 - Do you think Bob Redman is a successful business person?
 - Can you guess why his story might be comforting?
- 3 Read the title and the introduction. Answer these questions.
 - 1 Who was Tarzan?
 - 2 What advice is given about where to stay in New York City? Why should you stay there?
 - 3 What are the “enormous cliffs of stone and cement”?
 - 4 Read the paragraph headings only. What can you guess about Bob Redman’s story?
 - 5 Now read the article. Were your guesses correct? Are these statements true or false? Correct the false ones.
 - 1 People near the park thought that someone might be living among the treetops.
 - 2 Bob Redman was raised among trees in the countryside.
 - 3 He built 14 tree houses altogether.
 - 4 He gave an interview to the New York Times.
 - 5 Bob felt lonely sometimes, especially at night.
 - 6 He rented his final house to some friends.
 - 7 He was happy to see friends as long as they behaved well.
 - 8 Bob’s tree houses were usually detected very quickly.
 - 9 The park director was very impressed with Bob’s workmanship.
 - 10 Unfortunately Bob had to go to jail.
 - 6 Read again about Bob’s final tree house. Try to draw it on a piece of paper. Comment on each other’s pictures. Ask the student with the best one to draw it on the board.

Tarzan

of Central Park

Anybody visiting New York City for the first time should get a room high up in one of the hotels at the southern end of Central Park. The view is extraordinary. The park extends northwards until it is lost from sight in a sea of treetops with enormous cliffs of stone and cement on each side.

Life among the treetops

During recent years legends have grown up among people who live near the park, legends of life among the treetops. One story was of a young, handsome man who had been spotted from time to time among the branches. This rumor turned out to be true. There was a handsome young man who had been living in the treetops for eight years until he was discovered by the city authorities.

"I like the solitude."

It is a touching tale. Bob Redman, brought up by his mother in a tiny Manhattan apartment, had always been addicted to trees. When he was 14, he went into the park and built himself a tree house. It was the first of 13 houses, each one more elaborate than the last. "I like to be in trees," Redman explained to a reporter from the New York Times. "I like to be up, away from everything. I like the solitude. I love most of all to look at the stars. The view at night of the city lights and stars is beyond description."

A five-room split-level home

His final house was the grandest of them all. Constructed at the top of a huge beech tree, it was what a real estate agent would describe as a "five-room split-level home commanding spectacular views of the city skyline and Central Park." It included ladders and rope bridges leading to an adjacent tree, as well as wooden benches and tables. Who can imagine what the rent might be for such a house?

Friends came to visit

Redman went to great pains to hide his tree houses, building them in neglected corners of the park and camouflaging them with branches and green paint. Friends used to come to visit him, sometimes as many as 12 people at a time, bringing sandwiches, radios, books, and flashlights. Certain rules had to be obeyed: no breaking branches, no litter, no fires, and no loud noise – except his brother Bill, who sometimes brought a set of conga drums to the tree houses and played them very late at night, giving rise to rumors of a tree-dwelling tribe.

The party's over!

The park authorities quickly became aware of his activities. However, the houses were often not detected for long periods of time. Some lasted as long as a whole year before they were found and destroyed by officials, with a mournful Bob Redman watching from a distance. His magnificent final house went unnoticed for four months before Bob was awoken one morning with the words: "Come down! The party's over!"

He climbed down and was met by Frank Serpe, park director, and ten officers of the Parks Enforcement Patrol. Mr. Serpe had been hunting Redman for years. But he was generous in his praise for the houses. "We marveled at the spectacular workmanship," he said. "The floors were strong enough to hold a truck and not one nail was hammered into the tree."

The perfect job!

Mr. Serpe concluded that, rather than lock him up in jail, perhaps they should offer Redman a job. He is now a professional pruner and tree climber for the Central Park Conservancy. However, he has had to promise not to build any more tree houses. He says he cannot believe that a job so perfect for him could possibly exist.

I suppose, this story just goes to prove that America is still a land of opportunity, where dreams can become reality. And, in our hectic, competitive world, it is comforting to know that a man like Bob Redman exists.

Role play

Work with a partner.

Student A You are Bob Redman.

Student B You are a journalist from the New York Times, interviewing Bob Redman.

Conduct the interview.

Tell me about yourself, Bob. When and why did you build your first tree house?

Well, I was just 14 and my mother and I ...

What do you think?

- Why is it comforting to read about a man like Bob Redman in New York City?
- Read the quotation. What does it mean? Do you agree? How does it relate to Bob Redman's story?
"Find a job you love to do and you'll never have to work again in your life."

SPOKEN ENGLISH Adding a comment

In conversation we can add a comment with which as an afterthought. This often expresses our reaction to what we have said.

He gave me a ride home, which was nice.

- 1 Add a suitable comment from B to Simone's and Anna's comments in A. Sometimes more than one is correct.

A	B
1 We went performing in temperatures of over 40°C,	which is hard to believe.
2 My friends were worried I'd get lost,	which was just amazing.
3 We visited the pyramids at sunrise,	which was rather a stupid thing to do.
4 My nostrils actually froze,	which was no joke.
5 This motorcycle broke down in the desert,	which was no laughing matter.
6 The old lady didn't understand a word I said,	which was understandable.
	which is hardly surprising because my Russian's lousy.

- 2 CD3 24 Listen and check. Practice saying the comments with a partner.

- 2 Write sentences ending with a comment from B. Tell the class.
I missed the last bus home, which was no laughing matter.

Project

Choose a past time that interests you. Research it and present your findings to the class.

Peter Saunders is just 30 years old, but he is a huge fan of all things Victorian. He has spent thousands of dollars turning his house into a late-1800s haven.

Peter takes Victorian life very seriously, even down to wearing a vest and flat cap. Every item in his cottage is 100 percent authentic. There is no factory-produced furniture, everything from the toilet to the tin cans in his pantry have been lovingly handpicked from garage sales, antique fairs, and eBay auctions. A portrait of Queen Victoria hangs proudly above the sitting room fireplace.

The 21st-century woman who lives in the 1950s

Joanne Massey, 35, lives in a re-creation of a 1950s home with her husband Kevin, 42, who is a graphic designer. Joanne is a housewife. She says,

Peter's four-bedroom house now looks much like it used to look when a real-life Victorian family lived there, and Peter is considering opening its doors to the public.

He says, "I've gone to a lot of trouble, and I would like to share it with people who will appreciate it. The Victorian period was a fascinating time. Both my mom and my sister are interested in it too, so I guess my passion for it started from them. My mom is always picking things up for me from garage sales. I like the idea of the lifestyle that the Victorians had. They would entertain themselves. They used to love a sing-along around the piano. And they were less wasteful than we are today. Things were built to last. I can't stand all that modern stuff made of plastic that all looks the same. Most of my friends are very supportive, and they love coming over for dinner parties, when all the old glasses and cutlery come out."

Peter uses all the original cooking features in his kitchen, but admits to having a microwave. He also has a television, central heat, and a refrigerator freezer but he says:

"All my modern conveniences are hidden around the house in cabinets or behind curtains. And I have running water, as most Victorians had, but they didn't have hot water like I do."

The house has an outhouse, which Peter is restoring. "But I also have a Victorian-style indoor bathroom with antique fittings, so I guess I have the best of both worlds – all the modern conveniences but with the romantic and quaint feel of the Victorian period, and it's very cozy – the Victorians were all about comfort."

Experts agree with Peter that the house genuinely reflects Victorian times. Hilary Silvester, chairman of Nottingham Civic Society, said, "Peter's done it extremely well. It's not sentimental in any way and has been restored in such a genuine fashion."

"I love nothing better than fastening my apron around my waist and baking a cake for Kevin in my 1950s kitchen. I put on some Frank Sinatra music and am completely lost in my own little fantasy world. In our marriage, I am very much a lady and Kevin is the breadwinner. We've been married for 13 years, and we're extremely happy because we both know our roles. I make sure our home is immaculate, there is dinner on the table, and I look pretty to welcome my husband home."

Joanne doesn't even put gas in their Ford Anglia car, which is 43 years old, because she thinks that is unladylike. She asks Kevin to do it. She only ever wears 1950s clothing, such as tight pencil skirts, a white blouse, and a wide belt. Her furniture is all from the 50s. The kitchen is an original "English Rose" design, which used to be very much the "in thing." They advertised for "English Rose" cabinets and appliances in an antiques magazine and bought them from a family who had the items in their garage.

Joanne thinks modern life is too hectic. Shopping in supermarkets is an ordeal, and she doesn't read newspapers – they are just too distressing. She says, "We do have a television set, but we hide it in a retro cabinet. Our social life revolves around visiting like-minded friends for tea and cake."

Her obsession began as a teenager. She loved old movies because they seemed to represent a halcyon time, when women were more feminine and men more protective. She could have gone to college but chose to work in a bank.

She says, "I was marking time until I met the right man. Kevin and I met at a fifties convention, and we had an old-fashioned courtship before he proposed. I was ecstatic because I had found someone with the same passion. Some women I meet ask me if I feel patronized by spending all my time caring for Kevin, but I never would."

At work, Kevin gets teased because he's the only one with homemade treats and even homemade jam in his sandwiches. Joanne thinks his colleagues are jealous that he has a wife who devotes herself solely to his happiness. How many men these days can really say that?

SPEAKING

Who did it?

Four men are reading in the library of a country house. Suddenly one of the men drops dead. Who did it?

- 1 Your teacher will give each of you a card with information about the crime. You can't show your card to anyone else, but you can say what's on it.
- 2 Work as a class to solve the crime. The best way to do this is through organization and cooperation, knowing when to speak and when to listen.

If you work together well, you should solve the crime in about twenty minutes. If you don't work together, you'll never solve it!
- 3 When you have finished, discuss these questions.
 - How did you organize yourselves?
 - Was everybody involved, or did one person dominate?
 - How could you have solved the crime more quickly?
 - What should you have done?
 - Games such as these are used in management training courses. Why, do you think?

THE VIKINGS

Raiders, traders, and intrepid explorers

“From the Fury of the Northmen, O Lord, Deliver Us!”

The year is 793 AD, and this was the petrified cry of the ancient Anglo-Saxons, pleading with their god to save them from the Vikings (or Norsemen). For nearly 300 years, from the 8th to the 11th century AD, this warrior race set out from Scandinavia on raids and voyages of discovery and colonization across the northern world. They struck fear in the hearts of the peoples of Europe, but the archaeology of their settlements and the literature of their sagas reveal a complex and fascinating culture. They were not only violent raiders and pillagers, they were a lot else besides.

1 This striking-looking race, with their blond hair and blue eyes, were descended from Germanic tribes that settled in what is now Scandinavia. Most Vikings were, at heart, farmers and fishermen, not warriors. They grew vegetables and cereal crops and tended their livestock. Skilled Viking craftsmen included blacksmiths, leather workers, and jewelers.

2 They worshipped a variety of gods. Chief among them were Odin, Thor, and Frey. Today, we recall them as Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday. It is said that Odin created the Runes, the 24 letters of the old Norse alphabet. These were carved on stone tablets with scenes of Norse myths.

3 Above all, the Vikings were skillful shipbuilders and navigators. With their magnificent longships, they embarked on voyages of exploration far and wide, from Britain to Baghdad. They traded their iron, furs, and grindstones for goods that they could not get at home, such as silk, glass, and silver.

4 However, in the late 8th century, trading was replaced by raiding. Having the fastest ships of the day, they sprang surprise attacks on European monasteries, thereafter extorting protection money as a price of peace. This was known as Danegeld. This reign of terror began in 793 with a ferocious attack on England's Lindisfarne monastery.

5 By the mid-9th century, the Vikings were seeking to increase their wealth and power even further. They struck out across the unwelcoming Atlantic and, in 870, reached Iceland. As many as 12,000 Viking immigrants ultimately settled there, setting up the Althing, the oldest parliament in the world.

6 In 982, one of these immigrants, the hot-tempered Erik the Red, banished from his homeland for violent crimes, sailed westward again. He finally settled in a gray, desolate land of fjords and glaciers. Cunningly he named it Greenland, so as to attract more settlers to join him and his family.

7 Erik's eldest son, Leif Erikson, became intrigued by tales of yet more lands, and in 1003 he mounted an expedition further west. He finally landed in a place that he named Vinland, today known as Newfoundland, thereby discovering North America nearly 400 years before Christopher Columbus.

“Carrie and I were on vacation in Vanuatu in the South Pacific. It's really beautiful there, and one day we went for a walk and saw this house for sale. It was on a cliff overlooking a bay, and you could imagine, the views were absolutely amazing. We just fell in love with it. We had to have it – so we bought it right then and there, and the next day we hired an architect to redesign our dream vacation home. That evening we celebrated, and in the middle of the night, we were sound asleep when suddenly we were thrown from our beds. The room was shaking – it was the biggest earthquake that had ever hit the region. But the worst was still to come, because the next morning when we drove out to check our newly bought house, we found that the whole cliff had fallen into the water. We lost every cent we had.”

Why doesn't our cat talk to me?

Because cats can't talk.

Why can't cats talk?

Because ...

- What have you ever wondered? List some questions in your group and read them to the class.

1 Could the Internet be wiped out?

The comedian Eddie Izzard joked about technophobia by saying, "I've wiped all my files! ... Oh, no I've wiped the Internet!" Would it really be possible to delete the Internet? Could anything trigger its total collapse? Given our dependence upon it, it's a frightening thought.

Luckily for us, wiping out the entire Internet would be downright impossible. No one machine or cable keeps all of it going. (1) _____. If one connection is damaged, other routes can eventually be found.

But imagine the upheaval across the world if it did collapse, even temporarily. Cable and satellite service would be lost. There would be no access to TV channels, no cell phone service, no email, no texts, no blogs, no social media, and no funny cat videos. The world of business would be in total disarray. Internet giants like Google and Amazon would grind to a halt. A crash that lasted even a short time would lead to chaos and panic in financial markets around the world.

It is incredible to think that in just a couple of decades so many aspects of our lives have become so reliant upon it. And, as much as it is sometimes tempting to contemplate a simpler, less stressful world without it, it's a relief to learn how resilient it actually is.

2 How many species live in or on the human body?

There are about 200 species, including 80 in the mouth alone, that inhabit the human body. However, alongside these our bodies are also host to a mind-boggling number of bacteria. The total excreted by the body every day ranges from 100 billion to 100 trillion. (2) _____. The most densely populated areas of the human body are the teeth, throat, and alimentary canal, where the concentrations are increased times 1,000 compared to on the skin. But although such figures seem huge, it has been calculated that if you stuck together all the bacteria on the skin of the average human, it would only be the size of a pea. And then there are the common parasites found on the human body, for example the follicle mite. Found on every individual, it spends all its days harmlessly munching dead skin cells. However, another parasite, Naegleria fowleri, is far from harmless; this invades the brain and multiplies until the host drops dead. Fortunately, only very few humans ever meet this.

Have you ever wondered?

Answers to some important questions in life

3 What would happen if we didn't have leap years?

A leap year consists of 366 days, as opposed to a common year, which has 365 days.

During leap years, we add a leap day, an extra day, on February 29.

A leap year is every four years in the modern Gregorian calendar. They are needed to keep our calendar in alignment with the earth's revolutions around the sun.

It takes the earth approximately 365 days, 5 hours, 48 minutes, and 46 seconds to circle the sun. However, the Gregorian calendar has only 365 days in a year, so if we didn't add a day on February 29 nearly every four years, we would lose almost six hours off our calendar every year. (3) _____.

Julius Caesar introduced leap years over 2,000 years ago, but the Julian calendar had only one rule: Any year divisible by four would be a leap year. This led to too many leap years, a problem solved over 1,500 years later with the introduction of the Gregorian calendar. In this, further criteria were taken into account:

- The year must be divisible by four.
- However, if the year can also be divided by 100, it's NOT a leap year, unless it is divisible by 400.

This means that 2000 and 2400 are leap years, but 1900 and 2100 are not. The year 2000 was special because it was the first leap year divisible by 400 since the transition from the Julian to the Gregorian calendar.

4 Why do songs get stuck in my head?

You know the experience – you hear a song and it plays, and replays inside your head, in a never-ending loop.

These songs have many names: stuck-song syndrome, sticky music, and cognitive itch, but most commonly “earworm” from the German “ohrworm.” (4) _____. Nearly everyone gets them on occasion, but some people are much more susceptible than others.

So what causes “earworms”? An unsurprising finding is that if you hear a song recently or repeatedly, you're more likely to get stuck with it. But sometimes songs pop into our heads even when we haven't heard them for a long time. In this case, something in our current environment may trigger the memory. This happens because the brain never stops working, and its auditory areas, where musical information is retained, can process music all day.

Perhaps a more important question than the cause of earworms is “How do we turn them off?”

One piece of advice is to start another activity, go for a run, watch a favorite TV program, or think of another song to push out the first one. However, the danger here is that the song that cures you might just end up being the next earworm!

5 What is the origin of the @ symbol?

History tells us that the little @ in email addresses, commonly referred to as the “at sign,” stemmed from the tired hands of medieval monks. During the Middle Ages, before the invention of printing presses, every letter of a word had to be painstakingly transcribed by hand for each copy of a book. The monks that performed these tedious copying duties looked for ways to reduce the number of individual strokes for common words. Although the word “at” is very short, it was so common that the monks thought it would be quicker and easier to shorten it even more. As a result, they looped the “t” around the “a” and eliminated two strokes of the pen.

With the introduction of email, the popularity of the @ symbol grew. (5) _____, for instance, joe@uselessknowledge.com. There is no one universal name for the sign, but countries have found different ways to describe it. Several languages use words that associate the shape with some type of animal.

These include:

- Klammeraffe German for “hanging monkey”
- apenstaartje Dutch for “monkey's tail”
- sobachka Russian for “little dog”
- kukac Hungarian for “worm”
- papaki Greek for “little duck”
- dalphaengi Korean for “snail”
- kissanhäntä Finnish for “cat's tail”
- grisehale Norwegian for “pig's tail”
- snabel Danish for “elephant's trunk”

Moans and groans

1 Read the complaints in A. Match them with a response in B. Which of the items in the box do they refer to?

a leather jacket email boots ordering by phone a bookcase an exam a TV program a dishwasher

A

- 1 I could kick myself. As soon as I'd handed it in, I remembered what the answer was. an exam
- 2 I don't believe it! I've spent all morning trying to send this, and all I get is "Oops! Your message wasn't sent. Try again later."
- 3 These instructions don't make any sense to me at all. If you can follow them, you're a genius.
- 4 It's not fair. I'd been looking forward to watching it all day and then the phone goes and rings!
- 5 How many times do I have to tell you? Take them off before you come into the house!
- 6 This has gone way beyond a joke. You promised you'd deliver it by Tuesday at the latest. Now you're saying next month!
- 7 I went away to think about it, and of course, when I went back it had been sold. I wish I'd just bought it then and there.
- 8 What a waste of time! Ten minutes listening to music and "All our lines are busy. Thank you for waiting"

B

- a What a pain! Have you tried calling the computer helpline?
- b Give me a break! I was in a hurry. Anyway, they're only a little bit muddy.
- c I'm awfully sorry, sir. I'm afraid there's nothing I can do about it. It's out of my hands.
- d I know, it drives me crazy. But worse still is that you never get to speak to a real person anyway!
- e Oh, I hate it when that happens! But do you think you passed?
- f Oh, too bad. It would have gone so well with your white jeans.
- g Don't ask me! This ready-to-assemble stuff is a nightmare! I had exactly the same trouble trying to put together a bedside table.
- h Typical! And who was it? Anyone interesting?

READING AND SPEAKING

The Isle of Muck

- 1 Work in small groups. Look at the picture and read the introduction to the Scottish Isle of Muck. Would life there suit you? Make a list of plus (+) and minus (-) points about living on such an island.
- 2 Look through the text quickly. What or who are these names? What is their role on the island?
 - Catherine Murray-John
 - Sandy
 - Caledonian MacBrayne
 - Colin MacEwen
 - Lawrence MacEwen
 - Dave
- 3 Read the text again and answer the questions.
 - 1 Why is Catherine leaving the island?
 - 2 In what ways is Muck removed from the 21st century?
 - 3 Why is the arrival of the boat a "great social event"?
 - 4 Why can't anybody choose to move to Muck?
 - 5 What kind of people are not wanted?
 - 6 What does this mean: "By 1973, Muck's population had dropped to the teens."
 - 7 What do you learn about the history of the island?
 - 8 What do these numbers refer to?
1970 23 8(x2) 13 320 1,500
 - 9 Which of these things does the island have?

a post office	a church	a pub
a luxury hotel	a guest house	sharks
whales	an elementary school	TV
a police officer	a high school

What do you think?

- Why do so many people find the idea of living on Muck so attractive?
- What would you like/not like about living on this island?

Vocabulary work

Rewrite the words in italics with synonyms or near synonyms from the text.

- 1 The island is very small and peaceful.
- 2 You can run across it in ten minutes.
- 3 Sandy the mail carrier (who is also Muck's fisherman) will put it on the next boat.
- 4 It all feels wonderfully far from everything when you step off the ferry.

- 6 Colin is just 29, a huge powerfully built man, full of life.
- 7 You need courage to live here.
- 8 You meet the same people over and over again.
- 9 You may dream of giving up the busyness of town life.

On the northern side of the Isle of Muck, Catherine Murray-John is packing up the house that she and her four children have lived in for the past six years. Her departure creates a rare opportunity for one lucky (or brave?) family to begin a new existence on this windswept island in the Inner Hebrides.

Isle of Muck

The islanders of Muck are looking for a new family to live on the island.

For further details, please email info@isleofmuck.com

The private Isle of Muck has been owned and run by the MacEwen family for over 100 years. It is so teeny you can jog from one end to the other in ten minutes and so tranquil the loudest noise is the sound of the wind and the water against the rocks. Exquisitely beautiful, with white sandy coves, nesting puffins, and the occasional shoal of sharks, it is far removed from 21st century-style civilization.

It doesn't have a church. There's no police force (the last crime in living memory was in the Sixties). Post office? Forget it! If you have a letter to send, you can drop it into a box in the coast guard's hut, and Sandy the mail carrier (who doubles as Muck's fisherman) will put it on the next boat to the mainland. Muck does have electricity – it arrived in 1970 – but the TV works only from 8 a.m. to 11 a.m. and 5 p.m. until midnight.

“It all feels blissfully remote”

It all feels blissfully remote when you step off the Caledonian MacBrayne ferry after a two-hour ocean journey from the west coast of Scotland. You are welcomed by grazing sheep and kindly islanders collecting bulging cardboard boxes of provisions. The boat's arrival is a major social event.

Muck has a population of just 35: 23 adults, of whom eight are MacEwens, and 12 children. Since the news broke that Catherine was leaving, her phone hasn't stopped ringing with would-be islanders. But she warns those with romantic notions of island life to beware. “People think you can come here to escape all your problems. But you can't, they come with you.”

Catherine told the MacEwen family in April that she wanted to leave the island. She explains, “My second child starts high school in the fall, so we're moving.”

The man charged with deciding who will be allowed to move into one of the island's 13 houses is Colin MacEwen. He is just 29, a huge bear of a man, bursting with vitality, glowing skin, and a surprisingly un-Scottish accent. He says,

“We're eager to get a young couple or a family because it's so important to keep the island alive and also for the school. This year we had eight children; next year, if no one new comes, there will be only two. We're looking for practical people who have ideas about how to make a living here.”

The MacEwen family has a feudal level of authority over what goes on here. They own and rent out all the houses.

Muck hasn't always been so sparsely populated. In 1821, there were 320 people making a living on its 1,500 acres. But by the time it was sold to the MacEwens in 1896, it was much less crowded. By 1973, Muck's population had dropped to the teens and they made a similar appeal for a young family with children. Colin's father, the impressively bearded Lawrence MacEwen says,

“We don't really want people fresh from the south. They tend to be very idealistic. Running away from the towns is one thing, but you need guts to live here. When I was a boy, everyone here except our family spoke Gaelic.”

Certainly not everyone has found Muck to be the home of their dreams, but there are plenty of upsides to living in such a small community. The lack of crime, for one.

“We don't lock our doors”

“We don't lock our doors,” says Dave, who runs the B&B. “Most of them don't lock. I don't even know whether there's a key for ours.”

But the smallness of the island can magnify problems between its inhabitants. Lawrence says darkly about Catherine's departure, “There were other reasons, too.”

Island life can feel just a bit claustrophobic. You bump into the same people over and over again and you run out of small talk. In a closed environment like Muck, it's easy for relationships to become sour and disagreeable. You may dream of giving up the hustle and bustle of town life, but there is sometimes something restful about the anonymity of a big city.

No Time to Think

No time to think, no time to muse
 No time for anything but news
 No time to pause, no time to feed,
 No time for anything but speed.

No time to wander in the snow,
 No time to watch the flowers grow.
 But time enough to dash about
 And time enough to screech and shout.

Not time enough to love, love, love,
 But time enough to shove, shove, shove.
 And no time to laugh or have some fun
 No time to dawdle in the sun.

No time to rest and take a seat,
 No time to chat to folks you meet.
 No time to eat, no time to drink
 But most of all no time to THINK!

2 Read the letter. Answer the questions.

- Where was the letter written?
- Who is the guest? Who is the host?
- Which city is described? What is it like?
- What season is it?

3 Work with a partner. Find the mistakes and put the symbols on the letter. Then correct the mistakes. The first line has been done to help you.

4 Write a letter (about 250 words).

Either ...

You are going to stay with a family in an English-speaking country.

Or ...

An English-speaking guest is coming to stay with you.

Give some informat on about yourself – your family, interests, school, your town.

Check your work carefully for mistakes!

Dear James,

Thank you [∧] your letter. I ^T receive it the last week. Sorry I ^{Gr} no reply you ^T before, but I've been very busy. The holidays are soon, and everyone are very exciting!

In two weeks I am with you in California. I can no belief it! I looking forward meet you and your family very much. I'm sure we will like us very well.

My city, São Paulo, is biggest and noisest city in Brasil. Is not really for tourist. Is a center commercial. Also it have very much pollution and traffic. But there is lot of things to do. I like very much listen music. There are lots of places with music who stay open all night!

My friend went in Los Angeles last year, and he has seen a basketball game at the Staples Center. He said me was wonderful. I like to do that also.

My plane arrive to LAX at 6:30 a.m. in January 3. Is very kind you meet me so early morning.

I hope very much improve my english during I am with you! See you soon and happy New Year!

BOOKING REFERENCE: 4YFHTT (Travis and Rebecca Bronson)

Dear Sir or Madam:

I am writing to complain about a most distressing travel experience, which we believe was the direct result of your airline's mishandling of the situation.

Our family group of six were due to return from the vacation of a lifetime, departing Antigua for Chicago O'Hare, on flight QF 5612 at 7:40 p.m. on February 26th. Our son, Tom (7), having spent too long in the sun, was feeling a little unwell in the departure lounge. None of the adults present were overly concerned about his condition. Upon entering the aircraft, a member of the crew asked if our son was all right. We explained the situation and went to take our seats. The crew member returned with a thermometer and took my son's temperature. She said that it was 100.2°F (the normal body range is between 97°F and 100°F.) She left and we settled in our seats. My son was already feeling much better.

A few minutes later, she returned to say that she had contacted paramedics and since my son's temperature was above normal, we would have to leave the aircraft in the event he got sick during the flight. We were incredulous, pointing out that our son now felt fine. However, we were told that a series of events had been set in motion, which meant that the aircraft would not depart until we disembarked. This news caused great distress to my entire family, especially my son, and his four-year-old sister. However, we were reassured by the offer of guaranteed seats on the flight the following evening. In the end we disembarked, leaving our daughter with her grandparents.

We were taken to a hospital, where we spent three hours and $550 to get a letter stating that my son was safe to fly. We were shocked and dismayed to hear the doctor's disbelief that our son had been asked to leave the flight.

To add insult to injury, the next day there were no guaranteed seats. Due to the continuing distress of our children and pressing work engagements, we could not risk waiting for standby seats. Fortunately Delta Airlines came to our rescue, offering us flights to Midway that day via New York, JFK. Flights that cost $3,300.

In conclusion, I would ask you to provide a detailed explanation of your airline's lack of assistance and that you not only refund the expenses incurred, but also pay us compensation for the distress caused.

I enclose a letter from the doctor who examined my son and a detailed breakdown of all our expenses with receipts. I look forward to your swift reply.

Sincerely yours,

Travis Bronson

- 1 Have you ever been in a dangerous situation? Write some notes about what happened, where and when it happened, and who you were with. Discuss your notes with a partner and compare the situations.
- 2 Rewrite the sentences using the adverbs or adverbial phrases in parentheses. Sometimes they can be put in more than one place in the line.

My skiing disaster

 - 1 I used to go skiing. (in winter, frequently)
 - 2 I enjoyed going to Colorado. (with my family, especially)
 - 3 I had a bad accident. (two years ago, then, really)
 - 4 I skied into a tree. (headfirst)
 - 5 I broke my leg. (in three places, unfortunately)
 - 6 I'd like to go skiing again. (definitely, one day)
 - 7 But I don't feel confident. (yet, enough)
 - 8 My family goes skiing. (however, still, every February)

Read the completed story aloud with your partner.
- 3 Read through the story of two mountain climbers, Rachel Kelsey and Jeremy Colenso. Where were they? What went wrong? How were they saved? What does the text message mean?
- 4 Place the adverbs on the right of the story in the correct place in the same line (sometimes more than one place is possible). Add punctuation where necessary.
- 5 What background information are you given in the article? When does the actual story of what happened start?
- 6 Using the notes you made earlier, write the story of your dangerous experience (about 250 words).
 - Begin with background information.
 - Describe the events in the order they happened.
 - Make sure you use plenty of adverbs to describe people's feelings and actions.

Share your stories as a class, reading some of them aloud.

Texting to the rescue

On a mid-September day, climbers Rachel Kelsey and Jeremy Colenso were climbing in the Swiss Alps.

They were both experienced climbers. They left their base camp and the weather was good. They reached the summit, but as they started the climb down, an electric storm struck the mountain. Snow began to fall, making it difficult to see where they could put their hands and feet on the rock. After several frightening minutes, they found a narrow ledge and climbed onto it, hoping the snow would stop and they could continue their descent.

The snow did not stop and the temperature dropped to -10°C. "We had to stay awake," said Rachel, "because it was so cold that we would have died. So we told stories and rubbed our fingers and toes to keep them warm."

They decided that they had to get help. But what could they do? Rachel had brought her cell phone with her, but the only contact numbers she had were from her hometown, hours away. She sent a text message at 1:30 a.m. to get help. She sent the same text to five friends from home. It read: "Need heli rescue off north ridge of Piz Badile, Switz." They were all asleep, so nothing happened. At 5:00 a.m., one friend, Avery Cunliffe, got the message. He jumped into action, called the rescue services in Switzerland, and called Rachel to tell her that help was coming.

The weather was too bad for the helicopters to operate, but Avery kept sending text messages to the climbers. At about 10:00 p.m. they were lifted off the mountain. "We owe our lives to Avery," they said when they were back at the base camp.

JOHN F. KENNEDY

The Youngest Elected President of the U.S.A.

It is over 45 years (1) (since / after) John F. Kennedy, the thirty-fifth President of the United States, was assassinated. (2) (Although / However), theories concerning his death still fascinate the world.

On November 22nd, 1963, (3) (when / while) he had been in office just one thousand days, he was shot (4) (as / while) being driven through the streets of Dallas, Texas. Lee Harvey Oswald was charged with the killing, but (5) (before / when) he was put on trial, he was also murdered.

John Fitzgerald Kennedy, known simply as JFK, was born in Brookline, Massachusetts, on May 29th, 1917, the second of nine children of the millionaire Joseph P. Kennedy and Rose Fitzgerald.

(6) (Since / After) graduating from Harvard University in 1940, he entered the navy. In 1943 he was seriously injured (7) (when / while) his boat was sunk, but (8) (despite / even though) his injuries he rescued many of his crew, showing (9) (so / such) bravery that he was awarded the Purple Heart medal.

After the war, he became a Democratic congressman, joining the Senate in 1953. The same year he married Jacqueline Bouvier, the daughter of a wealthy Wall Street broker. She was stylish, attractive, and very popular, (10) (so / as) much so that her husband once said (11) (during / while) addressing an audience in France: "I am the man who accompanied Jacqueline Kennedy to Paris!" The couple had three children, Caroline, John Junior and Patrick, who lived only two days.

From 1956 (12) (until / when) he became President in 1961, his family worked tirelessly to support him. (13) (During / While) the election campaign millions watched his television debates with Richard Nixon, the Republican candidate. Kennedy won and his inaugural address is best remembered for the line: "Ask not what your country can do for you—ask what you can do for your country."

(14) (Despite / Even though) his term in office was short, there were many major events, including the Cuban missile crisis, the building of the Berlin Wall, and the space race. His death shocked the world. Subsequent presidents have employed more and more bodyguards (15) (in case of / unless) assassination. JFK was much loved. The NASA Space Center and New York's main airport were renamed after him.

Dear Mark,

I am applying for the position of camp counselor, which I saw advertised somewhere recently. Here's my résumé.

I guess I have just about everything needed for this job. I have worked lots with kids, doing all kinds of stuff. They generally do what I tell them, and we manage to have a great time together. Having studied psychology and education in college, I know quite a bit about the behavior of kids.

I am really into sports, and have lots of experience in organizing sporting events. I am a very practical person, easygoing, and it's no problem for me to make friends. I've been all over the place and enjoy meeting new people.

I can't wait to hear from you.

Your friend,

Kate Henderson

WRITING A SURVEY AND A REPORT

4 You work for a firm of marketing consultants. Your client is a supermarket chain. Your job is to find out if shoppers in your town would be prepared to buy more “fair-trade” products in the local supermarket. “Fair-trade” products cost more, because they pay the producers in developing countries a better price for their products.

- Think of four or five statements like the ones used in the survey for The Organic Burger Company.

I want to know where the things I buy come from.

SA A DK D SD

- Ask at least 20 people, either in your class or outside your class.
- Take data about age and gender (male/female).
- Add up the statistics.

5 Write the report (about 250 words). Use expressions from exercise 3, and use the structure of the report as a model.

- 1 Do you send emails? If so, who to and when? What emails have you received or sent recently? Discuss with a partner and then with the class.
- 2 Has email improved our lives? Brainstorm ideas about the pros and cons as a class. Divide the board into two columns. Appoint two students to take notes, one for each column.

PROS (+)	CONS (-)

Discuss your results. Overall, which side wins? What's your opinion?

- 3 Read through the article quickly. How many of the points you made are mentioned? How many other points did you make?

- 4 Study the article more carefully.
 - 1 How is the topic introduced?
 - 2 What personal examples does the writer include throughout the article?
 - 3 For each point on the plus side underline the words and expressions used to connect the ideas.
First of all, email is easy.
 - 4 Compare the words and expressions used to connect the ideas on the minus side. Which are similar?
 - 5 How is the article concluded? How does the writer express his opinion?
- 5 Brainstorm the arguments for and against one of the topics below. Then write an introduction, the pros, the cons, and your conclusion (about 250 words).
 - Texting
 - Social networking
 - FaceTime / Skype

Subject: Email – has it really improved our lives?

Email is an important means of communication. However, in my opinion, like most things it has both advantages and disadvantages.

+ On the plus side:

- First of all, email is easy. All you need is the appropriate software on your computer. There are no stamps to stick and no trips to the mailbox.
- A second point is that email is fast. No matter where you're sending your message, whether it's to the next street or to the other side of the planet, it takes only seconds to reach its destination. Nowadays, whenever I send regular mail (or snail mail as email users call it), I can't believe that it's actually going to take days to reach its destination. How primitive!
- Email is not only fast, it is also cheap. Unlike long-distance telephone calls, you pay no more for messages sent from the US to London in Ohio, London in Ontario, or London in England.
- Also, email messages are easily stored. Because they're electronic, saving an email message you've received (and calling it back up again later) is a breeze.
- In addition to this, email is environmentally friendly because being electronic, it saves natural resources such as paper.
- Last but not least, email is practically universal. Even my great aunt in Spearfish, South Dakota is using it these days.

- On the minus side:

- Firstly, email is impersonal. Unlike in face-to-face or telephone conversations, it's difficult to get across subtle meanings in email prose with no visual or voice clues.
- Secondly, it can be argued that email is in fact too easy. You can write a message in a few seconds and send it off with one click. And once sent, you can't get back a message that may have been written in a fit of irritation or anger.
- Another point is that email security is lax. As your email message makes its way to its destination, it has to pass through other, public systems. Anyone with the right technical know-how can intercept it without you knowing.
- Although, as stated above, it is an advantage that email messages are easily stored, this can also be a disadvantage. If you say nasty things about your boss in a message, a saved copy can come back to haunt you in the future.
- A final and very important point is that email can take over your life. Because it is so easy, you start getting more and more correspondence, and you end up spending most of your day reading and responding to floods of messages.

Overall, however, to my mind the pros of email easily outweigh the cons. It has transformed the world of communication in largely beneficial ways, and alongside text messaging and social media, it is now a major way of keeping in touch.

- 1 What's your favorite town or city? Why do you like it? Which parts of it do you particularly like? Work with a partner and tell them about it.
- 2 Do the words in the box describe something positive, negative, or neutral? Do they refer to a person, a place, or food? Or more than one?

picturesque	intellectual	brand-new snoring	a log	a haven
twisting	boutiques	mouth-watering
aromas	a magnet	flock (v)

- 3 Read the description of Greenwich Village in New York City. Which aspects of life in the Village do the pictures show?
- 4 Work with your partner and decide where you could divide the text into paragraphs. What is the purpose of each paragraph? Think of a heading for each one and compare them with others in the class.
- 5 The description is part fact and part opinion. Find examples of both.
- 6 Underline examples of relative clauses and participles.
- 7 Write a description of your favorite part of town (about 250 words). Use the paragraph plan to help you.

Paragraph 1: General / personal impressions

Paragraph 2: Its history

Paragraph 3: Its character

Paragraph 4: Conclusion and/or final anecdote

I live in Greenwich Village, New York, which is in the "downtown" (southern) part of Manhattan and includes Washington Square Park, New York University, and a maze of picturesque little streets. It's my favorite part of town. So why do I like it so much? It's an artistic and intellectual neighborhood with people playing chess in the park, artists selling paintings on the sidewalks, and students discussing life in coffee shops. Life in "the Village" is never dull. There's a surprise around every corner – maybe a brand new restaurant that wasn't there last week, a snoring student sleeping like a log on a park bench, or a celebrity being pursued by paparazzi and fans. A sense of history pervades Greenwich Village. It was first inhabited by Native Americans, then Dutch settlers, and then the British, who in 1713 named it "Greenwich" after a town in England. The Village really was a small, rural village until the 1800s, when people escaping outbreaks of disease began moving there. Ever since, the Village has been a haven for artists, writers, poets, and musicians. Many famous people have lived in Greenwich Village, including the writer Jack Kerouac, the singer Bob Dylan, and the actress Uma Thurman. The popular sitcom Friends was set here, and busloads of tourists looking for places mentioned in the show come here every weekend. The heart of the Village is an area of pretty, twisting streets west of Sixth Avenue, where there are endless theaters, used bookstores, coffee shops, trendy boutiques, and of course, restaurants. A large part of the Village experience has to do with food. The Village is packed with food shops and restaurants from every region of the world. Mouth-watering aromas are everywhere from first thing in the morning until late at night. The Village is a genuine 24/7 part of the town. Washington Square Park is like a magnet for young people. They flock from every corner of the world to sit on the benches or beside the fountain, talking, playing musical instruments, and celebrating the freedom of friendship and youth. My mother, who grew up in New York City, used to say that Times Square is for tourists, but the Village is the real New York City.

UNIT 9 WRITING FOR TALKING – An early memory

- 1 You are going to give a talk to the class about one of your earliest memories. Write some notes under these headings:
How old were you? Where were you? Who were you with?
What happened? Why do you remember it?
- 2 CD3 39 Read and listen to someone talking about an early memory. Answer the questions.
 - 1 How old was the speaker? What is her topic and name?
 - 2 What was her sister not happy about doing? Why?
 - 3 What did the speaker do to get her sister's attention?
 - 4 How did the weather affect both sisters?
 - 5 Why was the speaker so upset?
 - 6 What wouldn't "hold water" with the teacher?
 - 7 How would you describe the relationship between the two sisters?
- 3 Now read the talk carefully and answer the questions.
 - 1 There are five paragraphs. What is the aim of each one?
 - 2 What background information is given by the speaker?
 - 3 What are the main events of the particular memory?
 - 4 How does the speaker conclude the tale?
 - 5 Read aloud the first two paragraphs with a partner. Pay attention to pauses, stress, and intonation.

Preparing your talk

- 4 Write a talk to give your class using these guidelines and your notes.
 - 1 Give the title:
The title of my talk is ...
 - 2 Introduce your topic:
I'd like to share a particular memory about ...
One of my earliest memories was when ...
Today I want to talk about ... because ...
 - 3 Give some background:
As you all probably know, I ...
I was just four years old ...
What's more I ...
 - 4 Introduce your particular memory:
Anyway, one day it was raining and ...
What happened was this, ...
 - 5 Tell your story as it happened:
On that day ... After that I ... Finally, ...
 - 6 Conclude:
To this day I still remember ...
Thank you all very much for listening to me.
Are there any questions?

Some of my clearest and earliest memories are of my first school, so I'd like to share a particular memory about that. It's a memory that still upsets me after all these years.

I was four years old and had just started school. It was a long way from my house and there were no school buses, so I had to walk. My sister is eleven years older than me and her "big" school was next to mine, so my mom sometimes asked her to take me to school. She was not very happy about doing this. She didn't have time for a small, irritating sister dragging along behind her. She liked to meet up with her "cool" friends. What's more, because her school day started later than mine, she always wanted to dawdle and chat with her friends and she refused to hurry to get me there on time. I was always an anxious child, and I would tug at her sleeve and worry about being late. She'd just shake me off.

Anyway, one day was particularly bad and it has been burned in my brain ever since. It was pouring rain and we splashed through puddles as we walked. My sister was moaning the whole time about how the rain was ruining her hair because she was hoping to meet a certain boy on the way. On that day he didn't turn up and this put her in a very bad mood. I was wearing my new rain boots, and they were really difficult to pull on and off. I was full of fear – Miss Marks, my teacher, would kill me if I was late again.

Finally, we got there and my sister, suddenly energized, ran off, leaving me to cope with the boots. The locker room was empty and I sat tearfully on the bench tugging at the wretched boots. I put on my indoor shoes and crept into the back of the classroom. I was very late and very scared.

The other kids were making mosaic pictures with lots of different-colored pieces of sticky paper. I had been so looking forward to doing this. Art was my best subject, and I'd planned to do a beautiful portrait of my black and white cat. Miss Marks called across the room, "Elizabeth, late again! Where have you been?" I hung my head. I knew telling tales about my rotten sister wouldn't hold water with Miss Marks. "You'll just have to sit in the corner and do a puzzle." So I did, silently weeping and cursing my sister. I never did make a mosaic picture of my cat.

To this day my sister insists she can't remember anything about this. However, I believe it's the reason why, as an adult, I always make sure to arrive on time.

MICHELANGELO

TEXT A

- 1 Michelangelo had a great influence on the world of art. He was a sculptor, an architect, a painter, and a poet.
- 2 He was born near Arezzo, but he considered Florence to be his hometown. He loved the city's art, architecture, and culture.
- 3 He concentrated on sculpture initially. He began to carve a figure of David from a huge block of marble in 1501. He finished it in 1504, when he was 29.
- 4 Pope Julius II asked him to paint the ceiling of the Sistine Chapel later. He worked at this every day for four years from 1508 until 1512. He lay on his back at the top of high scaffolding.
- 5 He designed many buildings. His greatest achievement as an architect was his work at St. Peter's Basilica. Its revolutionary design is difficult to appreciate nowadays.
- 6 Michelangelo belongs to a small group of artists, such as Shakespeare and Beethoven, who have been able to express humanity's deepest experiences through their work.

TEXT B

- 1 Michelangelo, sculptor, architect, painter, and poet, had a tremendous influence on the world of art.
- 2 Although he was born near Arezzo, it was Florence that he considered to be his hometown. What he loved above all about the city was its art, architecture, and culture.
- 3 Initially, he concentrated on sculpture. In 1501, he began to carve a figure of David from a huge block of marble. This he finished in 1504, when he was 29.
- 4 Later, he was asked by Pope Julius II to paint the ceiling of the Sistine Chapel. To do this, every day for four years, from 1508 until 1512, he worked lying on his back at the top of high scaffolding.
- 5 He designed many buildings, but it was his work at St. Peter's Basilica – with a revolutionary design we fail to fully appreciate nowadays – that was his greatest achievement.
- 6 There is a small group of artists, such as Shakespeare and Beethoven, who, through their work, have been able to express the deepest experiences of humanity. Michelangelo belongs to this group.

1 Think of something that you looked forward to for a long time that finally happened.

- What was the occasion or event? Why did you want it so much?
- Did you have to make preparations for it? If so, what were they?
- What actually happened?
- Did it live up to your expectations or not?

Write some notes and then tell your partner about it.

2 Look at the picture and read the main points of Larry's story. Use them to say what happened.

Larry's dream to fly airplanes bought twenty balloons

a lawn chair

packed a few sandwiches and an air pistol cut the rope

floated around the winds were blowing

an airline pilot at 3,500 meters

a helicopter

a TV reporter

3 Read the full story and compare it with yours. Match these five headings with the correct paragraphs.

- Serious problems
- Preparing for takeoff
- Down to earth with a bump
- Larry and his dream
- Flying high

4 Read the story again and complete it with a correct linking word or expression from the box.

first of all	Finally	Eventually
However	Next	All day long
Then one day	until	By this time
As soon as	Immediately	Unfortunately in order to	so	because
Fortunately, just at that moment

5 Use your notes from exercise 1 and write your story (about 250 words).

6 Read each other's stories and ask and answer questions about them.

Larry follows his dream

- Larry Walters was a truck driver, but his lifetime dream was to fly airplanes. (1) _____ he would watch the fighter jets crisscrossing the skies above his backyard and dream about the magic of flying. (2) _____, he had an idea. He drove to the nearest hardware store and bought twenty large balloons and five tanks of helium. (3) _____, they were not the usual brightly-colored party balloons but heavy one-meter weather balloons used by meteorologists.
- Back in his yard, (4) _____, Larry used a rope to tie a chair to his car door. (5) _____, he tied the balloons to the chair and inflated them, one by one. (6) _____, he packed a few sandwiches and a bottle of soda, loaded an air-pistol, and climbed on to the chair. His plan was to float up lazily into the sky to about sixty meters, and then to pop a few balloons (7) _____ descend to earth again.
- His preparations complete, Larry cut the rope. (8) _____, he didn't float up, he shot up, as if he had been fired from a cannon! Not to sixty meters, but up and up and up, (9) _____ about 3,500 meters. If he had popped any balloons at this height, he would have plummeted to earth, (10) _____ he just had to stay up there, floating around and wondering what to do.
- (11) _____, night was falling and things were getting serious. Winds were blowing Larry out to sea. (12) _____ an amazed airline pilot spotted him and radioed the airport saying he'd just seen a man with a gun, sitting on a lawn chair at 3,500 meters. (13) _____ a helicopter was sent to rescue him, but it wasn't easy (14) _____ the wind from their rotor blades kept pushing the homemade airship further away. (15) _____, they managed to drop a line down from above, and pulled him to safety.
- (16) _____ he was on the ground he was arrested. A TV reporter shouted, "Hey, why did you do it?" Larry looked him in the eye, and said, "A man's got to follow his dreams."

- 1 Work with a partner. Describe a building you like in your town and one that you don't like. Do you know who the architects were?
- 2 Read texts A and B about Zaha Hadid, a famous Iraqi-born architect. Which text do you think has the best style? Why?
- 3 Read the texts again. In each paragraph, identify the differences in style. Find examples of:
 - paraphrasing using more interesting vocabulary, especially adjectives
 - changes in the order information is presented
 - avoiding repetition
 - joining sentences using:
 - a) conjunctions of contrast and purpose
 - b) participle clauses
- 4 Join these sentences using the words in parentheses.
 - 1 I got my degree. I went to work in Toronto. (after) (as soon as)
 - 2 I'm an architect. I notice a lot about the buildings around me. (Being)
 - 3 I went to work yesterday. I wasn't feeling well. (although) (despite) (nevertheless)
 - 4 I bought an apartment closer to my office. I spend less time commuting. (so that) (in order to)
 - 5 I came to Toronto. I made a lot of friends. (since)
 - 6 Sometimes I work in Rome. I like to visit the Colosseum. (whenever)
 - 7 I've taken some Italian classes. I can speak Italian with my colleagues now. (Having)
 - 8 The Shard was completed in 2012. It's the tallest building in London. (Completed)
- 5 Research a famous building in the world, ancient or modern. Write about the architect or the building. Write notes and use them to make a cohesive and interesting text.

- 1 Where is Tyler spending the year?
In London.
- 2 Is this his first trip abroad?
No, it isn't. He's been abroad once before. Last year he went to Mexico.
- 3 Where does Dave live?
In north London.
- 4 How long is Tyler going to stay with Dave?
A few days.
- 5 Why did the guy say "cheers" to Tyler?
Because he had let him pass.
- 6 Does he like his host family?
Yes, he does. He thinks they're very nice.
- 7 What are they doing on Sunday?
They're visiting Shakespeare's hometown.

CD1 4

- 1 How long has Teresa been in Africa?
Since last September.
- 2 What time does she start work?
Early, at seven o'clock.
- 3 What has she just bought?
A "piki-piki." It's a little motorcycle.
- 4 Where did she go last Sunday?
To a really awesome beach.
- 5 What's she going to take home?
Her collection of shells.
- 6 How many shells has she collected already?
Hundreds.
- 7 What did they do at the beach?
They barbecued fish and swam until the sun went down.
- 8 What's she sending to her parents?
She's sending some photos.

CD1 5

- 1 A Are you being helped, sir?
B Just looking, thank you.
- 2 I've heard that she's been seeing a lot of Patrick recently.
- 3 I'll be seeing Bill this afternoon – I'll tell him the good news then.
- 4 Apparently, he was driving 70 miles per hour around a curve when they stopped him.
- 5 I hadn't seen her since she was a little girl, and she'd completely changed.
- 6 Nobody will listen to him. He's the kind of guy who isn't believed by anyone.
- 7 I haven't been told yet if I have it. I'll be told in writing sometime next week.
- 8 He's been working such long hours recently. He never sees the kids.

CD1 6

- 1 A On weekends I often don't bother getting up 'til lunchtime.
B Me neither! Why bother if you don't have to?
- 2 A My parents have never ever had an argument.
B Really? Mine are at it all the time.
- 3 A I don't think I'll ever master this remote control.
B Well, don't ask me. I can't even find the on/off button.

- 4 A I was saying to a friend just the other day that I hadn't seen you for months.
B I know. How long has it been?
- 5 A I hate Mondays because nothing ever goes right on a Monday.
B Just Mondays? Aren't you the lucky one!
- 6 A I'd just gotten home last night when I realized I'd left my backpack on the bus.
B Well, you won't see that again.
- 7 A I was just getting ready to go out this morning when my grandmother called to chat. It's so frustrating.
B I know, and you feel really bad if you say it's not a good time.
- 8 A I've been told that our teacher wears purple pajamas in bed!
B Who on earth told you that?
- 9 A In my very first English class I was taught to introduce myself and say "hello."
B I was taught to say "The cat runs after the mouse," and stuff like that – useful, huh?
- 10 A The reason I'm learning English is because it's spoken all over the world.
B True. But isn't Chinese spoken by more people?

CD1 7

- 1 A Heard about Jane and John? Didn't think so.
B I always thought they got along really well.
A Apparently not. John's been seeing his ex-girlfriend.
- 2 A Leaving already? What's wrong?
B I just have a headache, that's all.
- 3 A Failed again? How many times is that?
B OK, OK. There's no need to rub it in! They say the best drivers fail three times.
- 4 A Sorry I'm late. Been waiting long?
B No, I just arrived myself. Got caught in traffic.
- 5 A Doing anything interesting this weekend?
B Yeah, if you call housework "interesting." I've just got to clean my apartment this weekend.
- 6 A Like the car! When did you get it?
B Actually, we've had it awhile. Used, you know.
- 7 A Bye, Jo! See you later.
B Yup. I'll come over about eight!
- 8 A Coming! Hang on!
B Get a move on or we'll go without you.
- 9 A Want a ride? Hop in.
B Great. Can you drop me off downtown?
- 10 A Seen Jim lately?
B No, I haven't. I wonder what he's up to these days.

CD1 8 Things I miss from home

Ramon

There's only one thing I really miss about where I come from and that's the Cañon de la Huasteca. I'm originally from Monterrey, Mexico and, although I came to live here in the US about three years ago, I still miss seeing the sharp, gray mountain ridges of la Huasteca. Where I live now, there are mountains, and I sometimes go hiking, or even skiing in the winter. They're OK, but they're not really the same. The thing about la Huasteca is that I spent a lot of time there with my school friends. In fact, my high school was pretty close to la Huasteca, so my friends and I hiked, rock-climbed, and played there almost every day. We had so many good times and I guess that's what makes it so special to me.

Lynda

The thing I miss about Southern California is probably the weather. I mean, over there, it's some of the best weather in the US. It's warm and dry during the day and cool, but not cold, at night. I find where I live now in Washington, DC, it gets so hot and humid in the summer and a little bit uncomfortable, too.

Peter

Yeah, I've been living in London for the last five years or so, and I guess the thing I miss most about the US, my original home, is probably what everyone who lives abroad misses the most ... food. For me that means Tex-Mex food, homegrown vegetables from my parents' garden like tomatoes and green beans, peanut butter and jelly sandwiches, and lots of ice in my soft drinks.

So, what else do I miss? This is going to sound weird, but I really miss convenience stores that are open 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. I miss being able to stop in at convenience stores at any time of the day, buying a carton of milk, filling up my car with gas, picking up some groceries, and getting a great cup of coffee all in the same place! I also miss the convenience of drive-thru ATMs.

On a more serious note, I miss being able to vote in person for local and national elections. There's something very humbling about casting your vote at your local polling station, especially when it's for a presidential election. Once you've been out of the country, you can still do it, but you have to vote by mail, and you have to make sure you ask for your absentee ballot about a month ahead of an election. So I still get to vote, but it's not quite as satisfying.

Joe

So things that I miss about the UK, ... the first would be bread. The bread here in the States seems to stay too fresh for a long time. And it doesn't actually make particularly good toast. And being British, toast is an important thing. And another important thing is related to work. I've found working in the US surprisingly different from the UK. In the US, it's very important to be very upbeat and positive about what you can do. Which, you know, is true to a certain extent in the UK, but I think in the UK it's kind of OK to be good at what you do, and just get on with it. Over here, you're kind of expected to be a salesman, you know, like you should be selling yourself and your abilities. I guess in a way the Brits are just a bit more modest at work, and I kind of like that modesty. I'm not particularly good at selling myself, I just like to get on with my job, and I don't feel the need to tell everyone how good I am. But that's kind of the way things are over here.

Adem and Leyla

A = Adem, L = Leyla

L One thing I miss, living in the US is the food from back home ... and the enjoyment of going to the pazar on Fridays to buy fresh fruits and vegetables or to buy fresh pomegranate juice. Not to mention that the fruits and vegetables are much cheaper in Turkey than they are here in the US.

- A Yeah, and I miss all the delicious food you can buy on the streets in Turkey, especially the kofte, which are like meatballs. And I also miss Turkish coffee. American coffee is OK, but there's nothing more satisfying than a cup of thick, sludgy coffee.
- L Oh, yes! I totally agree. It's difficult to find a good cup of Turkish coffee here. I keep buying it when I get the chance, but it's such a disappointment every time I buy one. There's nothing better than Turkish coffee and some friends to share it with.
- A Hmm, I agree! So, enough about food. What I miss most is the language. There's nothing quite like walking along a street and feeling like you're part of something bigger than yourself ... hearing your own language. I always feel kind of small when I'm abroad and all I hear is a foreign language. It's like I'm kind of insecure and I'm ... I'm missing something. It's hard to explain.
- L Yes, I know what you mean. I find it's also hard to be away from home on national holidays. Some of our traditions are just impossible to re-create. It's just hard because you don't have the same feeling of people coming together to celebrate familiar traditions.

Shaun

I live with my dad on the east coast, but I visit my mom in Florida many times during the year. The one thing I miss is my drums. So, I'm in a rock band, but I can't travel with my kit, so I have to leave it at home. Dude, it's like torture. I can't wait to get home to my dad's, and sit at my drums, and start playing again. My mom says I miss them more than I miss her.

- 1 A Do you think you could possibly water my houseplants for me? I'll be away on business for two weeks.
B No problem. I'd be happy to. I'll keep an eye on your whole apartment if you like.
A Oh, that would be great.
B Don't worry, I know how house-proud you are. I'll make sure everything stays neat and clean.
A I'll do the same for you any time, you know.
B Thanks.
- 2 A Julie, have you heard? Anna's just been promoted to managing director of the US branch of her firm, so she's coming back from the UK!
B Oh, that's great news! Let's give her a spectacular homecoming party when she gets back. Hmm. She certainly has the best career in our family!
A She's doing really well, isn't she?
B I know, and I'm happy for her. Me? I'm just a housewife. Four kids, homemade cakes, and homegrown vegetables!
A And how are my wonderful grandchildren?
3 A We're having a housewarming party on the 12th. Can you come?
B You bet. We'd love to! But I didn't know you'd moved.
A Yeah, two weeks ago. It's much bigger than the old one. Huge kitchen and three big bedrooms.
B Sounds great!
A Yeah. Of course, there's much more housework to do!
B That's a drag!

- 4 A Mom? Mom, I want to come home. I don't like it here.
B Oh, Max. Come on. You were looking forward to going to camp.
A But ... but Mom, I hate it here. Why won't you and Dad come and get me?
B Max, we can't. I never thought you'd be so homesick, and you'll be home in two days.
A Two more days?! Oh, no!
- 5 A Hey, you going to Carly's on Saturday?
B I don't know.
A It's an open house. It'll be great.
B Cool. Where are her parents?
A Carly says they're visiting her grandma – she's sick and housebound, so they have to help.
B OK. Count me in. I'll be there.

2 A Excuse me, don't I know you from somewhere?
B Actually, I don't think so.
3 A What do you mean you're not coming?
B Well, I just don't feel like going out tonight.
4 A I'll have the chocolate mousse. What about you?
B Actually, I don't think I'll have dessert.
5 A My roommate can't make it to your party.
B Really! That's too bad. I was hoping to meet her.
6 A How come you're not taking a vacation this year?
B We just can't afford it.
7 A You really should take it easy. You look stressed out.
B That may be. But I have a lot going on at work.
8 A I got you the last two tickets for the show.
B Oh, sweet! I knew you'd come through for us.

B Not me. I don't know anyone named Gavin.
A Well, someone who looked just like you was there.

- B Well, that may be, but it certainly wasn't me.
A I am sorry!
A Tony! Hi! Great to see you!
B Well, I was just passing through and I thought I'd drop by and say "hello."
A Come on in! Tell me what's new!
B You sure? You're not too busy?
A Never too busy to talk to you.
B Thanks, Jo. It'd be really nice to have a chat.
A Fantastic. Let me take your coat.

CD1 15 Marco Polo 1254–1324

Marco Polo was the first person to travel the entire 8,000-kilometer length of the Silk Road, the main trade link between Cathay (China) and the West for over 2,000 years. He was born in Venice, the son of a merchant. In 1271, when he was 17, he set off for China. The journey took four years. His route led him through Persia, Afghanistan, and Mongolia. He traveled by boat, but mainly on horseback, and he frequently got lost. He was met by the emperor Kublai Khan. He was one of the first Europeans to visit the territory, and he traveled extensively. He went over mountain ranges, down rivers, and across deserts. He stayed in China for 17 years. When he left, he took back a fortune in gold and jewelry. He arrived back home in 1295. He wrote a book called The Travels of Marco Polo, which gave Europeans their first information about China and the Far East.

Backpacker raises money for charity

Jake Ellis is in Singapore. He's on a nine-month backpacking trip around Southeast Asia. He flew into Bangkok five months ago. Since then, he's been to Laos, Vietnam, China, and Cambodia. But Jake hasn't been partying his way around the tourist spots. He's raised thousands of dollars for WaterAid by doing a sponsored bike ride from Saigon to Angkor Wat. He's learned a lot about history in Vietnam, seen amazing scenery in Laos, and visited ancient temples in Cambodia. He's been staying in cheap hostels, along with a lot of other travelers. "I've met a lot of really great people, but it hasn't all been easy. I've had diarrhea a few times, and I've been mugged once. That was really scary." Apart from that, his only worry is the insects. He's been stung all over his body. He's been traveling mainly by public transportation – bus, train, and ferry, but when he's been able to afford it, he's also taken the occasional plane.

He's been taking it easy for a week before setting off again for the Philippines. "Once you've gotten the travel bug, it becomes very hard to stay in the same place for too long," he said.

- 8 Where has he been staying?
In cheap hostels.
- 9 How much has he raised for charity?
Thousands of dollars.
- 10 Has he been sick?
Yes, he has, a few times.

They are ... one of the most eerie ... and strange experiences you can possibly have. The first time I saw them, they appeared as a kind of shimmering curtain, over the top of a ridge of mountains, and they went from a greeny color to a kind of purple-red color. And they just stayed there. The second time I saw them, it was the most amazing sight because they were right above our heads, and they covered the entire sky. The other interesting thing is that not everybody hears it, but they sometimes make a sound, a kind of buzzing noise. It was a real sense of wonder and awe. I just kind of sat there with my mouth hanging open, just feeling kind of small.

Bernie

It was around midday. About 30 of us set off. The weather was fantastic, not a cloud in the sky. We were all very excited. I don't think we really knew what to expect. There was a nervous kind of feeling among us. But then nothing happened at all for the first 20 minutes or so. We just sailed around, waiting for something to happen. Then all of a sudden the captain came over the loudspeaker and said, "I've spotted something!" So everyone got real excited and we ran to one side of the boat. And after a while, we spotted something in the water, but very far away, so we couldn't really see. And then suddenly, this huge, beautiful creature leapt out of the water, flipped around, and landed back in again with a splash. It was huge, I mean, really big. I don't think anyone was expecting it to be so big. It was really close and it did it again and again. And it was like once one had started, all the rest joined in. So eventually there were about six circling the boat. I think they were just curious about us. And they kept coming closer and closer. It was as if they were showing off, as if they were like putting on a show for us. We felt really emotional because they were such beautiful creatures. It was quite a privilege to see them. So, after about maybe half an hour we had to go back to land and everyone was left feeling really exhilarated. It was a joyful experience.

Carol

I went there with a Taiwanese friend of mine and we were really excited about going. The day before it had been absolutely boiling hot. So on the day we went, I was wearing like only a summer dress and sandals. And actually when we got there after a three-hour journey on a minibus, it was raining and really windy. So, we were freezing. There were these people selling these kind of ponchos for rain, which we bought, and then we climbed up and started walking along. It was amazing, but the section we were on was kind of ruined and really difficult to walk up. And, of course, I didn't have sensible shoes on, you know, because of the rain, and it was slippery. We were ... we were on the ridge of a hill and the wind was really gusting. And it was like catching my poncho and I could feel it blowing me along. And I really, really hate heights and we had this big drop right next to us, I was terrified. Of course, the view was spectacular ... stunning, you could see it kind of snaking up the hills, but I was just so frightened. I walked along a little bit, but then, you know, I got so scared again I just had to start heading back. And coming down ... I mean, with the rain, and the wind, and the slippery stones, and the bad shoes, it was ... it was terrifying. I came down some of the steps sitting on my bottom, bumping down one by one. I was paralyzed with fear and at one point I just stopped and then, this old woman, who was selling postcards and stuff, came up, grabbed my arm, and kind of walked me down, and I was so grateful. So, the main thing I felt at the end was huge relief. I think I'd like to go there again but in better weather and with, you know, sneakers or something a little more sensible on.

- 1 When you go for a job interview, it's important to make a good impression.
- 2 I think we're all getting tired. Can I make a suggestion? How about a break?
- 3 A lot of research has been done about the causes of cancer.
- 4 I think the CEO is basically doing a good job. He's reliable, he's honest, and he gets results.
- 5 I'd like to make it clear right now that I am totally opposed to this idea.
- 6 We can't make a profit in this business if we don't raise prices.
- 7 I don't mind if we go now or later. It makes no difference to me.
- 8 Could you do me a favor and lend me some money?

CD1 20

- 1 A She's made the big time as an actress. She can command $20 million a movie.
B $20 million? Nobody's worth that!
- 2 A We'll never make it to the airport in time. The traffic's really bad.
B Look! I think it's starting to move.
- 3 A What does she do for a living?
B She's a corporate lawyer.
A That sounds boring.
B Well, it might be boring, but she makes a lot of money!
- 4 A You'll all have to do more overtime and work weekends.
B That does it! I'm going to look for another job!
A Leave if you like, but it's the only way this business will survive.
- 5 A How much do you want to borrow? $50?
B Yes, that'll do.
A Just pay it back when you can. No hurry.
- 6 A How much Spanish do you speak?
B Well, I can make myself understood.
A Really? You sound pretty fluent to me.
- 7 A I hear the boss said that you'd done really well.
B Yeah. It really made my day.
A But did you get a bonus, too?
B No, just a pat on the back.

CD1 21

- 1 I'm so thirsty. I could do with a glass of water.
- 2 Your homework was full of mistakes. You'll have to do it over.
- 3 I think we should do away with pennies. You can't buy anything with them anymore.
- 4 I could never do without my assistant. He organizes everything for me.

CD1 22

- 1 Thieves broke into the museum and made off with jewelry and antique paintings.
- 2 Jake's parents buy him lots of toys. They're trying to make up for always being at work.
- 3 What do you make of the new boss? I like him a lot.
- 4 You didn't believe his story, did you? He made the whole thing up.

CD1 23

I'll never forget my first trip to Giza and the sight of those giant stone structures. They stand just on the edge of the desert, taking you back to the time of the pharaohs. But they're surprisingly close to modern buildings, too. I kind of expected them to be right in the middle of nowhere.

It's a fantastic city. We took a city tour on the first day to get a feel for the place, starting at the Reichstag. There's a viewing deck right at the very top of the building where you get incredible views of the surrounding area. We stayed on the old east side of the wall. Even though it's been unified since 1989, there is a different feel to the two halves of the city.

We were staying on the outskirts of the city, so we only had a day for sightseeing. We began at the Capitol Building and walked the two miles to the Lincoln Memorial at the other end of the mall. It's a kind of national park with gardens and lots of important museums like the National Museum of American History.

I wouldn't have missed it for the world. It really is one of India's must-see destinations. It's a magnificent white building, right on the banks of the river, so you get wonderful reflections in the clear water. We also spent some time in Jaipur – I loved the colorful streets in the very heart of the Old City.

CD1 24

We rented an apartment right in the center. The Grand Canal was just at the end of the street. It was wonderful to be in the very heart of the city.

CD1 25

- 1 A Hello?
B Hi, Leo. We've just stopped for gas. The GPS is programmed and we'll be on our way again soon.
- A Great, but I wouldn't rely on the GPS to find us. We really are in the middle of nowhere. Use the GPS until you get to the town of Clinton Hollow. Then head towards the town hall – there's a sign just before the river. Go over the bridge and follow the road around the bend. It's pretty narrow so there's a 20-mile-an-hour speed limit. Then go along that road for about a mile and there's a sharp turn to the left. Uh, that's the driveway down to the house. Drive right to the end of the driveway and that's where we are.

- B Gosh, that sounds kind of complicated.
A You'll be fine. It's only about a 15-minute drive from town. Call again if you get lost.

A Excuse me, sorry. How do I get out of here? I'm completely lost.

B Yeah, this place is kind of a maze. So, to get to reception, go along this corridor to the end, and turn right. Go past the photocopiers, then through the design department. There are some stairs on your left, or the elevator is just through the double doors. OK?

A Oh, um, yes, I think so. So go to the end of the corridor and turn left ...

B No, turn right.

A Yes, yes, that's what I meant.

B Good, good, well you can always ask again if you get lost.

A Yes, I will, thank you.

A Phil, I think we're going the wrong way. We walked past that statue about ten minutes ago.

B Don't panic, Andrea. I was born here. I know this place like the back of my hand.

A Heard that one before.

B Sorry?

A No, nothing. But I just want to find the diner before they stop serving lunch.

B It's fine. We just go across the square and it's one of the roads on the right.

A Oh, my feet are killing me.

B It's only about a five-minute walk. Just a little bit farther on and then on the right ... Yeah, this is it. ... Oh!

A Phil, this is a hair salon.

B Yes, thank you, Andrea, I can see that. I'm sure it's around here somewhere. Let's go back to the square.

A Or we could just check on my phone. It does have a GPS, you know. Phil? Phil!

UNIT 3

CD1 26

- A Who was the man?
B A 44-year-old Swedish man named Peter Skyllberg.
- A Who found him?
B A worker who was clearing the road.
- A Where was he when the accident happened?
B In northern Sweden.
- A When was he found?
B Last Friday.
- A How did the accident happen?
B He'd been driving on a forest road when he was caught in a snowstorm and he got stuck in snowdrifts.
- A How did he survive?
B By eating snow and keeping warm in a sleeping bag.
- A How is he now?
B He's recovering from hypothermia in a hospital.
- A What was the temperature?
B -30°C.
- A Why wasn't he found for 60 days?
B Because the road where he'd been driving was so remote.

CD1 27

A This is amazing.

B What is?

A Well, it says here that a 44-year-old man in Sweden was buried in snow for 60 days and he survived!

B 60 days! I don't believe it. Was he buried by an avalanche or something while he was skiing?

A No, no, he hadn't been skiing. He was driving his car, and it was snowing hard, and he got stuck in snowdrifts.

B But 60 days is over two months! How come nobody found him?

A Well, apparently he was on a remote road and his car was completely covered in snow.

B Like an igloo?

A Yeah.

B So, was he sitting in his car all that time?

A No, not sitting, lying. Fortunately he'd brought a sleeping bag and when they found him he was lying in that.

B Mmm ... Very fortunate. Why didn't anyone report him missing?

A I don't know. It doesn't say.

B I'm not sure this story's true. Did he have stuff to eat?

A No, he said he'd eaten nothing but snow. He was really thin when they found him, emaciated it says here, and he had hypothermia.

B I'm not surprised. I just don't believe it's possible to live without food for 60 days, and it's strange that nobody missed him. I think there's more to this story than meets the eye.

CD1 28

- He disappeared nine months ago.
- He'd been living in the forest since May.
- The car looked like an igloo.
- He hadn't spoken to his family.
- They hadn't been trying to find him.
- He wasn't discovered until February.

CD1 29 Here is the news!

Good evening. I'm Pete Mitchell, and here's the news at six o'clock.

One of Britain's richest men, the billionaire cell phone tycoon John Caudwell, was left bruised and bloodied after being attacked during a robbery at his 16th-century mansion in Staffordshire. Mr. Caudwell, 57, was beaten with a crowbar, and then tied up by a gang of masked men. The men then turned on his glamorous fiancée, former model Claire Johnson, 41.

Mr. Caudwell and Miss Johnson had been talking in the kitchen when the gang struck at 8:15 p.m. on Monday. The men, wearing dark clothes, stole money and jewels before escaping on foot across fields behind the house.

The couple, who have a six-year-old son, were treated by paramedics at the scene before being taken to a hospital. Mr. Caudwell had suffered a gash to his forehead and bruising to his arms.

Yesterday, about a dozen police officers were using metal detectors to search for clues on the grounds surrounding the property. Today, a 48-year-old man was arrested in connection with the robbery.

CD1 30 And finally – an amazing achievement!

American stuntperson and trapeze artist, Nik Wallenda, is the first person ever to cross a gorge near the Grand Canyon on a tightrope. Nik, 34, wearing shoes especially made by his mother, but without a safety harness, took just 22 minutes to walk from one side of the gorge to the other. With strong winds and dust blowing into his eyes, he seemed to lose his balance twice. He sat down but he got up again and kept going to the end. He was greeted by cheers as he stepped safely back onto land. The walk was watched by a global television audience of several million.

Daredevil Nik already holds seven world records including the longest walk over a waterfall, which he achieved last year when he crossed Niagara Falls.

CD1 31

- A What did he do that was so amazing?
B He crossed a gorge near the Grand Canyon on a tightrope.
- A Has anyone done this before?
B No, never. He's the first.
- A What was he wearing?
B Shoes his mother had especially made for him.
- A What wasn't he wearing?
B A safety harness.
- A How long did it take?
B It took him just 22 minutes.
- A What was the weather like?
B Not good. There were strong winds that created a lot of dust.
- A How many people watched him?
B There was a global television audience of several million.
- A What did he do the year before?
B He walked across the Niagara Falls.

CD1 33 The Clinging woman

Host

It's five to midnight. And tonight, we begin our new bedtime story. It's by a famous crime writer and author of many psychological thrillers, Ruth Rendell – one of her best known short stories ... The Clinging Woman!

The Clinging Woman, Part 1

The girl was hanging by her hands from the railings of a balcony. The balcony was on the twelfth floor of the high-rise building next to his. His apartment was on the ninth floor and he had to look up to see her. It was six thirty in the morning. He had been awakened by the sound of an aircraft flying dangerously low overhead, and had gotten out of bed to look. His sleepy gaze, descending from the blue sky which was empty of clouds, empty of anything but the bright vanishing arrow of the aircraft, alighted – at first with disbelief – on the hanging figure.

CD1 34 See p. 23

Part 3

She said, "I'm Lydia Simpson. You saved my life. I've come to thank you."

His embarrassment was acute. "Uh ... you shouldn't have," he said with a nervous smile.

"You really shouldn't. That's not necessary. I only did what anyone would have done."

She was calm and tranquil, not at all his idea of a failed suicide. "But no one else did," she said.

"Won't you come in? Uh ... have a drink or something?"

"Oh, no, no thank you. I can see you're just going out. I only wanted to say thank you very, very much."

"It was nothing."

"Nothing to save someone's life? I'll always be grateful to you."

He wished she would either come in or go away. If this went on much longer, the people in the other two apartments on his floor would hear, would come out, and another of those bravest-deeds-of-the-year committee meetings would be convened. "Nothing at all," he said desperately. "Really, uh, I've almost forgotten it."

"I will never forget, never."

Her manner, calm yet intense, made him feel uncomfortable and he watched her retreat into the elevator – smiling pensively with profound relief. Luckily, they weren't likely to meet again. The curious thing was that they did, the next morning at the bus stop.

Host

And there we leave the story for today. Tune in tomorrow at the same time to find out what happens next. In the meantime, goodnight to you all.

CD1 36

Amy

Basically, it's a love story, but it's also a very funny and witty book. It's really about overcoming prejudice and accepting people for who they are. What I love is the interaction between Elizabeth Bennett and Mr. Darcy – both extremely proud, but secretly in love.

Lucas

It's just a classic superhero story, set in the modern day. The Joker is back and it's up to Batman to save Gotham City from its impending doom. It's a thriller with fast-paced action and great special effects. It's worth watching.

Martina

It's pretty old now, but it's become a classic. It gives a troubling vision of the future and, I guess, it's a kind of a warning about depending too much on technology. It was pioneering movie-making of its day – none of the special effects had ever been done before, and its use of color gave it a really special atmosphere.

Adam

From the moment the professor finds the body of the curator in the Louvre, you just have to find out what happens. The whole mystery of the murder and the clues and the puzzles keep you reading. And most of the chapters end with a cliffhanger, so it's a real page-turner.

CD1 37

L = Lucy, R = Rachel

L Hey, Aunt Rach, here's that book you lent me. I know it's one of your favorites.

R Oh, you can keep it if you like, or pass it on. I have it on my Kindle now for reading.

L What? You have a Kindle?

R Yeah. I'm surprised you don't have one.

L I do have one – at least I have a tablet – it does the same kind of thing.

R Is that right? Well, I love my Kindle.

L But Aunt Rach, you always said you hated the idea of reading books on a screen. You said you liked turning real pages.

R I know, I know, ... I was a real skeptic, but your uncle bought me one for my birthday and as soon as I'd downloaded my first book I just fell in love with it. It's like I have a whole library in my bag.

L Well, you were the last person I'd have thought of as a Kindle fan. You were the one who gave me my love of books. I used to love going to the local bookstore and the library with you when I was a kid.

R I know, Lucy. I loved those times, too. And I really don't want the local bookstore or library to close. But you know I travel a lot for my work and my Kindle doesn't weigh down my luggage like my books did. And it's so much cheaper too ...

L Yeah, I know ... downloads are about half the price of printed books and ...

R ... and I don't have to plan in advance what I want to read.

L Sure, I can see all that, but I've just always thought of you as my "book auntie," that's all.

R Well, I still am, just in a different way. Anyway, I thought you students were supposed to be permanently plugged in to one gadget or another.

L Yeah, you're right. I spend half my life on my computer at school and the other half on my smartphone or tablet, but I like a break from the screen sometimes.

R Mmmm ... I can see that, but ...

L Yeah, just curling up in bed with a good novel or sitting reading in the sun – it's my idea of heaven. Screens aren't much good in the sun.

R Well, yes ... but my Kindle's great for reading in bed and ...

L OK, OK Aunt Rachel. I get it – you're a complete convert.

CD1 38

G = Greg, E = Eddie

G Hi, Eddie. Did you have a good weekend?

E Yeah, Greg. Not bad thanks. I saw a good movie with some friends. There was a trailer for a 4D movie. It looks amazing.

G 4D? I thought most people had given up on 3D. The last 3D movie I saw was Avatar. Well, that was pretty impressive, but since then most 3D movies seem like a waste of time. And those silly glasses just drive me crazy.

E Yeah, I know what you mean, but this 4D idea sounds pretty cool. The seats in the theater move and vibrate to match the action on the screen. So you get a more intense experience, especially from an action movie.

G Yeah, I'm not sure about that. You might end up covered in soda or ice cream. To be honest, I can't remember the last time I actually went to the movie theater. It costs a fortune. Give me a download to my laptop any day.

E Oh, come on. You can't beat the group experience of going to the movie theater. What I love is knowing the whole room of people is feeling the same thing.

G Mmm, for me, the people are the problem. I always end up behind someone who talks through the whole thing. Or they eat chips or popcorn. What I like about downloading is watching a movie when it suits me, you know, and in peace and quiet.

E Yeah, streaming a movie to your laptop or TV at home is OK, but you know a lot of movies were created for the big screen – the color, the sound, everything needs to be on a big scale.

You can't watch something like that, you know like Star Wars on a tablet or a smartphone.

G Yeah, you have a point there. Some movies are better at the theater, but I still don't enjoy the experience much. And my girlfriend, Lisa, and I can never, ever agree on what to watch. So she watches her movies on the TV, and I watch mine on the laptop.

E Oh, you old romantic!

G That sounds awful, I know, but Lisa's into all these black-and-white foreign films. It's all too heavy for me, and I just find those subtitles too distracting.

E Not all foreign films are in black and white, and full of misery, you know. There are some really, really great comedies and thrillers. You know what? I'll lend you a few of my DVDs.

G OK, yeah, fair enough, that's a deal. Maybe I'll surprise Lisa and take her to a foreign film festival.

E One step at a time, Greg, one step at a time.

CD1 39

A Jade's got a new boyfriend.

B A new boyfriend? Good for her!

A Apparently, he lives in a huge beach house.

B Does he? How amazing!

A Yes. She met him in Mexico.

B In Mexico? That's interesting.

A Unfortunately, he can't speak much English.

B He can't? I thought everyone could these days!

CD1 40

1 A Sam wants to apologize.

B He does?

A Yes. He's broken your precious Chinese vase.

B My precious Chinese vase? Oh, no!

2 A We had a terrible vacation.

B You did?

A Yes. It rained all the time.

B It did?

A Yes. And the food was disgusting!

B It was? What a drag!

3 A I'm broke.

B You are? How come?

A Because I just got a phone bill for $300.

B $300? Why so much?

A Because I have a girlfriend in Korea.

B You do? How interesting!

4 A It took me three hours to get here.

B It did?

A Yes. There was a traffic jam ten miles long.

B Ten miles long? That's awful!

A Now I have a headache!

B You do? Poor thing. I'll get you something for it.

5 A I'm on a mountain, watching the sun set.

B You are?

A Yes. And I have something very important to ask you.

B You do? What is it? I can't wait!

A You'd better sit down. I want to marry you.

B Marry me? Wow!

UNIT 4

CD2 2

1 Oh, dear! It's not that I dislike him, I just don't love him. How can I tell him I don't want to marry him without hurting his feelings? Trouble is I actually really like his best friend!

- 2 There's this group of kids – they're always chasing me, and I don't think it's for fun. But I can't tell my mom and dad – if they find out, they'll go to the principal and complain and that would make everything worse.
- 3 How do you tell someone when they look awful? That dress doesn't suit her at all. But I don't know how to tell her, she obviously thinks she looks great in it.
- 4 Emma and I are going out tonight, but I can't tell my dad – he'd kill me. I have an important exam next week and I haven't done a thing for it. I don't have a clue when I'll be back.
- 5 I know I'm not really sick. But it's a beautiful day, and I don't want to sit in a stuffy office all day. I'm off to play golf. I never have days off.
- 6 I don't care who it is. I had a late night and I feel awful this morning. I don't want to be disturbed by anybody right now, even if it is urgent.

- 1 A Don't you like ice cream?
B I do, but I'm on a diet.
- 2 A Don't you have a smartphone?
B Of course I do. Doesn't everyone have one?
- 3 A Can't you swim?
B No, I can't. I've always been afraid of water.
- 4 A Isn't it your birthday today?
B Yes, it is. I try to keep it quiet these days.
- 5 A Didn't you work in New York for a while?
B Yes, I did. It was a great couple of years.
- 6 A Don't you live on Baker Street?
B No, we used to, but we moved just around the corner last year.

CD2 5

Part one

My friend Fred is a funny guy. He's an insomniac, he's dyslexic, and he's an atheist. He's single, unemployed, and lives all alone in a tiny studio apartment without even a pet for company. Also, he's vegetarian. He's pretty antisocial, actually.

CD2 6 See p. 28

CD2 7

Part two

I went over to see Fred last Sunday. As I walked up the driveway, his dog started barking. His wife answered the door, and she called for Fred to come downstairs and join us in the living room. He was in a bad mood because he had overslept that morning and had been late for church. They'd had a wild party at his house the night before. They'd had a barbecue in the backyard with steaks and burgers. One of his favorite pastimes is doing crosswords, and he spends every lunch break at work doing them.

"So how are you, Fred?" I asked him.

"OK, my friend, OK. How about you?"

Anyway, as I said, Fred's an insomniac, dyslexic, atheist. So the joke is that he lies awake all night wondering about the existence of dog. Get it?

- 7 What are you thinking about?
- 8 What do you need it for?

CD2 9 Secrets and lies

Host

Now, it's that time again in the show when we hear your guiltiest secrets and your most terrible lies. Yes, it's Confessions time. Be prepared for astonishing admissions before you decide who can be forgiven. Our first caller is Robert from New Hampshire. Time to get your secret off your chest, Robert.

Robert

Well, Larry. I'm ashamed to say, but during my final year at school, and it was a long time ago, we had to take a final exam in each of our classes. Our history teacher was a miserable man named Mr. Roper. Now, Mr. Roper was never the most encouraging of teachers, well, he often told us that we were no good and would make sure that our final exam was too difficult to pass so that we couldn't graduate. Anyway, one day, just before our final exam, he excused himself from our history class and, unusually for him, he didn't lock his desk. So, with my fellow classmates watching intently, I took it upon myself to go to the front of the class and look inside his desk. There, like a glistening treasure, were a fresh stack of our final exams. Keeping an eye on the classroom door, I read aloud all the questions to my eager audience. I had never known them to be so silent or attentive! I then quickly replaced the paper and returned to my seat. Mr. Roper came back into the classroom to find the whole class looking quietly studious. Well, you can imagine, the result was that everybody passed the final exam with flying colors. The school had never known such wonderful results, and Mr. Roper was complimented on the high quality of his teaching. I ask forgiveness, please, for letting 30 students pass a final history exam that they otherwise would not have passed. However, some of them did go on to become industry leaders, and have careers as CEOs and judges.

Host

Oh, Robert, that was a naughty thing to do, but we have all been tempted when it comes to final exams. Now, on to Kevin from Massachusetts.

Kevin

Yeah, alright, Larry, now I am a big Boston Red Sox fan, and a few years ago found myself in the awkward situation of marrying into a family of diehard New York Yankees fans. One Saturday afternoon, I was at home relaxing, watching a sports report, while my then four-year-old daughter was at the other end of the sofa, coloring. She suddenly looked up at me and asked, "Daddy, what baseball team do you root for?" I told her the Boston Red Sox, and her next words made my blood run cold. "Really? I root for the Yankees." I was horrified. The thought of my darling daughter becoming a Yankees fan was just too much, so without really thinking, I replied, "Well, that's a shame because Santa Claus does not visit children who root for the Yankees." My daughter looked at me in horror, and I realized the full weight of the statement I'd just made. The natural thing to do at this point would have been to give her a hug and tell her that Daddy was only joking. But instead I gave her a hug and told her not to worry, as all she needed to do was to become a Red Sox fan, and I would call Santa Claus and she'd be back on his good list.

I would like to beg forgiveness from my lovely daughter for any sleepless nights I may have caused her.

Feel better now, Kevin? I really hope your little girl isn't scarred for life. So, moving on to the ladies. Surely they can't have such a shocking secret. Let's hear from Jane and find out. Jane from San Francisco.

Jane

When I was 15, I tried to earn some extra money by working at a local restaurant. This restaurant was very famous for an incredible fish soup, which was served with secret ingredients. I'd been given a little to try once, and it really was delicious. One night, when a table ordered the special dish, I was called by the chef to pick it up from the kitchen. It smelled absolutely fantastic and my mouth started watering. Between the kitchen and the restaurant, there was a small corridor, not visible from the kitchen or the dining area. The temptation was too great. I balanced the heavy soup dish in one hand, lifted the spoon with the other, and poured the soup into my mouth. What I hadn't considered was that the soup would be scalding hot! There I was in the corridor, unable to scream or make any noise. The boiling liquid began peeling the skin away from the roof of my mouth and I was in agony. Terrified that the chef's wife would catch me, I did the only thing I could – I spat the soup back into the dish. Then I heard footsteps from the kitchen. There was no other option. I put my shoulders back, walked confidently out into the restaurant, and started to serve the soup to the poor unsuspecting diners, who had no idea that there was a little extra ingredient among the mussels and monkfish.

I ask forgiveness for my dreadful deed. I learned my lesson and never did it again!

Host

Yuck! All I can say to you, Jane, is remind me never ... ever to order the soup when I'm in San Francisco. And our final caller is Maggie from Oregon. What, dear Maggie, is your guilty secret?

Maggie

Hello, there. When I was an au pair working in France, I used to travel by bus and ferry. It was a long and difficult journey and I preferred to travel at night in the hope of sleeping most of the way. Usually, I was lucky enough to sit next to someone who, like me, just wanted to get some shut-eye. But, on one particular occasion, I found myself squashed into a corner by a large, smelly, talkative man. I politely engaged in conversation, hoping that he would eventually give up, but he didn't. Finally, between Calais and Paris, the bus made a pit stop and many of the passengers got off to stretch their legs. Um, after walking around for ten minutes, I got back on the bus. There was no sign of my neighbor. The driver asked if everyone was back on board, but uh ... I couldn't speak. Maybe it was the prospect of some much-needed peace and quiet, but I said nothing. Maybe he'd only been going this far anyway? Then I looked out of the window and saw the man running across the parking lot, waving frantically as we drove off into the night. I never even attempted to get the driver to stop. I couldn't think of a good reason why I hadn't noticed the man was missing in the first place. So, when I got off the bus in the cold light of dawn, I disappeared before the driver realized that the man wasn't there.

I now meekly seek forgiveness for leaving a poor man stranded in a foreign highway service station in the dead of night. I have been haunted by the vision of him running after us ever since.

Host

So, there you have it, dear listeners, today's four fibbers and wrong-doers. Who, if anyone, can we forgive?

CD2 10

- A Gary's a really successful businessman.
B Well, he's a complete failure as a father. He never sees his kids.
- A My grandpa's so generous, he gives me $20 every time I see him.
B You're lucky! My grandpa is famous for his stinginess. I'm happy if he gives me $5 for my birthday, if he even remembers.
- A Well, Henry, I'm pleased there's been some improvement in your behavior this semester, but unfortunately your work has gotten worse.
B I guess I didn't do well on the test, then.
- A You're not going bungee jumping! It sounds really dangerous.
B No, honestly, it's perfectly safe as long as you're careful.
- A Our teacher is always criticizing us. I feel useless.
B I know. He should give us more encouragement if he wants us to work hard.

CD2 11

- A What a boring party!
B You're right, it wasn't exactly an exciting evening.
- A I don't know about you, but I thought the vacation was awful.
B Well, it wasn't the most fun I've had.
- A I can't believe how stingy Jane is!
B Mmmm, well, she isn't known for her generosity.
- A How can you root for the Hillside Hoops? They're a hopeless basketball team!
B Well, they're not the most talented around, that's for sure.

CD2 13

- A This is a present for you.
B For me! Oh, how nice! You shouldn't have, really. Thank you so much.
C This is a present for you.
D Thanks.
- A Can you come to a party on Saturday?
B No, I can't.
C Can you come to a party on Saturday?
D Oh, I'm so sorry! I'm already going out, I'm afraid.
C Oh, never mind!
D Thanks for the invitation.
- A Excuse me! Do you mind if I sit down here?
B No, not at all.
C Is anyone sitting here?
D No.
- A Can you give me a hand? I need to carry this box upstairs.
B OK, if you like.
C I wonder if I could possibly ask you a favor? Would you mind helping me with this box?
D No, not at all.

- A So I said ...
B Excuse me? I didn't catch that. What did you say?
C So I said ...
D What? Speak up!
- A Goodbye. Thanks for a wonderful evening. We had a great time.
B We enjoyed it, too. We're so glad you could make it. Safe trip back. See you soon.
C Bye, thanks again. You have to visit us next time.
D We'd love to. Good night. Take care.
E Goodbye. Thanks for dinner.
F Bye. See you whenever.

CD2 14

- A Do you think you could give me a ride to the train station?
B I'm really sorry I can't. I have to be at work by 8:30. I'll call a taxi for you though.
- A Could you possibly help me find my glasses? I can't find them anywhere.
B Sorry! I'm afraid I have to run or I'll miss the bus. I'm hopeless at finding things anyway.
- A Hi! Listen, would you like to come over for dinner tomorrow evening? I'm making Chinese food.
B Oh, I'd love to, but I'm afraid I'm already going out.
A Oh, too bad! Another time, maybe.
- A Would you mind lending me your dictionary?
B I would if I could but I'm afraid I forgot to bring it with me today. Sorry.
- A Hi, it's Susan. Could I ask you a big favor? I wonder if you could take care of my dog next week? I'm going on vacation.
B I'm really sorry, Susan, but I can't. I'd love to have Molly, you know I adore dogs, but I'm going away myself for a few days.
- A Do you happen to know where the bathroom is?
B Sorry, I'm afraid I have no idea. Ask the guy selling hot dogs. Maybe he'll know.
- A Would you like me to help you with this exercise? I think I know the answers.
B That's really kind of you but I want to try and figure it out for myself. Thanks anyway.

CD2 15

- A = Anna, B = Ben, H = Henry, L = Luciana
- B Luciana! Hello! Great to see you. Come on in. Let me take your coat.
- L Thanks so much. Oh, these are for you.
- A Oh what pretty flowers! How kind of you! Thank you so much. Now, I don't think you know Henry? Let me introduce you. Henry, this is Luciana.
- H Hello, Luciana. Nice to meet you. I've heard a lot about you.
- L Oh, I hope it was all good!
- H Where exactly are you from, Luciana?
- L Well, I'm Argentinian. I was born in Buenos Aires, but I've been working in the US for the last couple of years.
- H That's interesting. And what are you doing in London?
- L Work, I'm afraid. Actually, I'm on my way to Amsterdam for a conference, and I thought I'd stop over in London to see Anna and Ben. We used to work together in New York.

- H And how do you find London, Luciana? Is it like home, or is it very different?
- L Well, it's very different from Buenos Aires and New York! I know London pretty well, actually. I always love it here.
- B Now, Luciana. What would you like to drink?
- L Oh, do you have coffee? No, sorry, I'll have a glass of sparkling cider, if that's OK.
- B Good choice! I'll get that for you.
- L Thanks.
- A OK, everybody. Dinner's ready. Come and sit down. Luciana, can you sit next to Henry?
- L Yes, of course.
- B Does everyone have a drink? Great. Cheers, everybody!
- L Cheers! It's great to be here.
- A Luciana, help yourself. Would you like some cheesy parsnips?
- L Cheesy parsnips? I don't think I've ever heard of them. What are they?
- A Well, they're parsnips coated in parmesan cheese and roasted. Would you like to try some?
- L Well, I'd love to but I'd better not - cheese doesn't always agree with me.
- B How about another glass of sparkling cider?
- L No, thanks very much, I still have some. But do you think I could have a glass of water?
- B Yes, of course. Sparkling or still?
- L Uh, just tap water will do. That's great. Thanks a lot.
- A Well, bon appetit everyone!

UNIT 5

CD2 16

- I took the SATs a few months ago and luckily I got a good score, so I'm going to study psychology at Boston University. Classes start in August.
- It's sunny tomorrow, so I'm going to see a soccer game with my friends. The Red Bulls are playing the Galaxy. It'll be a great game. It starts at 4 o'clock, so we'll grill some hamburgers and hot dogs in the stadium parking lot before the game.
- Maria's having a baby soon, so we're both very excited. The baby's due in five weeks. If it's a boy, we're going to name him Max. And if it's a girl, she'll be Leah.
- What am I doing tomorrow, you ask? Well, it's Thursday tomorrow, so I'll be doing what I always do on a Thursday. My daughter will come to see me, and she'll be bringing the little ones, and we'll all have a cup of tea and a nice, long chat. And I'll bake a cake. A strawberry cake. They like that.
- Right now I'm packing, because tomorrow I'm going to study in Australia for six months. My plane leaves at 8:00 p.m. My mom and dad are taking me to the airport. I have absolutely no idea how I'm going to carry all this stuff!
- Well, I work in the city. In the next few years I'm going to be even more successful. I hope I'll be earning twice what I'm making now. I've set myself this goal: before I'm 25 I'll have made a million dollars!

- 1 I'm very excited. I'm going to see all of my family this weekend. I don't know if I have time to come this evening. I'll see.
- 2 So you're off to India for a year! What are you going to do there? I'm sure you will pass your exams, but what will you do if you don't?
- 3 I'll come with you if you like. I'm coming with you whether you like it or not.
- 4 Your first-quarter grades are terrible. What are you going to do about them? What are you doing this evening?
- 5 I've had enough of her lazy attitude. I'm going to give her a good talking to. I'm giving a presentation at 3:00 this afternoon. I'm scared stiff.
- 6 John! Peter is leaving now. Come and say goodbye. The bus leaves at 9:00, so don't be late.
- 7 I'll see you outside the movie theater at 8:00. I'll be seeing Johnny this afternoon, so I'll tell him your news.
- 8 You'll have seen enough of me by the end of this vacation. I'm going to make a success of my life. You'll see.

CD2 20 This is your captain speaking ...

Good afternoon ladies and gentlemen. Welcome aboard this Virgin Atlantic flight to Boston. In a short time we'll be taking off. When we've reached our cruising speed of 575 miles per hour, we'll be flying at 37,000 feet. Our flight time today is six and a half hours. We'll be coming in over Newfoundland before heading down the coast to Boston. We arrive in Boston at about 5:45 US time.

The cabin crew will be serving an evening meal during the flight. If you need any assistance, just press the call button and a flight attendant will come to help you. In case of turbulence, will you please keep your seat belt fastened when you're in your seat.

In a few moments the cabin crew will be coming around with duty-free shopping. They will also be giving out landing cards for those who need them.

In 20 minutes we will be starting our descent into Boston's Logan International Airport where the temperature is a chilly 37°F, and for the folks from the UK on board that's 3°C, with a chance of snow. Please put your seats in the upright position and remain seated until the plane has come to a complete standstill. We hope you will fly again soon with Virgin Atlantic.

- 1 Do you think you'll ever get a job? I hope so. I might one day. It's possible, but I doubt it. I'm sure I will. I'm sure I won't.
- 2 Are you going out tonight? Yes, I am. I think so, but I'm not sure. I might be.
- 3 Do you think the world's climate will change dramatically in the next 50 years? I don't think so. I hope not. Who knows? Maybe.

CD2 22 A NEET solution

The term NEET is used to refer to people who are "Not in Employment, Education, or Training." In the US, NEETs are usually defined as being between the ages of 16 and 24. The 2013 US figure is estimated at six million, which is approximately 15% of this age group. In Mexico, for 15–29 year olds, the number is approximately 7.5 million, although there are huge differences across countries. These range from 13% in Canada to about 35% in Turkey. The estimated annual cost to the US per year is about $37,000 per NEET youth.

Figures for the EU reveal similar challenges. In the UK, the 2014 figure stood at 13.1%, 5.5% in the Netherlands, to about 25% in Bulgaria. And a university degree is no longer a guarantee to a job. In the UK in 2011, a quarter of graduates aged 21 were unable to find work after leaving school.

Darrell

Well, to be honest I've never had a job. I left school at 16 because sitting at a desk just wasn't my kind of thing. I couldn't wait to get out there and start work. Only problem was, I didn't have any qualifications and there weren't any jobs! Can't believe how stupid I was, really. I just messed around for a couple of years. But the one thing that did interest me was cars. I used to hang around down at the local garage and the owner showed me some basic mechanics. I got the hang of it right away, but he couldn't give me a job because I didn't take math and English in school. It was the same everywhere I went: no qualifications – no job. Then I got a personal adviser with this new NEET program. This guy, Martin, helped me take things one step at a time. Before starting back into education, we looked at why it went wrong in the first place. I started to take some responsibility for myself and get the help I needed. So here I am two years later with the qualifications I never got at school and an apprenticeship in a car factory. I've never wanted anything so much in my life – there were only 12 places and hundreds of young guys ... and girls ... applied. It's been tough but I know how lucky I am to get a second chance. It's going to be great. I'll be learning in a really practical way to get a good understanding of the industry. I am not going to mess it up this time. Then what I'd really like to do is continue my training. I'd really like to open my own garage someday and focus on foreign-made cars.

Kara

No one ever thinks of Canada as an unemployment black spot, but things are pretty tough here right now. I've been out of school for almost two years, and I've lost count of the number of applications I've filled out. Half the time you don't even get a reply. And I stopped looking for things in my subject area – journalism and economics – a long time ago. Sure I've had part-time jobs, waitressing, hotel reception work, the usual thing, but it's such a waste of my skills. Sometimes I just feel like I'm going around in circles. I don't have the relevant experience, so I can't get a job. But without getting my foot in the door, how do I get the experience I need? The closest I got to my dream was an internship for a local newspaper. I was happy to take the tiny salary they offered and was all set to start when – can you believe it? – they found someone who was willing to work for nothing! So, all those exams and four years at college to be an unpaid slave! I found that so offensive. Then I started to think a little more creatively about how I could spend the next year. If Canada couldn't offer me anything, where was a place that could? I looked into volunteering programs outside Canada. I figured I might as well be out there taking a risk and doing something worthwhile. So, I'm going to Malawi next month to work on a literacy program, mainly with children. It'll be hard being a long way from home and in a strange place, but I'm going to try and do some reporting on the situation there. Who knows? It might just prove to be a newspaper editor that I'm the journalist for the job.

Loukas

When I told my friends that I was going to leave Athens to take classes about farming, they couldn't quite believe it. You see, I'd spent a lot of time and my parents' money getting a business degree and trying to improve my English. Anyway, after leaving school, I didn't have a real, full-time job, just part-time stuff, and so I got close to nothing in unemployment benefits. And after a year the benefits stopped, so that was when I knew I had to make a decision. I thought about a Masters degree, but unemployment has doubled among postgraduates in Greece, so what would be the point of more academic qualifications? The other option was to go abroad, but half of Europe is in the same situation, and I don't want to leave my family because of the financial crisis. So, it's going to be farming for me. You could say that it's in the blood because my grandfather was a farmer, and I'll be taking on a farm on land that the family still owns. But first, I'm taking classes at the American Farm School in Thessaloniki. This is a growing trend apparently – applications are up by more than 100 percent. In the long term, I want to produce the best that Greece has to offer – excellent lamb, cheese, and honey. And maybe look into ecotourism with farm stays, things like that. You see, I'll need my business degree to make it all work. It feels strange to say "I'm going to be a farmer" and my mother is kind of disappointed. She put up with a lot to make sure I had a good education. But I'm trying to see it as an opportunity. And I want to make it a success so that I can pay my parents back for their support.

- 1 The wedding took place in an old country church. It was beautiful, but it was miles away. It took forever to get there.

- 2 My son's always hanging out at the mall, but I'll put a stop to that. I won't give him any more spending money.
- 3 Please don't take offense, but I don't think your work has been up to your usual standards recently.
- 4 I told you that boy was no good for you. You should have taken my advice and had nothing to do with him.
- 5 If you really want to make a change in the world, you'll need to take it upon yourself and do it!
- 6 My boss is putting pressure on me to resign, but I won't go.
- 7 I tried to get the teacher's attention, but she took no notice of me at all.
- 8 Children never say "Thank you" or "How are you?" to their parents. They just take them for granted.

- 1 The store takes on a lot of extra workers every holiday season.
- 2 The lecture was too complicated, and the students couldn't take it all in.
- 3 My business really took off after I picked up six new clients.
- 4 You called me a liar, but I'm not. Take that back and apologize!
- 5 Put some music on. Whatever you want.
- 6 The disgusting smell of the cheese put me off eating it.
- 7 Could you put away your clothes, please? Your room's a mess.
- 8 The kitchen fire was scary, but luckily I put it out.

B Hello, could I speak to Katya Hantelmann, please?
- 2 A Hello.
B Hello, Pat. It's me, Dave.
A Dave! Hi! How are things?
B Not bad. Busy, busy, busy, but life's like that. How's everything with you?
A Oh, you know, we all have the flu, and Mike's away on business, so I have to do everything. School, shop, kids, cook, clean. It's great! What are you up to?
B This and that ...
A How's your mother, by the way?
B She's a lot better, thanks. She's getting stronger every day.

- A So, Barry. It was good to talk to you. Thanks for calling.
- B My pleasure. By the way, how's your golf game these days? Still playing?
- A No, not much. I just don't seem to find the time these days. Anyway, Barry ...
- B Too bad! You used to enjoy it so much.
- A Very true. So, Barry, I have to run. I'm late for a meeting.
- B OK. I don't want to keep you. So, you'll give me a call when you're back, right?
- A I certainly will. And you'll email me a copy of the report?
- B It'll be with you first thing tomorrow.
- A That's great, Barry. Have a good weekend!
- B Same to you, too! Bye, Andy.
- A Bye, Barry.

UNIT 6

CD2 29 The Celebrity Chef

Rachael Ray has hit the big time in a big way. She's famous as an extremely successful chef, cookbook writer, spokeswoman, and media personality. Her many TV shows have been broadcast in several countries around the world including the US, Australia, Canada, Brazil, and Turkey. In addition, she has written a great number of cookbooks that have sold many copies. Since 2006, she has given a lot of time and energy to improving unhealthy diets for kids in the US.

Her rise to fame and fortune was swift. She began her career working in her parents' restaurants, where it was easy to earn a little spending money. In 1995, with no formal chef training, she landed her first professional job at Macy's Marketplace candy counter in New York City. After a couple of years there, she moved back home to manage restaurants.

In 1998, she came up with the idea of teaching people how to make a large amount of tasty, nutritious meals using a small amount of simple supermarket ingredients in 30 minutes or less. Even though she had very little TV experience, she had a lot of enthusiasm, and she found herself doing cooking segments on local news shows, and quickly thereafter landed on the Food Network hosting a small number of TV shows. In 2005, she launched her own lifestyle magazine, Everyday with Rachel Ray. And in 2006, she debuted a daily talk show, Rachael Ray, which is produced in association with Oprah Winfrey.

Rachel is married to lawyer and rock and roll singer John Cusimano. They don't have any children, but they do have one dog named Isaboo.

So what's her recipe for success? Having fun. "I was raised in a household that taught us that everybody has the right to have plenty of fun," she says.

CD2 30

- 1 A How much money do you have in your pocket?
B About 20 dollars.
- 2 A How many cups of coffee do you drink a day?
B It depends. I have a cup for breakfast, sometimes another around mid-morning, and then maybe one or two after lunch and dinner.
- 3 A How many times have you been on a plane?
B About five or six.
- 4 A How much time do you spend watching TV?
B A couple of hours a night, just before I go to bed, I guess.
- 5 A How much sugar do you put in your coffee?
B Just half a spoonful.
- 6 A How many pairs of jeans do you have?
B Three. A black pair, a blue pair, and an old pair I wear when I do messy jobs like cleaning the car.
- 7 A How many books do you read in one year?
B I honestly don't know. Ten? 15? I read most when I'm on vacation.
- 8 A How much homework do you do every day?
B Too much! About two hours, maybe? It depends.
- 9 A How many English teachers have you had?
B Uh ... let me see ... about ten, I guess.
- 10 A How many movies do you watch a month?
B One or two in the theater, and one or two on TV.

- 1 There's no need to rush. We've got tons of time.
- 2 She's got loads of money. I think she inherited it.
- 3 We've got mountains of food for the party. Don't buy any more.
- 4 When my daughter comes home from college, she always brings piles of laundry.
- 5 I can't see you today. I have tons of things to do.
- 6 There were millions of people at the sale. I decided not to fight my way through them.

CD2 32

G = Gary, S = Sonia

- G It's time for Mad about Ads, the weekly program for those of you who are mad about ads! This week Sonia looks at advertising that really is in your face or ... should I say ... on your body. Over to you, Sonia.
- S Thanks, Gary. Well, advertisements, whether you like them or not, are everywhere. It's been estimated that the average person is exposed to anything from about 250 to a whopping 3,000 different advertising messages every day. The traditional media of TV, radio, newspapers, and magazines, and street advertising have been supplemented by mobile ads on tablets and smartphones. But there is growing evidence that the general public is becoming immune to more usual forms of advertising. A recent survey of smartphone users found that 50 percent of them didn't even notice ads on their phones, and as few as 7 percent actually buy something as a result of them. And nearly half of respondents in the survey didn't like having ads on any device at all. They found them annoying and distracting.

So in the face of this, some advertisers have been using what might be the ultimate mobile ad space – the human body. American entrepreneur, Brandon Chicotsky, really has been using his head. Totally bald, Chicotsky came up with the ingenious idea of converting bald patches into profit by using them as advertising space. He went on to set up Baldlogo.com, which allows companies to have their logo temporarily tattooed on to the heads of guys without much hair! For just $320 a day, companies really can get a head start. Sorry!

Similar enterprise was shown by two British graduates who charged by the day to paint company logos on their face and forehead. Ross Harper and Ed Moyses raised £50,000, or about $75,000, with this money-making scheme, enough money to pay off all their student debts.

A marketing campaign in the UK for an online beauty products store, FeelUnique.com, also made use of temporary tattoos, but this time on people's eyelids! They paid ten men and women to apply a tattoo with the company's web address and then to wink at strangers. Apparently, an eye-watering 6,000 people applied for the job, and the lucky ten were paid just £100, or about $150, to wink at people 1,000 times.

And last but not least, an example from the home of ingenious advertising, Japan. There's been a growing popularity in "body advertising" with companies across Tokyo. This involves attaching an ad in the form of a sticker or transfer onto different parts of the body – with teenage boys, usually their face, and teenage girls, ... their bare thighs. Now, I know advertisers have always used beautiful women to promote products, but this seems to me to be a step too far. Back to you, Gary.

G Fascinating stuff, Sonia, thank you. And I agree with you – putting a sticker on your face is one thing, but putting it on a girl's thigh is quite another. Do you agree with Sonia and me? Tell us what you think! Send us your thoughts and reactions on our website ...

- Mike! Long time no see! How are things?
 - Good, thanks, Jeff. Business is booming. How about yourself?
- I'm afraid something's come up, and I can't make our meeting on the 6th.
 - That's OK. Let's try for the following week. Is Wednesday the 13th good for you?
- What are your travel arrangements?
 - I'm on flight UA 2762, at 6:45.
- Could you confirm the details in writing?
 - Sure. I'll email them to you as an attachment.
- They want a deposit of 2½ percent, which is $7,500, and we ... get ... a ... a 2,000 ...
 - Sorry, you're breaking up. Can you repeat the last part?
- I'll give you $5,250 for your car. That's my final offer.
 - Great! It's a deal. It's yours.
- I don't know their number offhand. Bear with me while I look it up.
 - No problem. I'll hold.
- OK. Here's their number. Are you ready? It's 708-555-2200.
 - I'll read that back to you. Seven oh eight, five five five, twenty-two hundred.
- I got a pay raise, but I didn't get a better office.
 - Oh, well. You win some, you lose some.
- Did you apply for that job?
 - There's no point. I'm not qualified for it. I wouldn't stand a chance.

- What the ... where do you think you're going?
 - What do you mean?
 - Well, you're not allowed to turn right here.
 - Who says it's not allowed?
- That sign does. "Do Not Enter," you ought to be able to read that.

- Hey, it's impossible to see, OK?
- Then you'd better get your eyes tested. You don't belong behind the wheel!

- If I were you, I'd swallow my pride and forgive and forget.
- Never! I refuse to.
- You'll have no choice in the end. You won't be able to ignore each other forever.
- Maybe I'll forgive him, but I'll never be able to forget.
- Surely it's possible to talk it over, and work something out. You have to for the sake of the children.
- Oh, I just don't know what the best thing to do is.

- You won't tell anyone, will you?
 - Of course I won't.
 - You really can't tell a soul.
 - Trust me. I won't say a word. I promise.
 - But I know you. You're bound to tell someone.
 - Look. I really can keep a secret, you know. Oh, but is it OK if I tell David?
 - That's fine. He's invited, too. It's just that I want it to be a big surprise. What do you think I should wear?
 - If I were you I'd buy something new and expensive. I'll go shopping with you if you like.
- 2
- I don't know if I can play this evening.
 - But you have to. You promised to.
 - Yeah, but I'm not allowed to go out on school nights. My parents won't let me, not during my final exams.
 - Why don't you tell them that you're coming over to my house to do some studying?
 - But somebody might see me playing and tell them. You'd better find somebody else.
 - There is nobody else. We'll just have to cancel the game.

CD3 7 Exciting news

- R Hello?
- I Rick, Rick is that you? I have to talk to you.
- R Isabel, hi! What's all the excitement about?
- I Well, can you remember that competition I entered, just for fun, a few weeks ago?
- R Yes, I can. I remember you doing it in the coffee shop. It was the one in the newspaper, wasn't it? Didn't you have to name a lot of capital cities?
- I Yeah, that's it. Well, get this, I won! I came in first!
- R No way! I don't believe it! What's the prize?

- I A trip to New York.
 R You must be kidding! That's amazing. For how long?
 I Just three days – but it's three days at the Ritz Carlton, of all places!
 R Well, you should be able to do a lot in three days. And the Ritz Carlton! I'm impressed! Doesn't that overlook Central Park?
 I Yes, it does.
 R I thought so. Not that I've been there, of course.
 I Well, you can now.
 R What do you mean? How would I ever be able to?
 I Well, it's a trip for two and I'd really love it if you would come with me. Will you?
 R You can't be serious? You know I'd love to! But why me? You should be taking David, right?
 I Didn't you hear? David and I broke up.
 R Oh, I'm sorry! I didn't know. When did this happen?
 I Well, a couple of weeks ago. We hadn't been getting along well for awhile.
 R Well, what can I say? How could I possibly refuse an offer like that?
 I Then you'll come?
 R I certainly will.

CD3 8 An arranged marriage

I = Interviewer, P = Pratima

- I How old were you when you met your husband, Pratima?
 P Mmm ... I was just 16.
 I Were you still in school?
 P No, I'd left school, but I had a private tutor at home, preparing me for some exams.
 I And your father arranged your marriage? Is that right?
 P That's right.
 I And you tell me how he did that?
 P Well, he looked around for a suitable husband. He asked friends and relatives if they knew anyone, and found out about their education, their background, and most importantly the family's background. He managed to get a lot of information about them, you know.
 I And how long did this take?
 P Not too long in my case, but you know sometimes a father can see up to 100 men before he chooses one. For my sister and my elder sister he saw over 100 men before ...
 I He saw how many? Goodness! It must take up a lot of time.
 P Yes, it can be difficult to decide, but for me he saw only two, one in the morning and one in the afternoon and he chose the second one.
 I What a day! Can you tell me about it?
 P Yes ... well, in the morning the first man was very wealthy, and he was well-dressed and had good manners, but he hadn't had a good education.
 I Ah. And the other one?
 P Well, he wasn't terribly wealthy, but he was well-educated and he came from a good background. His family owned a village and were like princes. He was 22 and studying law.
 I And this one your father chose?
 P That's right. I think he thought money wasn't everything – for my father education was more important and anyway, if a man is well-educated, he will earn in the end. Actually, Shyam, that's my husband's name, Shyam didn't want to get married at all, but his father had told him he must, so when he came to my house to meet my father, he was very badly-dressed because he hoped my father would refuse him. But luckily for me, my father did like him, and he had to say yes.

- I He had to?
 P Oh yes, he had promised his father.
 I And what about you? Did you meet both men?
 P Yes, I met them that day. First, my family spoke to them and then they called me in and we spoke for four ... four or five minutes.
 I And did you prefer the second?
 P Well, actually I wasn't sure. I left it to my father.
 I You must trust him a lot!
 P Oh, yes.
 I So what happened next?
 P Well, after a while, there was a special day when I went to meet his family and his family came to meet mine. It was kind of an engagement party. But we – you know – Shyam and me, we used to be on the phone every day and we'd meet regularly, but we always had to have a chaperone. And after ten months we got married.
 I And how long have you been married?
 P Nearly 25 years now.
 I And ... it's been a successful marriage? Your father made a good choice?
 P Oh, yes, of course and we have two beautiful sons. They're 22 and 17 now.
 I And will you arrange their marriages?
 P Oh, yes. My husband is planning them now. He's been asking families for some time already and ...
 I And your sons want it?
 P Well, Krishna, he's the eldest, he's OK about it – he's studying hard and doesn't have time to meet girls, but ...
 I Yes, what about the youngest? Ravi, isn't it?
 P Yes, well actually, Ravi's not so interested. It might be difficult to persuade ...
 I But you still believe that the system of arranged marriages is a good one?
 P Oh, yes. I do, of course I do – but you know it depends a lot especially on the family choosing the right person. But one main reason, I think it does work, is that the couple enters the marriage not expecting too much – if you see what I mean. Actually, you know, there are many more divorces between couples who thought they were marrying for love. You know, my mother she had to marry at 13, but she's still happily married nearly 50 years later. Of course, nowadays 13 is considered too young, but you know ... times change.
 I Yeah, that's very true. Thank you very much, Pratima.

- 1 You always get out of doing the dishes. It's not fair. How did our secret get out? Everyone knows now!

- I got a great book out of the library. You can borrow it after me.
 2 The police finally got to the truth about the robbery. Just to get to work, I have to take three buses. All his teasing got to me. It really hurt my feelings.
 3 It took me a long time to get over the flu. He still can't get over the death of his pet dog. I can't get over how much your children have grown!
 4 He got up to 300 pounds before he went on a diet. We got up to page 56 in the last class. I had to get up at 5 a.m. to catch my flight.
 5 I couldn't get through to Joe. I don't think his phone's working. I tried to get through to her, but she ignored my advice. Sue got through the exam quickly, but I took forever.
 6 You can always get around the rules if you hire a good lawyer. I'm sorry. I just haven't gotten around to replying to your invitation yet. I can't see how we can get around this problem. It's a difficult one.

- 1 A They're obviously madly in love.
 B Yeah, they do seem to get along really well.
 2 A His family members are pretty well off, aren't they?
 B You can say that again! They're absolutely loaded!
 3 A You must have hit the roof when she crashed your car.
 B Well, yes, I was a little upset.
 4 A I think Tony was a little bit rude last night.
 B You think? He was totally out of order!
 5 A I can't stand the sight of him!
 B I have to admit, I'm not too crazy about him either.
 6 A He isn't very bright, is he?
 B You're not kidding. He's as dumb as dirt.
 7 A I'm fed up with this weather! It's freezing.
 B I guess it is a little chilly.
 8 A Well, that was a fantastic vacation!
 B Yes, it was a nice little break.
 9 A I'm exhausted. Can we stop for a rest?
 B OK. I'm a little out of breath, too.
 10 A I'm absolutely dying for a cup of coffee!
 B I wouldn't mind one myself.

CD3 12

- 1 A Is that a new watch? I bet that cost something.
 B Something? It cost a fortune!
 2 A It's a little bit chilly in here, don't you think?
 B You can say that again! I'm absolutely freezing!
 3 A These shoes aren't bad, are they?
 B They're gorgeous! I want them!
 4 A Can we pull over at the next rest stop? I could use something to eat.
 B Me too. I'm starving! I didn't have breakfast this morning.
 5 A I think those two like each other, don't you?
 B Like's the wrong word. They're obviously crazy about each other.
 6 A I bet you were a little bit upset when your team lost.
 B Me? Upset? I cried myself to sleep!

UNIT 8
CD3 13 Susan Magdalane Boyle

Susan Magdalane Boyle (born 1961) is a singer from a small town in Scotland who became internationally famous after appearing on the TV program Britain's Got Talent, where she sang I Dreamed a Dream from the musical Les Miserables.

Susan, whose father, Patrick, was a miner, was the youngest of eight children in a musical family. When she was at school, she was diagnosed with learning difficulties and was often the target of bullies, who called her "Simple Susan." However, she began singing in school productions and both her teachers and her mother, Bridget, recognizing her talent, encouraged her to perform in singing competitions, which she did for many years.

In 2007, her beloved mother died and Susan stopped singing. She stayed at home with her cat, Pebbles, for two years, until finally she was persuaded to enter Britain's Got Talent. The audience, most of whom looked skeptically at this plump, 48-year-old woman, was absolutely amazed when she opened her mouth to sing. Susan Boyle singing I Dreamed a Dream became a YouTube sensation, viewed by 66 million people worldwide, particularly in the US.

In the years after the show Susan, or "SuBo" as she is now known, went on to make four best-selling albums, two of which topped the charts in the UK and the US. There is even a stage musical of SuBo's life called, of course, I Dreamed a Dream.

She now travels the world singing, but she always returns to the same family home in Scotland.

- 1 A It's raining again.
B Oh, no! Another miserable day when we're stuck indoors.
A Cheer up! It's good for the plants and trees.
B I don't care about the plants and trees. I need some sunshine.
- 2 A How was your vacation?
B Great, thanks. Just what we needed.
A Did you do much?
B Not a lot. We just sat by the pool, read books, and took it easy for two whole weeks. Absolute bliss.
- 3 A Have you heard about Dave and Maggie?
B No. Tell me, tell me!
A Well, last week they went to a party, had this huge argument in front of all these people, and ...
B Did it get physical?
A Oh, yeah! Maggie shoved Dave into a flowerpot, told him to get lost, and left with some other guy!
B What! I just can't believe Maggie would do such a thing. It doesn't sound like her at all.
- 4 A Come on in. You must be exhausted!
B Oof, I am. I've been traveling for the past 30 hours and I haven't slept a wink.
A I know – I can never sleep on a plane, either. Just sit down, take it easy, and I'll get you some tea.
- 5 A How's the new job going?

- B Good, thanks, very good – but it's difficult. I'm having to deal with so many new things. Still, I'm enjoying it all.
- A Mmm – I know what you mean.
- B It's great to be doing something that's so satisfying, and meeting so many people from abroad.
- A Absolutely.
- 6 A There is nothing good on TV tonight!
B What about that wildlife program?
A Do you mean the one about the life of frogs?
B Yeah – does it look any good?
A You're kidding. It looks like absolute garbage.
- 7 A What's the matter with you?
B Oh my gosh – I just put my foot in my mouth.
A What do you mean?
B Well, I was talking to that lady over there, and I asked her when her baby was due, and she told me she wasn't pregnant.
A Oh, no! That's awful!

I am absolutely amazed and delighted to receive this award. I am truly grateful to all those wonderful people who voted for me. It is extremely rare for a musical to win best movie, so this is a huge honor. None of us could have predicted Angel Voice would be such an enormous success. It was an absolutely fantastic movie to do, not only because of all the intelligent people who worked on it, but also because of the incredible amount of stunning new talent we were able to develop. My special thanks go to the gifted writer Clarke Miller for the fascinating characters and hilarious script; to Michael Kellerman, the excellent musical director; for the marvelous songs and thrilling musical score; to the set and costume designers for their truly amazing creativity, and last but not least to my wife, Marcia, for her priceless support. I absolutely adore you all.

CD3 22 Simone

Well, it was when I was living in Cairo and it was in the middle of the summer, so it was extremely hot – between 40 and 45 degrees Celsius, or about 104 to 113 degrees Fahrenheit, and stupidly we decided to go dancing and we went to this night club and we must have danced for hours and hours, and it was very hot inside the night club and we were sweating profusely, and by the time we came out it was about five o'clock in the morning, and we decided, "Oh wouldn't it be a great idea to go to the pyramids to see the sunrise!" So we jumped in a taxi, and the taxi was also pretty stuffy and hot, and we must have been starting to dehydrate at this point. Anyway, we got to the pyramids – and the sun was just starting to come up. And in, in Egypt, as soon as the sun comes up, the temperature rises dramatically, but we were so excited to see the pyramids that we decided just to, to go and walk and see. At this point, a man approached us and asked us if we wanted to borrow or rent his motorcycle, and so we said yes. So my friend and I, we jumped onto the motorcycle and raced out into the desert – only to find after about ten, 15 minutes, that the motorcycle was kind of old and suddenly it broke down. So we were miles from anywhere and had to push this motorcycle to, to get back. I was the one at the back pushing the motorcycle and of course I was using lots of energy. I was losing a lot of fluid and it was getting hotter and hotter. Anyway, we ended up having to walk back to the town to give the motorcycle back to the man. And by this time we were really fed up and tired and very hot, so we decided to go home. By the time we got home, I started to feel a little bit strange, I had a bit of a headache and I decided to go straight to bed. Anyway, I woke up about half an hour later, feeling pretty confused, and sick, a little bit nauseous, and I realized that my brain wasn't working properly and that in fact I probably had heat exhaustion. Anyway, it wasn't very pleasant, and it was a lesson in what not to do in such hot temperatures. I've never done that again. I always carry my salt tablets with me.

CD3 23 Anna

The time that I was very, very cold was a time when I was working in a small town in central Russia and I was going to see some friends who lived on the outskirts of town, and they were worried about me getting lost and they said that they'd come to the tram stop to meet me. But I wanted to be independent, so I told them "Don't be silly, of course I'll find it." And on the day of the visit, it was very, very cold, it might have been minus 30 degrees Celsius or minus 22 degrees Fahrenheit, but it might have been colder than that and it was, it was so cold that at some of the tram stops and bus stops there were bonfires lit – special street fires to keep people warm and I think it was a day when the schools were closed, when the children didn't go to school because it was so cold. So I put on all the clothes that I had – all the scarves and sweaters, and, and I took the tram to the outskirts of the town where my friends lived way out at the end of the line and I got off the tram, which was heated, into this cold white world. And it was, it was so cold that if you ... when you breathed in, little balls of ice formed in your nostrils. You had to keep a scarf over your mouth and nose. About a minute, two minutes after getting off the tram my, my feet and hands were already hurting they were so cold. So I was walking around, trying to find the, the apartment, but it was completely anonymous this landscape and there were these huge snow-covered white apartment buildings, these buildings, 15 or 16 floors, but they all looked exactly the same and I couldn't find the name of the, the street either, and it was very, very quiet and the, the tram had gone. And I began, actually, to get very frightened because I was feeling so, so cold. My feet and hands had gone beyond hurting almost, I couldn't feel them any more. It was pretty difficult to breathe because of the icy scarf over my mouth and nose, and I just couldn't find where they lived, and I asked an old lady the way, but my Russian wasn't good enough, she didn't understand me. And I was beginning to really, seriously panic, when suddenly in the distance I saw my friends. They'd come to find me and they took me home.

- 6 A Did you know that they eat sheep stomachs in some countries? And snails?
B Yuck! That's disgusting! You wouldn't catch me eating that!
- 7 A Look! Isn't that Peter over there, sitting by himself?
B Hey, Peter! Come over here and sit with us. We were just talking about the game last night.
- 8 A Tomorrow's test has been canceled.
B Phew! What a relief! Thank goodness for that! I hadn't done any studying for it at all.

CD3 28 Getting back in touch

Dear Emily,

I hope you don't mind me contacting you out of the blue like this. It's taken me a while to track you down, but now I have, thanks to the wonders of social media!

I don't know if you remember, but we used to go to Springfield High School together. You were the first person I got to know when I started there.

We used to sit next to each other in math class, but then the teacher made us sit apart because we were always giggling so much.

I remember we'd go back to your house after school every day and listen to music for hours on end. We'd get all the Guns N' Roses CDs as soon as they came out. Once, we ate all the food in your fridge and your mother was furious.

Do you remember that time we nearly blew up the science lab? The teacher went crazy, but it wasn't our fault. We used to call him Homer Simpson because he was small, fat, and bald.

I still see Tiffany, and she's still as crazy as ever. We get together every now and then, and we'll always end up chatting about old times together. She's always talking about a high-school reunion. So if you're interested, drop me a line.

Looking forward to hearing back from you. I'd love to know how you're doing.

Your old friend,

Alison Wright

P.S. I'm not used to calling you Emily Rider! To me, you're still Emily Wilson!

- 1 I got along very well with my mom. She was my best friend, and she still is. We had to get along, really. My dad left when I was three. I used to tell her everything, well, almost everything. And she'd talk to me very openly, too. Sometimes she'd say to me, "Don't go to school today. Stay with me." And we'd go shopping or, or something like that. It's a wonder I had any education at all, the number of days I missed school.
- 2 It was my dad who used to drive me crazy. He was always telling me to get my hair cut and dress better. My mom was much more lenient. She never really minded how I dressed. But she would get angry when I picked at food before she'd put it on the table. "Get your hands off!" she'd say. But I was always so hungry. I had such a big appetite for such a small, spindly kid – then at 16 I suddenly shot up – I'm six feet, five inches now!
- 3 My mom was always nagging me, telling me to get off the computer, turn off the TV, pick up my things, do my homework. She'd go on and on and then she'd be all put out when I'd shut myself in my room. I just needed some peace and quiet each day. She just didn't realize how hard it was for me at school. You see, I wasn't very popular – so I would really need some time to myself when I got home.
- 4 I have very fond memories of my childhood. To me it represented security. We used to do a lot together as a family. I remember walks and picnics and going for car rides on a Sunday afternoon. Every Friday when my dad came home, he'd bring us each a treat, just something little. My mother used to say he was spoiling us, but why not? It didn't do us any harm.

- 1 A You don't like your new teacher, do you?
B Not a lot, but we're getting used to her.
- 2 A How can you get up at five o'clock in the morning?
B No problem. I'm used to it.
- 3 A How come you know Buenos Aires so well?
B I used to live there.
- 4 A How are you finding your new job?
B Difficult, but I'm getting used to it little by little.
- 5 A Do you read comic books?
B I used to when I was young but not anymore.
- 6 A You two argue so much. How can you live together?
B After 20 years of marriage we're used to each other.

CD3 32 A teacher to remember1 Sean

Interestingly enough the teacher I'll never forget is my Latin and Ancient Greek teacher - you may think they're dry subjects - uh - dead languages but Mr. Lang, the teacher, somehow used to make these dead languages seem stone-cold easy. He looked the part - he was kind of traditional-looking - very formal and serious. He'd always wear a dark green or dark brown suit, and he had a long black mustache. He'd been at the school for over 20 years, so he must have been in his 50s I guess. You'd think that everything about him was boring and serious because he never smiled or laughed, never, but somehow he was clear, interesting, and entertaining. He had a razor-sharp wit, and there were jokes hidden in his words if you listened carefully - and we all did. I passed my final exams, but I didn't study Latin or Ancient Greek in college. However, I did study philosophy - and that was a direct result of learning about the great philosophers, Aristotle, Socrates, Plato, from Mr. Lang.

2 Samantha

My most memorable teacher, hmm! I think that would be Mrs. Chapman. I was about 13 or 14 and she was our English and drama teacher. She was short and plump, dumpy in fact, with mousy-brown hair. She looked like everybody's kind, middle-aged aunt, but she wasn't very nice. She had a big loud voice, and she used to like to get us to act out the plays we were studying and she'd shout, "Speak up, speak up and think about the meaning of the words." But what I remember most about her is her ruler. She had this wooden ruler and if anyone was looking sleepy or bored, she'd poke them on the shoulder with this ruler and shout, "Wake up girl!" or "boy." Then one day she spotted someone asleep, sound asleep and snoring, at the back of the class. Mrs. Chapman was so furious she slammed the ruler down on his desk and it broke in half. We were all scared stiff. She didn't throw the ruler away after that, it was even sharper when she poked you in the back. Maybe her classes helped me though - I'm a lawyer now and when I have to speak in court Mrs. Chapman's words ring in my ear: "Speak up, speak clearly girl!"

I don't think I ever had a favorite teacher, but I had a least-favorite teacher, and weirdly he was probably the most successful teacher I ever had. You see, when I was in elementary school I was really good at math - I could do it all. But when I went to high school I had a succession of dismal math teachers, and by the time I took my final exams as a junior, I was absolutely hopeless. I failed miserably. And I needed to pass math to graduate from high school, so I had to retake it as a senior. This time with a very different teacher, Mr. Biggs. I have no idea how old he was - just old - but you know when you're 16, 35 seems old. I'd say he was probably in his late 30s and big like his name with a huge booming voice. He was very sarcastic and it seemed to be his mission in life to embarrass his students and me in particular because I was retaking the class as a senior. He was always calling on me to go to the front of the class to do problems on the board, and he'd sneer if I got it wrong, which was most of the time. I hated him with a passion, but actually his explanations were crystal clear, and gradually over the year I improved. I got a really good grade on the final exam and was able to apply to some pretty good colleges.

4 Charlotte

Well, one teacher I'll never forget is Miss Wilkinson. She taught chemistry and biology. I didn't like her subjects much, probably because I wasn't very good at them. She seemed old to me, but she was probably just in her early 30s and kind of tall and gangly. She drove this ancient car, and she always seemed too big for it. She had to crouch over the steering wheel. Anyway, the reason I remember her so well is because I think she fell for my dad. Really! You see he'd sometimes pick me up from school and one day there she was in her car, and she couldn't get it to start, so of course my dad, being the sweet gentleman he was, helped her. Miss Wilkinson was glowing with gratitude. "Oh, thank you, thank you Mr. Gallo. You're so kind, so kind." She went all weak and wobbly, not at all like she was when she was yelling at us in class. And then everytime he came to pick me up after that, somehow Miss Wilkinson would appear, and she was always asking me about him, "How's your father, Charlotte?" "Just fine Miss Wilkinson, he and my mom are going to the beach this weekend." I just made that up to see her reaction. My friends and I used to giggle about it. When I mentioned it to my dad, he just laughed and said, "Don't be silly, Charlotte. Nobody would fall for an old boring guy like me." But my mom knew better!

B I don't know.
A Sit next to a fan.
- 5 A What do you get when 5,000 strawberries try to go through a door at the same time?
B I don't know. What do you get?
A Strawberry jam!
- 6 A Waiter, this food tastes funny.
B So, why aren't you laughing?
- 7 A What do you give to a sick lemon?
B Lemon aid!
- 8 A Why did the teacher wear sunglasses?
B I don't know.
A Because her students were so bright.
- 9 A Why can't Cinderella play soccer?
B Because she's always running away from the ball.

If you ask me, this is a terrible idea. First, good body image isn't something that you can teach. Second, schools don't have time to add another non-academic subject into their packed curriculum. Another thing is that teachers have enough to do and it's really up to the parents to try and develop self-esteem in their children. Personally, I've never worried too much about how I look, but that's not the point. The point I'm trying to make is that young people's education should be about qualifications for their future, not worrying about body image.

2 Ian

To tell you the truth, I haven't really thought about it. I suppose the problem is that there are lots of images of beautiful models out there in the media. But as far as I'm concerned, people come in all shapes and sizes. I don't see what's wrong with that. Actually, it would be a pretty boring world if we all looked the same, wouldn't it? And personality is what counts after all, and just trying to be happy. Anyway, as I was saying, I don't really feel strongly one way or the other about young people and their body image.

3 Helen

If you want my opinion, I think this is a really good idea. Many of today's teenagers are obsessed with the idea of physical perfection. Basically, they feel like an outsider if they look different in any way. As I understand it, this is true of boys as much as girls. But the main point is that the media and celebrity culture sell them an image of beauty that they will never achieve. What really worries me is that cosmetic surgery and eating disorders are going to become the norm for the next generation. In conclusion, I think that schools should play a greater role in developing teenagers' self-esteem.

- A How was the theater last night? What did you see?
- B We saw a play by Shakespeare – Richard III. It was really good! Great acting. You know, “A horse, a horse my kingdom for ...”
- A You saw Richard III! He's all over the news right now!
- B Why? He died over 500 years ago.
- A Yeah, and nobody knows where he was buried. It's a big mystery – at least it was a mystery because now they're pretty sure they've found his body.
- B Really?
- A Well, not his body exactly – his skeleton. It was beneath a parking lot in Leicester, England.
- B Beneath a parking lot? You're kidding me. So King Richard could have died while parking his horse!
- A Ha ha! Not funny! No, seriously, they say the parking lot must have been built on what was once a church graveyard.
- B But how do they know the skeleton is Richard III's?
- A Well, they know he was killed in 1485 in a battle near Leicester.
- B Yeah, the Battle of Bosworth Field.
- A Yeah, that's right – and tests showed that the man must have died around that time from battle wounds and that he was in his late 20s or 30s and ...
- B Yeah, I think Richard was in his early 30s when he died.
- A Also, the skeleton has a deformed spine, so he would have been a hunchback.
- B Yes, and Richard was a hunchback. Well, at least he was in Shakespeare's play.
- A They can tell a lot from the skeleton, and it's in really good condition, except that the feet are missing.
- B How come the feet are missing?
- A Oh they say builders might have chopped them off in the 16th century. Anyway, the archaeologists found some people in Canada who are descendants, and they've done DNA tests that match.
- B I bet those people were surprised.
- A Yeah, I bet.
- B Who was Richard fighting in the battle? Was it Henry VIII?
- A No, it can't have been Henry VIII. I don't think he was born until the end of the 15th century – it must have been his father, Henry VII. My history's a little bit rusty.
- B I think you're right. It would have been Henry VII. There've been a lot of Henrys, haven't there?

- A Yeah, but none since Henry VIII. Who knows – there might be a Henry IX one day.

- 1 A When did Richard die?
B He must have died in the 15th century.
- 2 A What was he doing when he died?
B He could have been riding a horse. He must have been fighting.

B He can't have been buried in a parking lot.
- 4 A How old was he when he died?
B He may have been 32 or 33. He can't have been 40.
- 5 A What did they learn from his deformed spine?
B That he would have been a hunchback.
- 6 A Why were his feet missing?
B Builders in the 16th century might have chopped them off.

- R This is Robert.
- D Hi, Bob! It's me, Donna.
- R Sorry – Donna who?
- D Donna Goldberg.
- R I'm sorry – I don't think I know any “Donnas.”
- D You do, you do! We met on vacation.
- R On vacation? We did? Where was that?
- D In Miami. My friend Samantha and I were staying in the same hotel.
- R Miami! Oh, yes, of course! Donna and Samantha from Wisconsin. That was years ago.
- D It was actually almost ten years ago, but Samantha and I still talk about it. We had a great time, didn't we? You and your friend Dan were such great guys.
- R Well, thank you. Yeah. Dan and I had fun, too. Well, what a surprise! What are you up to these days?
- D Well, I'm here in Seattle right now.
- R Here? What are you doing here?
- D Well, Samantha and I are on vacation together again and this time we're going to drive down the west coast – from Washington State down to California.

- R Wow! Really? That's ambitious.
- D Yeah and we're starting right here in Seattle, so we wondered if we could come and visit. Maybe hang out for a couple of days? It'd be great to catch up.
- R Well, obviously I'd love to see you both again, but actually it's not really very ...
- D But you said we could visit if we were ever in Seattle – and here we are!
- R Yes, I know we said that, but Dan lives in Chicago now, and my apartment isn't very big, and my wife and ...
- D Bobby, are you married now? That's so cool. When did you get married?
- R About four years ago, and we're about to move to a bigger place. We're expecting another baby.
- D Bob, I see, no problem. Samantha and I understand, new baby, new home.
- R I'm glad you understand. Maybe we could meet for dinner for old times' sake?
- D I'm not sure your wife would be too happy.
- R Maybe you're right. Well, it was nice to hear your voice again, Donna. Give my best to Samantha, and I'll tell Dan that you got in touch. Enjoy your trip.
- D Thank you, Robert. Have a nice life.

Sam, Who Only Ate Jam

A Cautionary Tale

There was a boy whose name was Sam. The only thing he ate was jam. When offered any other food, he'd claim he wasn't in the mood. He'd say, "I'm fairly full today," and push that other food away. And so he never tasted pie, or gave spaghetti sauce a try, and even if you asked him, "Please?" he wouldn't chew on cheddar cheese. He couldn't stand potato chips. Bananas never crossed his lips. And not a bit of beef or lamb or deviled egg or candied yam would wind up on his dinner plate, for jam was all he ever ate.

Now, as it happened, late one day poor Sam expired. He passed away. We don't know why. It might have been some mineral or vitamin was missing from the food he ate and caused this clearly awful fate or maybe all that sugar made him fall to pieces, start to fade, until the day that eating jam at last became the end of Sam.

We can't be certain why he died but, maybe, if he'd only tried some yogurt or some celery, a piece of toast, a pear, a pea, a pizza crust, a grain of rice, a half an herb, a single spice, a spoon of soup with just one clam, then, maybe, we would still have Sam. Alas, he never ate a grape or chocolate bar or Belgian crepe or lobster bisque or Irish stew or sauerkraut or cheese fondue or casserole or sloppy joe, so this is all we'll ever know: Since jam was all he had to eat, his life was rather short and sweet.

Host

Hello and welcome to Science for Life, your weekly update on what's happening in the world of science. On today's program, we start with dreams, but not the age-old question of what they mean, but how we can influence them, and maybe make them sweeter. Our tech reporter, Grace Miller, investigates.

Reporter

The world of dreams has fascinated people for centuries. We now know that most of us dream several times a night, and of course some remember their dreams more clearly than others. But what if we could influence what we dream about and make them happier and always enjoyable? Is this "science fact" or "science fiction"? Well, it could become fact, thanks to a new app called Dream:ON. Dream:ON is the brainchild of psychologist, Richard Wiseman. It has already been downloaded by thousands of volunteers eager to find out if they can create the perfect dream.

So how does it work? Well, before going to sleep, you select from the app the type of dream you would like to have. Then you place your phone next to your head on the pillow. This is so that the app can monitor your sleep pattern. It monitors your movements until it senses that you are lying still. This indicates that you're in a period of REM (rapid eye movement) sleep, when dreaming is most likely to occur. It then quietly plays something called a "soundscape." This is a personalized series of sounds designed to help create your desired dream. It can be anything at all from birds singing and waves lapping on the shore, to city noises or the voices of celebrities. While the soundscape is playing, the app continues to monitor your movements and when the dream ends, it wakes you up with a gentle alarm and asks you to write a short description of your dream. The descriptions of the dreams are stored in a database called "Dream Bank" to allow Professor Wiseman to assess the effectiveness of the app and continue his research. The app also allows you to tag the friends who appeared in your dreams via Facebook and Twitter.

This all might be your dream come true, or your worst nightmare, but there is a serious side to it. A national sleep survey found that 21% of respondents had trouble sleeping and 15% suffered from unpleasant dreams. Professor Wiseman said, "Getting a good night's sleep and having pleasant dreams boosts people's productivity, and is essential for their psychological and physical wellbeing. Despite this, we know very little about how to influence dreams. This experiment aims to change that."

From some of the comments on Twitter, it looks like there have been mixed results, as you might expect. I haven't tried Dream:ON myself yet, but it's free to download, so I might just give it a try tonight.

Well, it's thanks and sweet dreams to our reporter, Grace. We'll try and get an update on that research later in the year. Now moving away from dreams ...

Well, I tried it for a few nights last week, but it didn't seem to make much difference. Everything was more or less the same as before. To be honest, I'm a deep sleeper and I don't have many nightmares. I guess I'm lucky, but I don't tend to remember my dreams very clearly either.

What can I say other than, "It worked!" Maybe it was just a coincidence, so I guess I'll have to wait and see if it has any influence on my dreams in the future. The one that worked best was the "Ocean View" soundscape. I had this really vivid dream about swimming in beautiful clear water, really deep in the ocean, but without any breathing equipment. It was such a nice feeling when I woke up.

I tried it, but it didn't work because my battery ran out! I should have kept my phone charged all night. But to be honest, I'm not sure I'd bother trying it again. A friend recommended it, but she's really into dream analysis and all that. You know, I don't think there's an app good enough out there to give me my perfect dream!

Hmm, not sure about that. An app to control your dreams sounds weird. I wish developers would focus on software that really is useful. Like a map that has the correct streets in the correct place! Thousands of apps and I still have to ask for directions! It's time they stopped making silly software.

What an amazing idea! I've suffered from disrupted sleep and nightmares for a long time. I wish I'd heard about this app before. I'll certainly give it a try. Anything that can help redirect my dreams is worth a try. I have a recurring nightmare of being chased through a dark forest. I always wake up just before I'm caught, but I'm left feeling stressed and exhausted.

A dream control app? What a bunch of nonsense! All you need for a good night's sleep is peace and quiet, so turn your phone off! So many people are surrounded by technology 24/7, it's no wonder they can't unwind. Don't get me wrong, mobile technology is a useful tool, but you shouldn't let it rule every part of your life.

- 1 A I could kick myself. As soon as I'd handed it in, I remembered what the answer was.
B Oh, I hate it when that happens! But do you think you passed?
- 2 A Oh, I don't believe it! I've spent all morning trying to send this, and all I get is "Ooops! Your message wasn't sent. Try again later."
B What a pain! Have you tried calling the computer helpline?

- 3 A These instructions don't make any sense to me at all. If you can follow them, you're a genius.
B Don't ask me! This ready-to-assemble stuff is a nightmare! I had exactly the same trouble trying to put together a bedside table.
- 4 A It's not fair. I'd been looking forward to watching it all day and then the phone goes and rings!
B Typical! And who was it? Anyone interesting?
- 5 A How many times do I have to tell you? Take them off before you come into the house!
B Give me a break! I was in a hurry. Anyway, they're only a little bit muddy.
- 6 A This has gone way beyond a joke. You promised you'd deliver it by Tuesday at the latest. Now you're saying next month!
B I'm awfully sorry, sir. I'm afraid there's nothing I can do about it. It's out of my hands.
- 7 A I went away to think about it, and of course, when I went back it had been sold. I wish I'd just bought it then and there.
B Oh, too bad. It would have gone so well with your white jeans.
- 8 A What a waste of time! Ten minutes listening to music and "All our lines are busy. Thank you for waiting."
B I know, it drives me crazy. But worse still is that you never get to speak to a real person anyway!

My grandfather, who's a widower, used to be a judge and when he retired the year before last, he decided to go on a cruise. He enjoyed the cruise very much. He sailed all around the world, and it sounded like a great experience. Anyway, the most interesting thing about this cruise was that he met an attractive widow. I think she's pretty rich, too. She comes from California. Well, my grandfather invited her to have dinner with him, and they got along really well with one another. And would you believe it, my grandfather fell in love? No kidding! He says you can find love at any age, and the next thing we knew he'd asked her to marry him. Apparently, they were married by the captain of the ship. It's so romantic. The whole family's amazed, but we're all very happy for him because he's been lonely since my grandmother died. I just hope I find love one day, like Grandpa.

- 1 I don't like cereal for breakfast.
2 Do any of your friends like dancing?
3 What are the people in your class like?
4 I just sent my nephew $25 for his birthday.
5 Did you know Bob's studying to be a veterinarian and he doesn't even like animals?
6 Isn't your mother Canadian?
7 What do you think the most important thing in life is?
8 I bet you've told lots of girls that you love them.
9 It's very nice of you to offer, but I can't take your car. You might want to use it this afternoon.
10 There was quite a crowd at your birthday party, wasn't there?

CD4 24

- 1 A I don't like cereal for breakfast.
B Well, would you like an egg? A boiled egg and some toast?
- 2 A Do any of your friends like dancing?
B What do you mean any? All my friends like dancing. We go every Saturday night.
- 3 A What are the people in your class like?
B They're great. Every person in my class is really friendly. We all get along really well together.
- 4 A I just sent my nephew $25 for his birthday.
B Well, I have five nieces, I gave $20 to each one for Valentine's Day. Cost me a fortune.
A I only have the one nephew right now. Thank goodness.
- 5 A Did you know Bob's studying to be a veterinarian and he doesn't even like animals?
B That's strange. Don't you think a love of animals is vital for a veterinarian?
A Yes, I do. I think it's because his mother is a veterinarian, and she wants Bob to take over her practice.
- 6 A Isn't your mother Canadian?
B In fact both my parents are Canadian. My father was born in Toronto, but he moved to New York City when he was eighteen.
- 7 A What do you think the most important thing in life is?
B I think love is everything. If you can find true love, you'll be happy forever.
- 8 A I bet you've told lots of girls that you love them.
B This time it's different. The love I have for you is forever. I've never felt like this before.
- 9 A It's very nice of you to offer, but I can't take your car. You might want to use it this afternoon.
B Look, I have two cars. Borrow either one. I don't mind. I probably won't be using either one anyway.
- 10 A There was quite a crowd at your birthday party, wasn't there?
B Yeah, it was great to see everyone, and I think they all had a good time.

CD4 25

- 1 What's that song you're singing?
2 Did you hear that storm in the middle of the night?
3 Mmm! These strawberries are delicious!
4 Take those dirty shoes off! I just washed the floor.
5 I can't stand this weather. It's really getting me down.
6 Who was that man you were talking to this morning?
7 Do you remember when we were young? Those were the days!
8 Children have no respect for authority these days, do they?

CD4 26

- 1 A What was the meal like?
B It was revolting, every bit as bad as you said it would be.
- 2 A Did you apologize to all the guests?
B Each and every one of them. I felt I had to.
- 3 A They didn't all pass, did they?
B All but three did. Seven out of twenty, that's not bad.

- 4 A Sorry, I only have a dollar on me.
B Don't worry. Every little bit helps, you know.
- 5 A When do you think you'll get there?
B If all goes well, we should be there about s.x.
- 6 A Do you want to stop for an iced coffee?
B If it's all the same to you, I'd rather not.

Dan

I'm 16 and these are supposed to be the best years of my life, but to be honest I can't wait for them to be over. I can't see the point of spending hours in the classroom finding out about rivers in China or the French Revolution. A friend of my dad's often says to me, "What are you doing with all your free time?" And I think, "What free time?" After school work, then homework, studying for tests and exams, plus my part-time job - I'm absolutely exhausted. I know you need to do all this if you want to get into college, but I'm not even sure that's for me. I haven't told my parents yet - it's their dream that I follow in my dad's footsteps as a lawyer. Basically, I can't think of anything more awful. Years of more studying, and debating details of the law just doesn't grab me. You see, what I really want to do is to be an actor one day. English and drama are my best subjects, and I'm always in the school plays. So, two more years of school, and then I'd need to get into a good college with a good drama department. But first I need to tell my parents I don't want to go into law. Somehow I don't think they're going to like it.

Abby

Mommy says it will be fun because there will be lots of other kids to play with. But I don't want to go. I want to stay at home with Mommy and Grandma.

Charlotte ... that's my sister ... goes there and she likes doing her work. But she's more older than me. She's seven and I'm only four. And ... I got a kitten for my birthday, his name is Fluffy, and he'll miss me because we're always playing, and things. I don't want to go at all.

Derek

So, it's my last week in the office. I've finally gotten used to the idea now, but when they told me I was on the list to be let go, it hit me like a ton of bricks. I've been here over 30 years. Still, I'm trying to see it as a new opportunity - not the easiest thing in your mid-fifties. I'm setting up a small business with a friend - furniture design. I've always made chairs, tables, and stuff as a hobby, so why not give it a try? You never know, we could be the next big thing.

Maria

I never thought this day would come. Twenty-three and I've just started my first real job - with my own desk, and phone, and even my name on the door! I's a shared office, of course, but you can't have everything! After being unemployed for two years since I graduated from college, it feels a little bit like a dream. I keep thinking the office manager is going to come over to my desk and say, "What are you doing here? You don't work for us." But it hasn't happened yet.

You know, I was so nervous on the first day that I didn't move from my desk all morning. Then my coworkers invited me to join them for lunch, which helped to break the ice. But it feels like there's so much to learn. My first big challenge is to present some design ideas for an advertising campaign. It's for laundry detergent of all things. I majored in fashion, so it isn't really my area, but a job's a job. I'm hoping that I can move back to the world of fashion once I get some work experience here. Ideally, I'd like to move out from my mom and dad's place soon, too. They've been so wonderful supporting me, but I really need to stand on my own two feet now.

Frances

I always think the word "retired" sounds so negative ... like you're sitting passively in your armchair and waiting for someone to bring you a nice cup of tea! Yes, I gave up full-time work years ago, but I didn't give up on life! And since I stopped, I've been busier than ever. I really wanted the extra time I had to count for something. So many ladies of my age somehow ... disappear. Oh, they go for lunch, or have their hair done, but they don't really do anything ambitious. Maybe I've been selfish, but I wanted to still have challenges and ambitions. So, my first challenge was to go traveling on my own. I started just in the US, in familiar territory, just around California and ... and the Pacific Northwest. And then I got the bug, and I was off to South America and the Caribbean, and then Japan and Indonesia. All my life, I'd planned family vacations and gone on business trips with my ex-husband. I never realized what a chore it was until I went on my own. Oh, it's marvelous to be able to just wander around a city without worrying about other people - oh, heaven.

Nat and Louis

N Well, we picked up the keys yesterday, but we haven't moved all our stuff yet. We have all the basics in, you know, the beds, sofa, and chairs, ...

L And the TV.

N Yes, Louis's flat-screen TV is definitely in place. But all our personal stuff is still in boxes. The thing is we've moved around so much since we got married, we've never been able to get things in their proper place. It's such a pain!

L That's right. We rented a tiny apartment when we first got married. Then when we had the twins in our late twenties, we couldn't afford a two-bedroom place, so we went to live with my mom for a while. That was great because she had a big old house with a huge yard, but then she had to downsize when she retired ...

N Yeah, we thought about trying to rent again, but everything in our area was so expensive. In the end my parents said, "Just come and stay with us." So that's what we did so we could save to get a mortgage. But it took us a long time to get the deposit together. I never thought I'd have to wait until the age of 35 before I owned my own home.

L Nat, honey, we don't own it, the bank does.

N Yes, well, you know what I mean. Anyway, all I want to do is get all our odds and ends into the new place and make it feel like home. The twins are so excited.

CD4 28

- 1 A Ugh. I can't believe it. I failed again.
B Don't worry. You'll have better luck next time.
A But that was the second time.
B Well, maybe you'll pass next time. You know what they say – third time's a charm!
- 2 A Come on! Get up! Get a life!
B What do you mean?
A Well, it's high time you did something other than watch soap operas on TV all day.
B Like what?
A I don't know. Travel, see the world. Live life.
B Boring.
A Oh, I give up. Be a couch potato if that's what you want.
- 3 A Oh, no! We missed it. It must have left right on time.
B I thought we might just get it.
A What do we do now? There isn't another until 1 o'clock.
B That's nearly two hours to kill!
A More shopping?
B Not on your life. I'm shopped-out! Let's just get a coffee. There's a café near platform 1.
- 4 A How's it going?
B Well, they've finally finished, but not on time – almost four weeks late.
A And how much is it all going to cost?
B We haven't gotten the final bill yet.
A Well, you can bet your life it'll be more than they estimated.
B I know. We were going to have the kitchen decorated too, but enough's enough for the time being.
A Ahh.
- 5 A How come Dave has such a cushy life? He never seems to do any work.
B Didn't you know? He created some kind of app for cell phones, and he sold it for millions of dollars!
A You're kidding! I had no idea. I wish I had come up with a cool cell phone app.
B Me too, but that's life.

CD4 29 No Time To Think

by Paul Anthony

No time to think, no time for dreams
No time for anything it seems.
No time to stop, no time to waste,
No time for anything but haste.

No time to wonder at the snow,
No time to watch our children grow.
But time enough to race about
And time enough to scream and shout.

And time enough to rush, rush, rush,
And time enough to push, push, push.
But no time to care or to smile,
No time to ramble for a while.

No time to sit, no time to stand,
No time to shake you by the hand.
No time to stop, no time to blink
But most of all no time to think.

CD4 30

- 1 A Did you see the game last night?
B No, but apparently it was a good one. We won, didn't we?
A Actually, it was a tie, but it was really exciting.
- 2 A What do you think of Claire's new boyfriend?
B Personally, I can't stand him. I think he'll dump her like all the rest. However, that's her problem, not mine.
A Poor Claire! She always picks the wrong ones, doesn't she? Anyway, we'll find out soon enough.
- 3 A I don't know how you can afford to buy all those fabulous clothes!
B Hopefully, I'm going to get a bonus this month. My boss promised. After all, I did earn more than $100,000 for the company last year. So, basically, I deserve it.
- 4 A She said some terrible things to me. I hate her!
B All the same, I think you should apologize to her. If you ask me, you lose your temper too easily. You're being very childish. It's time you both grew up!
A What? I never thought I'd hear you speak to me like that.
B Honestly, I'm not taking sides. I just think you should make up.
- 5 A So, Billy. You say that this is the last album you're ever going to make?
B Definitely.
A But surely you realize how upset your fans are going to be?
B Obviously, I don't want to hurt anyone, but basically I'm fed up with pop music. I'd like to do something else. Ideally, I'd like to get into movies.

Grammar Reference

UNIT 1

1.1 The tense system

There are three classes of verbs in English: auxiliary verbs, modal verbs, and full verbs.

1 Auxiliary verbs

The auxiliary verbs are be, do, and have.

be

- 1 Be is used with verb + -ing to make continuous verb forms.

You're lying. (present)
They were reading. (past)
I've been swimming. (present perfect)
We'll be having dinner at eight o'clock. (future)
You must be joking! (base form)

- 2 Be is used with the past participle to make the passive.

These books are printed in China. (present)
Where were you born? (past)
My phone's been stolen. (present perfect)
The city had been destroyed. (past perfect)
This work should be done soon. (base form)

do

- 1 Do/does/did are used in the Simple Present and the Simple Past.

Do you live near here? (question)
She doesn't understand. (negative)
When did they arrive? (question)

- 2 Do/does/did are used to express emphasis when there is no other auxiliary.

I'm not interested in sports, but I do like tennis.
"If only she had a car!" "She does have a car!"
"Why didn't you tell me?" "I did tell you!"

have

Have is used with the past participle to make Perfect verb forms.

Have you ever tried sushi? (present)
My car had broken down before. (past)
I'll have finished soon. (future)
I'd like to have met Napoleon. (base form)
Having had lunch, we cleaned up. (participle)

Other uses of auxiliary verbs

- 1 In tag questions.

It's cold today, isn't it?
You don't know Amelia, do you?
You haven't been to China, have you?

- 2 In short answers. Yes or No alone can sound abrupt.

"Are you hungry?" "No, I'm not."
"Do you like jazz?" "Yes, I do."
"Did you have a nice meal?" "Yes, we did."
"Has she seen the mess?" "No, she hasn't."

- 3 In reply questions. These are not real questions. They are used to show that the listener is paying attention and is interested. They are practiced on p. 25.

"The restaurant was awful!" "Was it? That's too bad."
"I love hamburgers." "Do you? I hate them."
"I've bought you a present." "Have you? How nice!"

2 Modal auxiliary verbs

These are the modal auxiliary verbs.

can could may might will would should must ought to need

They are auxiliary verbs because they "help" other verbs. They are different from be, do, and have because they have their own meanings.

He must be at least 70. (= probability)
You must try harder. (= obligation)
Can you help me? (= request)
She couldn't have gotten my text. (= probability)
I'll help you. (= willingness)

Modal auxiliary verbs are dealt with in Units 7 and 10.

3 Full verbs

Full verbs are all the other verbs in the language.

The verbs be, do, and have can also be used as full verbs with their own meanings.

Have you been to school today?
I want to be an engineer.
I do a lot of business in Russia.
The vacation did us a lot of good.
They're having an argument.
Have you had enough to eat?

1.2 English tense usage

English tenses have two elements of meaning: time and aspect.

Time

- 1 The time referred to is usually obvious from the context.
English people drink tea. (all time)
Shh! I'm watching this program! (now)
I'll see you later. (future)
I went out with Jenny last night. (past)
- 2 Sometimes a present tense form can refer to the future.
I'm going out tonight. (Present Continuous for near future)
The train leaves at 10:00 tomorrow. (Simple Present for a timetable)
If you see Peter, say hello from me. (Simple Present in a subordinate clause)
- 3 Sometimes a past tense form can refer to the present in meaning.
I wish I could help you, but I can't.

This use of unreal tense usage is dealt with in Unit 11.

irLanguage.com

The simple aspect

- The simple aspect describes an action or fact that is seen to be complete or permanent, often an action or event that happens repeatedly and consistently.
The sun rises in the east. (= repeated)
When I finish, I'll lend the book to you. (= complete)
She has red hair. (= permanent)
He always wore a suit. (= a habit)
It rained every day of our vacation. (= the whole two weeks)
This store will close at 7:00 this evening. (= a fact)
- Remember the verbs that rarely use the continuous aspect. This is because they express states that are seen to be permanent and not subject to frequent change.

Verbs of the mind	know understand believe think mean
Verbs of emotions	love hate like prefer care
Verbs of possession	have own belong
Certain other verbs	cost need contain depend

- The simple aspect expresses a completed action. For this reason we must use the simple, not the continuous, if the sentence contains a number that refers to "things done."
She's written three letters this morning.
I drink ten cups of tea a day.
He read five books while he was on vacation.
- Simple tenses are dealt with further in Units 2, 3, and 5.

The continuous aspect

- The continuous aspect expresses the ongoing nature of an activity. We are aware of the passing of time between the beginning and the end of the activity. The activity is not permanent.
I'm staying with friends until I find an apartment. (= temporary)
What are you doing on your hands and knees? (= in progress)
I've been learning English for years. (And I still am.)
Don't call at 8:00. We'll be eating. (= in progress)
 - Because the activity is seen in progress, it can be interrupted.
We were walking across a field when we were attacked by a bull.
"Am I disturbing you?" "No. I'm just doing the dishes."
 - The activity may not be complete.
I was writing a report on the flight home. (I didn't finish it.)
He was drowning, but we saved him. (He didn't die.)
Who's been drinking my chai latte? (There's some left.)
 - The action of some verbs, by definition, lasts a long time, for example, live, work, play. The continuous gives these actions limited duration and makes them temporary.
Sergio is living in Seattle while he's learning English.
I'm working as a waiter until I go to college.
Italy has been playing well recently. Maybe they'll win the World Cup.
 - The action of some other verbs lasts a short time, for example, lose, break, cut, hit, crash. They are often found in the simple aspect.
I lost all my money. I've crashed your car. Sorry
She's cut her finger. He hit me.
- In the continuous, the action of these verbs seems longer or habitual.
I've been cutting the grass. (= for hours)
He was hitting me. (= again and again)

Note

We cannot say a sentence such as I've been crashing your car* because it suggests an activity that was done deliberately and often. Continuous tenses are dealt with further in Units 2, 3, and 5.

The perfect aspect

The perfect aspect expresses two ideas.

- The action is completed before another time.
Have you ever been to the US? (= some time before now)
When I arrived, Peter had left. (= some time before I arrived)
I'll have finished the report by 10:00. (= some time before then)
 - The exact time of the verb action is not important. The perfect aspect refers to indefinite time.
Have you seen my wallet anywhere? I've lost it. (= before now)
We'll have arrived by this evening. (= before this evening)
 The exception to this is the Past Perfect, which can refer to definite time.
I recognized him immediately. I had met him in 1992 at school.
- Perfect tenses are dealt with further in Units 2, 3, and 5.

Active and passive

- Passive sentences move the focus of attention from the subject of an active sentence to the object.
Shakespeare wrote Hamlet in 1599.
Hamlet, one of the great tragedies, was written in 1599.
 - In most cases, by and the agent are omitted in passive sentences. This is because the agent is not important, isn't known, or is understood.
Sushi is made with rice and fish.
This house was built in the 17th century.
The car will be cleaned before it's returned.
 - Sometimes we prefer to begin a sentence with what is known, and end a sentence with what is "new." In the passive, the "new" can be the agent of the active sentence.
"What a lovely painting!" "Yes. It was painted by Canaletto."
 - In informal language, we often use you or they to refer to people in general or to no one in particular. In this way we can avoid using the passive.
You can buy anything on the Internet.
They're building a new airport soon.
 - There are many past participles that are used more like adjectives.
I'm very impressed by your work.
You must be disappointed with your test scores.
I'm exhausted! I've been on my feet all day.
- Passive sentences are dealt with further in Unit 3.

UNIT 2

Introduction to the Present Perfect

- 1 Many languages have a past tense to refer to past time, and a present tense to refer to present time. English has these, too, but it also has the Present Perfect, which relates past actions to the present.
- 2 The use of the Simple Past roots an action in the past, with no explicit connection to the present. When we come across a verb in the Simple Past, we want to know When?
- 3 The use of the Present Perfect always has a link with the present. When we come across a verb in the Present Perfect, we want to know how this affects the situation now.
- 4 Compare these sentences.

I lived in Rome. (But not anymore.)

I've lived in Rome, Paris, and New York. (I know all these cities now.)

I've been living in New York for ten years. (And I'm living there now.)

She's been married three times. (She's still alive.)

She was married three times. (She's dead.)

Did you see the Renoir exhibition? (It's finished now.)

Have you seen the Renoir exhibition? (It's still on.)

Did you see that program on TV? (I'm thinking of the one that was on last night.)

Did you enjoy the movie? (Said as we're leaving the movie theater.)

Have you enjoyed the vacation? (Said near the end of the vacation.)

Where have I put my glasses? (I want them now.)

Where did I put my glasses? (I had them a minute ago.)

It rained yesterday. (= past time)

It's been snowing. (There's snow still on the ground.)

Present Perfect and Continuous

See the introduction to the perfect aspect and the continuous aspect in Unit 1.

Present Perfect and Continuous have three main uses.

1 Unfinished past

The verb action began in the past and continues to the present. It possibly goes on into the future, as well.

We've lived in this house for 20 years.

Sorry, I'm late. Have you been waiting long?

I've been a teacher for five years.

I've been working at the same school all that time.

Notes

- There is sometimes little or no difference between the simple and the continuous.
I've played/I've been playing tennis since I was a kid.
- The continuous can sometimes suggest a more temporary situation. The simple can sound more permanent.
I've been living with a host family for six weeks.
The castle has stood on the hill overlooking the water for centuries.
- Certain verbs, by definition, suggest duration, for example, wait, rain, snow, learn, sit, lie, play, stay. They are often found in the continuous.
It's been raining all day.
She's been sitting reading for hours.
- Remember that state verbs rarely take the continuous.
*I've known Joan for years. I've been knowing
*How long have you had that car? have-you-been-having
*I've never understood why she likes him. I've never been understanding

2 Present result

The verb action happened in the past, usually the recent past, and the results of the action are relevant now.

You've changed. What have you done to yourself?

I've lost some weight.

I've been doing some exercise.

I'm covered in mud because I've been gardening.

In this use, the simple emphasizes the completed action. The continuous emphasizes the repeated or ongoing activities over a period of time.

Notes

- Certain verbs, by definition, suggest a short action, for example, start, find, lose, begin, stop, break, die, decide, cut. They are more often found in the simple.
We've decided to get married.
I've broken a tooth.
I've cut my finger.
In the continuous, these verbs suggest a repeated activity.
I've been cleaning the house for days.
You've been losing everything lately. What's the matter with you?
I've been chopping wood.
- The use of the simple suggests a completed action.
I've painted the bathroom.
The use of the continuous suggests a possibly incomplete action.
I'm tired because I've been working. (Finished? Not finished?)
Someone's been eating my chocolate. (There is some left.)
- The continuous can be found unqualified by any further information.
I'm wet because I've been swimming.
We're tired because we've been working.
"Why are you red?" "I've been running."
The simple sounds very wrong in this use.
I've swam. *We've worked. I've run
- Sometimes there is little difference between the Simple Past and the Present Perfect.
Where did you put my keys?
have you put

3 Indefinite past

The verb action happened at an unspecified time in the past. The actual time isn't important. We are focusing on the experience at some time in our life.

Have you ever had a serious illness?

She's never been abroad.

Note

- Notice these two sentences.
She's been to Spain. (At some time in her life.)
She's gone to Spain. (And she's there now.)
The first is an example of indefinite past.
The second is an example of present result.

UNIT 3

Narrative tenses

Simple Past and Present Perfect

See the introduction to the perfect aspect and the simple aspect in Grammar Reference Unit 2. The Simple Past differs from all three uses of the Present Perfect.

- 1 The Simple Past refers to finished past.

Shakespeare wrote plays. (He's dead.)
I've written short stories. (I'm alive.)

- 2 There is no present result.

I hurt my back. (But it's better now.)
I've hurt my back. (And it hurts now.)

- 3 It refers to definite past.

I saw him last night.
two weeks ago.
on Monday.
at 8:00.

Compare this with the indefinite adverbials found with the Present Perfect.

I've seen him recently.
since January.
I haven't seen him yet.
for months.
I've never seen him.
just

Note

Even when there is no past time adverbial, we can "build" a past time in our head.

Did you have a good vacation? (The vacation's over. You're here now.)
Thank you for dinner. It was delicious. (The meal is finished.)
Where did you buy that shirt? (when you were out shopping the other day.)

Simple Past

The Simple Past is used:

- 1 to express a finished action in the past.
Columbus discovered America in 1492.
- 2 to express actions that follow each other in a story.
I heard voices coming from downstairs, so I put on my bathrobe and went to investigate.
- 3 to express a past state or habit.
When I was a child, we lived in a small house by the ocean. Every day I walked for miles on the beach with my dog.

This use is often expressed with used to.

We used to live ... I used to walk ...

See Unit 9 for more information on used to.

See Unit 11 for information on the Simple Past used for hypothesis.

Past Continuous

See the introduction to the continuous aspect in Grammar Reference Unit 2.

The Past Continuous is used:

- 1 to express an activity in progress before and probably after a time in the past.
I called at 4:00, but there was no reply. What were you doing?
- 2 to describe a past situation or activity.
The cottage was looking so cozy. A fire was burning in the fireplace, music was playing, and from the kitchen were coming the most delicious smells.

- 3 to express an interrupted past activity.

I was taking a bath when the phone rang.

- 4 to express an incomplete activity in the past.

I was reading a book during the flight. (But I didn't finish it.)
I watched a movie during the flight. (the whole movie)

- 5 to express an activity that was in progress at every moment during a period of time.

I was working all day yesterday.
They were fighting throughout the entire vacation.

Notes

- The Simple Past expresses past actions as simple, complete facts. The Past Continuous gives past activities time and duration.
"What did you do last night?"
"I stayed at home and watched the basketball game."
"I called you last night, but there was no answer."
"Oh, I was watching the basketball game, and I didn't hear the phone. Sorry."
- Notice how the questions in the Past Continuous and Simple Past refer to different times.
When we arrived, Jan was ironing. She stopped ironing and made some coffee.
What was she doing when we arrived? She was ironing.
What did she do when we arrived? She made some coffee.

Past Perfect

See the introduction to the perfect aspect and the continuous aspect in Grammar Reference Unit 2.

The Past Perfect is used to look back to a time in the past and refer to an action that happened before then.

She was crying because her dog had died.
I arrived to pick up Dave, but he had already left.
Keith was fed up. He'd been looking for a job for months, but he hadn't found anything.

Notes

- The continuous refers to longer actions or repeated activities. The simple past tense refers to shorter, complete facts.
He'd lost his job and his wife had left him. Since then he'd been sleeping on the streets, and he hadn't been eating properly.
- The Past Perfect can refer to definite as well as indefinite time.
I knew his face immediately. I'd first met him in October 1993. (= definite)
I recognized her face. I'd seen her somewhere before. (= indefinite)

Past Perfect and Simple Past

- 1 Verbs in the Simple Past tell a story in chronological order.
John worked hard all day to prepare for the party. Everyone had a good time. Even the food was all right. Unfortunately, Andy upset Peter, so Peter left early. Pat came looking for Peter, but he wasn't there. It was a great party. John sat and looked at all the mess. He felt tired. It was time for bed.
- 2 By using the Past Perfect, the speaker or writer can tell a story in a different order.
John sat and looked at all the mess. It had been a great party, and everyone had had a good time. Even the food had been all right. Unfortunately, Andy upset Peter, so Peter left early. Pat came looking for Peter, but he'd already gone. John felt tired. He'd been working all day to prepare for the party. It was time for bed.

Note

For reasons of style, it is not necessary to have every verb in the Past Perfect.

... Andy upset Peter ... Peter left ...

Once the time of "past in the past" has been established, the Simple Past can be used as long as there is no ambiguity.

Time clauses

- 1 We can use time conjunctions to talk about two actions that happen one after the other. Usually the Past Perfect is not necessary in these cases, although it can be used.

After I'd taken/took a bath, I went to bed.

As soon as the guests left/had left, I started cleaning up.

I sat outside until the sun had gone/went down.

- 2 The Past Perfect can help make the first action seem separate, independent of the second, or completed before the second action started.

When I had read the paper, I threw it away.

We stayed up until all the guests had gone.

- 3 Two verbs in the Simple Past can suggest that the first action led into the other, or that one caused the other to happen.

When I heard the news, I burst out crying.

As soon as the alarm went off, I got up.

- 4 The Past Perfect is more common with when because it is ambiguous. The other conjunctions are more specific, so the Past Perfect is not so essential.

As soon as all the guests left, I cleaned up the house.

Before I met you, I didn't know the meaning of happiness.

When I opened the door, the cat jumped out.

When I'd opened the mail, I made another cup of tea.

See Unit 11 for information on the Past Perfect used for hypothesis.

- 3 We use which when the speaker has a limited number of choices in mind.

There's a blue one and a red one. Which do you want?

We use what when the speaker is not thinking of a limited number of choices.

What car do you drive?

Asking for descriptions

- 1 What is X like? means Give me some information about X because I don't know anything about it.

What's your car like?

What are your parents like?

- 2 How is X? asks about a person's health and happiness.

How's your mother these days?

Sometimes both questions are possible. What ... like? asks for objective information. How ...? asks for a more personal reaction.

"What was the party like?" "Noisy. Lots of people. It ended at three."
"How was the party?" "Amazing. I danced all night. Met tons of great people."

How was your journey?

How's your new job?

How's your meal?

Indirect questions

There is no inversion and no do/does/did in indirect questions.

*I wonder what she's doing. I wonder what is she doing.

*I don't know where he lives. I don't know where does he live.

Tell me when the train leaves.

I didn't understand what she was saying.

I have no idea why he went to India.

I'm not sure where they live.

He doesn't know whether he's coming or going.

UNIT 4

irLanguage.com

4.1 QuestionsQuestion forms

Notice these question forms.

- Subject questions with no auxiliary verb
Who broke the window?
What happens at the end of the book?
- Questions with prepositions at the end
Who is your email from?
What are you talking about?
- Question words + noun/adjective/adverb
What kind of music do you like?
How big is their new house?
How fast does your car go?
- Other ways of asking Why?
What did you do that for?
How come you got here before us?
How come ...? expresses surprise. Notice that there is no inversion and no do/does/did in this question form.

what and which

- 1 What and which are used with nouns to make questions.
What size shoes do you wear?
Which of these salsas is the hottest?
- 2 Sometimes there is no difference between questions with what and which.
What/Which is the biggest city in your country?
What/Which channel is the game on?

4.2 NegativesForming negatives

- 1 We make negatives by adding not/n't after the auxiliary verb. If there is no auxiliary verb, we add do/does/did.
I haven't seen her for years.
It wasn't raining.
You shouldn't have gone to so much trouble.
We don't like big dogs.
They didn't want to go out.
- 2 The verb have, as a main verb, has one form in the present.
I don't have any money.
And one in the past ...
I didn't have any money.
- 3 Infinitives and -ing forms can be negative.
We decided not to do anything.
I like not working. It suits me.
- 4 Not can go with other parts of a sentence.
Ask him, not me.
Buy me anything, but not perfume.
- 5 When we introduce negative ideas with verbs such as think, believe, suppose, and imagine, we make the first verb negative, not the second.
*I don't think you're right. I think you aren't ...
I don't suppose you want to play some tennis?
- 6 In short answers, the following forms are possible:
"I think so."
"I believe so."
Are you coming?" "I hope so."
"I don't think so."
"I hope not."
I think not is possible. I don't hope so* is not possible.

Negative questions

- Negative questions can express various ideas.
Haven't you finished school yet? (surprise)
Don't you think we should wait for them? (suggestion)
Wouldn't it be better to go tomorrow? (persuasion)
Can't you see I'm busy? Go away! (criticism)
Isn't it a beautiful day! (exclamation)
- In the main use of negative questions, the speaker would usually expect a positive situation, but now expresses a negative situation. The speaker therefore is surprised.
Don't you like ice cream? Everyone likes ice cream!
Haven't you done your homework yet? What have you been doing?
- Negative questions can also be used to mean Confirm what I think is true. In this use it refers to a positive situation.
Haven't I met you somewhere before? (I'm sure I have.)
Didn't we speak about this yesterday? (I'm sure we did.)
- The difference between the two uses can be seen clearly if we change them into sentences with tag questions.
You haven't done your homework yet, have you? (negative sentence, positive tag)
We've met before, haven't we? (positive sentence, negative tag)

UNIT 5Introduction to future forms

There is no one future tense in English. Instead, there are several verb forms that can refer to future time. Sometimes, several forms are possible to express a similar meaning, but not always.

will for prediction

- The most common use of will is as an auxiliary verb to show future time. It expresses a future fact or prediction – at some time in the future this event will happen. This use is uncolored by ideas such as intention, decision, arrangement, willingness, etc.
I'll be 30 in a few days.
It will be cold and wet tomorrow. I'm afraid.
Who do you think will win the game?
You'll feel better if you take this medicine.
I'll see you later.
This is the nearest English has to a neutral, pure future tense.
- Will* for a prediction can be based more on an opinion than a fact or evidence. It is often found with expressions such as I think ..., I hope ..., I'm sure ....
I think the Democrats will win the next election.
I hope you'll come and visit me.
I'm sure you'll pass your exams.
- Will* is common in the main clause when there is a subordinate clause with if, when, before, etc. Note that we don't use will in the subordinate clause.
You'll break the glass if you aren't careful.
When you're ready, we'll start the meeting.
I won't go until you arrive.
As soon as Peter comes, we'll have lunch.

going to for prediction

Going to can express a prediction based on a present fact. There is evidence now that something is sure to happen. We can see the future from the present.

Careful! That glass is going to fall over. Too late!
Look at that blue sky! It's going to be a beautiful day.

Notes

- Sometimes there is little or no difference between will and going to.
We'll run out of money if we aren't careful.
We're going to run
- We use going to when we have physical evidence to support our prediction.
She's going to have a baby. (Look at her bump.)
Dallas is going to win. (It's 14–0, and there are only five minutes left.)
That glass is going to fall. (It's rolling to the edge of the table.)
- We can use will when there is no such outside evidence. Our prediction is based on our own personal opinion. It can be more theoretical and abstract.
I'm sure you'll have a good time at the wedding. (This is my opinion.)
I think Dallas will win. (Said the day before the game.)
The glass will break if it falls. (This is what happens to glasses that fall.)
- Compare the sentences.
I bet John will be home late. The traffic is always bad at this time. (= my opinion)
John's going to be home late. He left a message on my voicemail. (= a fact)
Don't lend Keith your car. He'll crash it. (= a theoretical prediction)
Look out! We're going to crash! (= a prediction based on evidence)

Decisions and intentions – will and going to

- Will* is used to express a decision or intention made at the moment of speaking.
I'll call you back in a minute.
Give me a call some time. We'll go out together.
"The phone's ringing." "I'll get it."
- Going to* is used to express a future plan, decision, or intention made before the moment of speaking.
When she grows up, she's going to be a performer.
We're going to get married in the spring.

Other uses of will

- Will* as a prediction is an auxiliary verb that simply shows future time. The word itself has no real meaning.
Tomorrow will be cold and windy.
- Will* is also a modal auxiliary verb, and so it can express a variety of meanings. The meaning often depends on the meaning of the main verb.
I'll help you carry those bags. (= offer)
Will you marry me? (= willingness)
Will you open the window? (= request)
My car won't start. (= refusal)
I'll love you for ever. (= promise)

UNIT 6

Present Continuous for arrangements

- 1 The Present Continuous is used to express personal arrangements and fixed plans, especially when the time and place have been decided. A present tense is used because there is some reality in the present. The event is planned or decided, and we can see it coming. The event is usually in the near future.

I'm having lunch with Brian tomorrow.

What time are you meeting him?

Where are you having lunch?

What are you doing tonight?

- 2 The Present Continuous for future is often used with verbs of movement and activity

Are you coming to the concert tonight?

I'm meeting the director tomorrow.

We're playing tennis this afternoon.

- 3 The Present Continuous is used to refer to arrangements between people. It is not used to refer to events that people can't control.

*It's going to rain this afternoon. It's raining this afternoon.

*The sun rises at 5:30 tomorrow. The sun is rising...

Notes

- Sometimes there is little or no difference between the Present Continuous and going to to refer to the future.
We're seeing Hamlet at the theater tonight.
We're going to see
- When there is a difference, the Present Continuous emphasizes an arrangement with some reality in the present; going to expresses a person's intentions.
I'm seeing my friend tonight.
*I'm going to ask her to marry me. I'm asking...
What are you doing this weekend?
What are you going to do about the broken toilet? (= What have you decided to do?)

Simple Present for timetables

- 1 The Simple Present refers to a future event that is seen as unalterable because it is based on a timetable or calendar.

My flight leaves at 10:00.

Classes start on April 4.

What time does the movie start?

It's my birthday tomorrow.

- 2 It is used in subordinate clauses introduced by conjunctions such as if, when, before, as soon as, unless, etc.

We'll have a picnic if the weather stays nice.

When I get home, I'll make dinner.

I'll leave as soon as it stops raining.

Future Continuous

- 1 The Future Continuous expresses an activity that will be in progress before and after a time in the future.

Don't call at 6:00. We'll be having dinner.

This time tomorrow I'll be flying to New York.

- 2 The Future Continuous is used to refer to a future event that will happen in the natural course of events. This use is uncolored by ideas such as intention, decision, arrangement, or willingness. As time goes by, this event will occur.

Don't worry about our guests. They'll be arriving any minute now.

We'll be going right back to the game after the break. (said on TV)

Future Perfect

The Future Perfect refers to an action that will be completed before a definite time in the future. It is not a very common verb form.

I'll have done all my work by this evening.

Expressing quantity

Quantifiers

- 1 The following can be used before a noun.

some/any	much/many	each/every	more/most	a little/little a few/few	both	fewer/less	several	all/r.o. enough

With count nouns only	With noncount nouns only	With singular count nouns only
(not) many cookies a few cars very few trees fewer books several answers	(not) much luck a little cheese very little experience less time	each boy every time
		With plural count nouns only both parents
With both count and noncount nouns
some money some eggs (not) any water (not) any friends	more/most apple cider more/most people all/no work all/no children	enough food enough apples

- 2 Most of the quantifiers can be used without a noun. No, all, every, and each cannot.

Do you have any money?

Not much/a little/enough.

Are there any eggs?

A few/not many.

Have some apple cider.

I don't want any.

How many people came?

Very few.

Have some more tea.

I have some.

Did Ann or Sam go?

Both.

- 3 Most of the quantifiers can be used with of + the/my/those, etc. + noun. No and every cannot.

They took all of my money.

Take a few of these pills.

Some of the people at the party started performing.

Were any of my friends at the party?

Very few of my friends live with their parents.

Not much of the food was left.

I've missed too many of my French classes.

I couldn't answer several of the questions.

I'll have a little of the strawberry cake, please.

Both of my children are smart.

I feel tired most of the time.

I've had enough of your jokes.

- 4 For no and every, we use no one or a.l.

None of the audience was listening.

All of the hotels were booked.

In formal, written English, none is followed by a singular form of the verb.

None of the guests has arrived yet.

But in informal English, a plural verb is possible.

None of my friends live with their parents.

None of the lights are working.

Note

When we use none with a plural noun or pronoun, the verb can be singular or plural. Grammatically, it should be singular, but people often use the plural when they speak.

None of my friends is coming.

None of my friends are coming.

some, any, somebody, anything

- 1 The basic rule is that some and its compounds are used in affirmative sentences, and any and its compounds in negatives and questions.

I need some help.

I need somebody to help me.

Give me something for my headache.

I don't need any help.

We can't go anywhere without being recognized.

Is there any sugar left?

Did anyone remember to buy milk?

- 2 Some and its compounds are used in requests or invitations, or when we expect the answer "yes."

Do you have some money you could lend me?

Would you like something to eat?

Can we go somewhere quiet to talk?

- 3 Any and its compounds are used in affirmative sentences that have a negative meaning.

He never has any money.

You made hardly any mistakes.

I made the cake myself without any help.

- 4 Any and its compounds are used to express It doesn't matter which/who/where.

Take any book you like. I don't mind.

Anyone will tell you 2 plus 2 is 4.*

Sit anywhere you like.

I eat anything. I'm not picky.

nobody, no one, nowhere, nothing

- 1 These are more emphatic forms.

I saw nobody all weekend.

I've eaten nothing all day.

- 2 They can be used at the beginning of sentences.

No one was saved.*

Nobody understands me.*

Nowhere is safe anymore.*

much, many, a lot of, lots of, a great deal of, a large number of, plenty of

- 1 Much and many are usually used in questions and negatives.

How much does it cost?

How many people came to the party?

Is there much unemployment in your country?

I don't have much money.

Will there be many people there?

You don't see many snakes in this area.

- 2 We find much and many in affirmative sentences after so, as, and too.

He has so much money that he doesn't know what to do with it.

She has almost as many Facebook friends as I have.

You make too many mistakes. Be careful.

- 3 In affirmative sentences, the following forms are found.

Spoken/informal

There'll be plenty of food/people. (noncount and count)

We have lots of time/friends. (noncount and count)

I lost a lot of my furniture/things. (noncount and count)

Written/more formal

A great deal of money was lost during the strike. (noncount)*

A large number of strikes are caused by bad management. (count)*

Many world leaders are young. (count)*

Much time is wasted in trivial pursuits. (noncount)*

- 4 These forms are found without nouns.

"Do you have enough socks?" "Lots."

"How many people were there?" "A lot."

Don't worry about food. We have plenty.

little/few/less/fewer

- 1 A little and a few express a small amount or number in a positive way. Although there is only a little, it is probably enough.

Can you lend me a little sugar?

A few friends are coming over tonight.*

- 2 Little and few express a small amount in a negative way. There is not enough.

Very few people passed the exam.*

There's very little milk left.

- 3 Fewer is the comparative of few; less is the comparative of little.

Fewer people use snail mail these days. (= count noun)*

I spend less and less time doing what I want to. (= noncount noun)

It is becoming more common to find less with a count noun. Many people think that this is incorrect and sounds terrible.

~~Less people use snail mail.*~~

~~You should invite less people next time.*~~

all

- 1 We do not usually use all to mean everybody/everyone/everything.

Everybody had a good time.*

Everything was ruined in the fire.*

I said hello to everyone.

But if all is followed by a relative clause, it can mean everything.

All (that) I own is yours.*

I spend all I earn.

This structure can have a negative meaning, expressing ideas such as nothing more or only this.

All I want is a place to sleep.*

All I had was a cup of coffee and some toast.*

All that happened was that he dropped a glass, and she cleaned it up.*

- 2 Before a noun with a determiner (for example the, my, this) both all and all of are possible.

You eat all (of) the time.

All (of) my friends are coming tonight.*

Before a noun with no determiner, we use all.

All people are born equal.*

- 3 With personal pronouns, we use all of.

All of you passed. Good job!*

I don't need these books. You can have all of them.

UNIT 7

Introduction to modal auxiliary verbs

- 1 These are the modal auxiliary verbs.

can	could	may	might	should will	would	must	ought to

They are used with great frequency and with a wide range of meanings. They express ideas such as willingness and ability, permission and refusal, obligation and prohibition, suggestion, necessity, promise, and intention. All modal auxiliary verbs can express degrees of certainty, probability, or possibility.

- 2 They have several characteristics.

- There is no -s in the third person.

He can swim.

She must go.

- There is no do/does in the question.

May I ask a question?

Should we go?

- There is no don't/doesn't in the negative.

You shouldn't tell lies.

You won't believe this.

- They are followed by a verb in the base form. The exception is ought to.

It might rain.

Could you help?

We ought to be on our way.

- They don't really have past forms, base forms, or -ing forms. Other verbs are used instead.

I had to work hard when I was young.

I'd love to be able to ski.

I hate having to get up in the morning.

- They can be used with perfect verbs in the base form to refer to the past. For more information, see Grammar Reference Unit 10.

You should have told me that you can't swim.

You might have drowned!

She must have been crazy to marry him.

Modal auxiliary verbs of probability, present and future

The main modal auxiliary verbs that express probability are described here in order of certainty. Will is the most certain, and might/could are the least certain.

will

Will and won't are used to predict a future action. The truth or certainty of what is asserted is more or less taken for granted.

I'll see you later.

His latest book will be out next month.

must and can't

- 1 Must is used to assert what we infer or conclude to be the most logical or rational interpretation of a situation. We do not have all the facts, so it is less certain than will.

You say he walked across the Sahara Desert! He must be crazy!

You must be tired. That was a long walk!

- 2 The negative of this use is can't.

She can't have a ten-year-old daughter! She's only 21 herself.

"Whose is this coat?" "It can't be Mary's. It's too big."

should

- 1 Should expresses what may reasonably be expected to happen. Expectation means believing that things are or will be as we want them to be. This use of should has the idea of if everything has gone according to plan.

Our guests should be here soon (if they haven't gotten lost).

This homework shouldn't take you too long (if you've understood what you have to do).

We should be moving into our new house soon (as long as nothing goes wrong).

- 2 Should in this use has the idea that we want the action to happen. It is not used to express negative or unpleasant ideas.

You should pass the exam. You've worked hard.

You should fail the exam. You haven't done any work at all.*

We would say ... I don't think you'll pass the exam.

may and might

- 1 May expresses the possibility that an event will happen or is happening.

We may go to Greece this year. We haven't decided yet.

"Where's Ann?" "She may be taking a shower, I don't know."

- 2 Might is more tentative and slightly less certain than may.

It might rain. Take your umbrella.

"Where's Peter?" "He might be upstairs. There's a light on."

- 3 Learners of English often express these concepts of future possibility with perhaps or maybe ... will and so avoid using may and might. However, these are widely used by native speakers, and you should try to use them.

could

- 1 Could has a similar meaning to might.

You could be right. I'm not sure.

That movie could be worth seeing. It got good reviews.

- 2 Couldn't is not used to express a future possibility. The negative of could in this use is might not.

You might not be right.

That movie might not be any good.

- 3 Couldn't has a similar meaning to can't above, only slightly weaker.

She couldn't have a ten-year-old daughter! She's only 21 herself.

Related verbs

Here are some related verb forms that express probability.

William's super smart. He's bound to pass the exam.

We're having a picnic tomorrow, so it's bound to rain.

You're likely to find life very different when you live in China.

Are you likely to come across Judith while you're in Oxford?

➤ Other uses of modal auxiliary verbs and related verbs

Here is some further information about modal auxiliary verbs, but it is by no means complete. See a grammar book for more details.

Ability

- 1 Can expresses ability. The past is expressed by could.
I can speak three languages.
I could swim when I was three.
- 2 Other forms are provided by be able to.
I've never been able to understand her. (Present Perfect)
I'd love to be able to drive. (infinitive)
Being able to drive has transformed my life.* (-ing form)
You'll be able to walk again soon. (future)
- 3 To express a fulfilled ability on one particular occasion in the past, could is not used. Instead, we use was able to or managed to.
She was able to survive by clinging onto the wrecked boat.
The prisoner managed to escape by climbing onto the roof.

Advice

- 1 Should and ought to express mild obligation or advice. Should is much more common.
You should go to bed. You look very tired.
You ought to take things easier.
- 2 We use had better to give strong advice, or to tell people what to do. There can be an element of threat – “If you don't do this, something bad will happen.”
You'd better get a haircut before the interview. (If you don't, you won't get the job.)
I'm late. I'd better get moving. (If I don't, I'll be in trouble.)

Note

The form is always past (had), but it refers to the immediate future.
She'd better start studying. Final exams are next week.

Obligation

- 1 Must expresses strong obligation. Other verb forms are provided by have to.
You must try harder!
You must not hit your baby brother.
What time do you have to start work?
I had to work hard to pass my exams. (Simple Past)
You'll have to do this exercise again. (future)
We might have to make some changes to the schedule. (infinitive)
She's never had to do a single day's work in her life. (Present Perfect)
I hate having to get up early. (-ing form)
- 2 Must expresses the opinion of the speaker.
I must get my hair cut. (I am telling myself.)
You must do this again. (Teacher to student)
Must is associated with a more formal, written style.
Candidates must answer three questions. (On an exam)
Books must be returned by the end of the week. (Instructions in a library)
- 3 Have to expresses a general obligation based on a law or rule, or based on the authority of another person.
Children have to go to school until they're 16. (It's the law.)
Mom says you have to clean your room.
- 4 Must not expresses negative obligation. Don't have to expresses the absence of obligation.
You must not steal. It's against the law.
You don't have to go to the US in order to learn English.

- 5 Have got to is more informal than have to.
I've got to go now. See you later!
Don't stay up late tonight. We've got to get up early tomorrow.
- 6 Here are some related verb forms that express obligation.
Visitors are required to have a visa.
When you're 21, you're supposed to take responsibility for yourself.
You aren't supposed to park in a no-parking zone.
You need to think carefully before you make a decision.
He doesn't need to work. He's a millionaire.

Permission

- 1 May, can, and could are used to ask for permission.
May I ask you a question?
May I use your phone?
Can/Could I go home? I don't feel well.
Can/Could I borrow your car tonight?
- 2 May is used to give permission, but it sounds very formal. Can and can't are more common.
You can use a dictionary for this exam.
You can't stay up till midnight. You're only five.
You can't text while driving. It's forbidden.
- 3 To talk about permission generally, or permission in the past, we use can, could, or be allowed to.
Children can/are allowed to do what they want these days.
I couldn't/wasn't allowed to go out on my own until I was 18.
- 4 Here are some related verb forms that express permission.
Passengers are not permitted to use mobile devices.
My parents don't allow me to ...
I'm not allowed to stay out late.
My parents don't let me ...
Note that this sentence with let is not possible in the passive.
I'm not let ...*

Willingness and refusal

- 1 Will expresses willingness. Won't expresses a refusal by either people or things.
I'll help you.
She says she won't get up until she's had breakfast in bed.
The car won't start.
- 2 The past is expressed by wouldn't.
My boss said she wouldn't give me a promotion. I'm going to look for another job.

Requests

Several modal verbs express a request.
Can/Could/Will/Would you do me a favor?
Can/Could I open the window?

Modal verbs are also dealt with in Units 9, 10, and 11.

UNIT 8

8.1 Introduction to relative clauses

It is important to understand the difference between two kinds of relative clauses.

- Defining relative (DR) clauses qualify a noun, and tell us exactly which person or thing is being referred to.
She likes people who are fun to be with.
Politicians who tell lies are odious.
A key fob is a thing you use to unlock or start a car.
She likes people on its own doesn't mean very much; we need to know which people she likes.
Who tell lies tells us exactly which politicians are odious. Without it, the speaker is saying that all politicians are odious.
A key fob is a thing doesn't make sense on its own.
- Non-defining relative (NDR) clauses add secondary information to a sentence, almost as an afterthought.
My friend Andrew, who is Canadian, plays the guitar.
Politicians, who tell lies, are odious.
My favorite building is Durham Cathedral, which took over 200 years to build.
My friend Andrew is clearly defined. We don't need to know which Andrew is being discussed. The clause who is Canadian gives us extra information about him.
The clause who tell lies suggests that all politicians tell lies. It isn't necessary to identify only those that deceive – they all do!
My favorite building is clearly defined. The following clause simply tells us something extra.
- DR clauses are much more common in the spoken language, and NDR clauses are more common in the written language. In the spoken language, we can avoid a NDR clause.
My friend Andrew plays the guitar. He's Canadian, by the way.
- When we speak, there is no pause before or after a DR clause, and no commas when we write. With NDR clauses, there are commas before and after, and pauses when we speak.
I like the things you say to me. (No commas, no pauses)
My aunt (pause), who has been a widow for 20 years (pause), loves traveling.

Defining relative clauses

- Notice how we can leave out the relative pronoun if it is the object of the relative clause. This is very common.

Pronoun left out

Did you like the present () I gave you?
Who was that man () you were talking to?
The thing () I like about Dave is his sense of humor.

- We cannot leave out the pronoun if it is the subject of the clause.

Pronoun not left out

I met a man who works in advertising.
I'll lend you the book that changed my life.
The thing that helped me most was knowing I wasn't alone.

- Here are the possible pronouns. The words in parentheses are possible, but not as common. () means "nothing."

	Person	Thing
Subject	who (that)	that (which)
Object	() (that)	() (that)

Notes

- That* is preferred to which after superlatives, and words such as all, every(thing), some(thing), any(thing), and only.
That's the funniest movie that was ever made.
All that's left is a few slices of pizza.

Give me something that'll take away the pain.
He's good at any sport that is played with a ball.
The only thing that'll help you is rest.

- That* is also preferred after it is ...
It is a movie that will be very popular.
- Prepositions usually come at the end of the relative clause.
Come and meet the people I work with.
This is the book I was telling you about.
She's a friend I can always rely on.

Non-defining relative clauses

- Relative pronouns cannot be left out of NDR clauses.

Relative pronoun as subject

Paul Jennings, who has written several books, addressed the meeting.
His last book, which received a lot of praise, has been a great success.

Relative pronoun as object

Paul Jennings, who I knew in college, addressed the meeting.
His last book, which I couldn't understand at all, has been a great success.

- Look at the possible pronouns. Whom is possible, but not as common.

	Person	Thing
Subject	... , who ... ,	... , which ... ,
Object	... , who (whom) ... ,	... , which ... ,

Note

Prepositions can come at the end of the clause.

He talked about theories of market forces, which I'd never even heard of.

In a more formal written style, prepositions come before the pronoun.
The privatization of railways, to which the present government is committed, is not universally popular.

Which

Which can be used in NDR clauses to refer to the whole of the sentence before.

She arrived on time, which amazed everybody.
He spent all his money on expensive shoes, which I thought was ridiculous.
The coffee machine isn't working, which means we can't have any coffee.

Whose

Whose can be used in both DR clauses and NDR clauses.

That's the woman whose son was killed recently.
My parents, whose only interest is gardening, never go away on vacation.

What

What is used in DR clauses to mean the thing that.

Did she tell you what's worrying her?
What I need to know is where we're meeting.*

Why, when, where

- Why* can be used in DR clauses to mean the reason why.

I don't know why we're arguing.

- When* and when can be used in DR clauses and NDR clauses.

Tell me when you expect to arrive.

The hotel where we stayed was excellent.

We go walking on Mondays, when the rest of the world is working.

He works in Denver, where my sister lives.

8.2 Participles

- When present participles (-ing) are used like adjectives or adverbs, they are active in meaning.
Modern art is interesting.
Pour boiling water over the oatmeal.
She sat in the corner crying.
- When past participles (usually -ed) are used like adjectives or adverbs, they are passive in meaning.
I'm interested in modern art.
Look at that broken doll.
He sat in his chair, filled with horror at what he had just seen.
- Participles after a noun define and identify in the same way as relative clauses.
I met a woman riding a donkey. (= who was riding ...)
The car stolen at night was later found abandoned. (= that was stolen ...)
- Participles can be used as adverbs. They can describe:
 - two actions happening at the same time.
She sat by the fire reading a book.
 - two actions that happen one after another.
Opening his briefcase, he took out a tablet.*
If it is important to show that the first action is completed before the second action begins, we use the perfect participle.
Having finished lunch, we set off on our walk.*
Having taken a shower, she got dressed.*
 - two actions that happen one because of another.
Being cheap, he never bought anyone a birthday present.*
Not knowing what to do, I waited patiently.*
- Many verbs are followed by -ing forms.
I spent my vacation reading.
Don't waste time thinking about the past.
Let's go swimming.
He keeps on asking me to go out with him.

UNIT 9

Expressing habit

Simple Present

- Adverbs of frequency come before the main verb, but after the verb to be.
We hardly ever go out.
She frequently forgets what she's doing.
We don't usually eat fish.
I rarely see Peter these days.
We are seldom at home in the evening.
Is he normally so bad-tempered?
- Sometimes, usually, and occasionally* can come at the beginning or the end of a sentence.
Sometimes we play cards.*
We go to the movies occasionally.
The other adverbs of frequency don't usually move in this way.
Always I have tea in the morning.

Present Continuous

- The Present Continuous can be used to express a habit that happens often and perhaps unexpectedly. It happens more than is usual.
I like Peter. He's always smiling.
She's always giving people presents.
- However, there is often an element of criticism with this structure. Compare these sentences said by a teacher.
Pedro always asks questions in class. (This is a fact.)
Pedro is always asking questions in class. (This annoys the teacher.)
- There is usually an adverb of frequency with this use.
I'm always losing my keys.
She's forever leaving the front door unlocked.

will and would

- Will* and would express typical behavior. They describe both pleasant and unpleasant habits.
He'll sit at his computer for hours on end.
She'd spend all day long gossiping with the neighbors.
Would cannot be used to express a state.
He'd live in a large house.*
- Will* and would, when decontracted and stressed, express an annoying habit or action.
He WILL eat all the leftover pizza when he comes home. Trust me!
She WOULD make us wash in ice-cold water.

used to + base form

- This structure expresses a past action and/or a state. It has no present equivalent.
When I was a child, we used to go on vacation to the ocean. (action)
He used to live in a large house. (state)
- Notice the negative and the question.
Where did you use to go?
*We didn't use to do anything interesting.
- We cannot use used to with a time reference + a number.
We used to take a vacation there for 10 years/three times.*
But ...
*We used to go there every year.
In a narrative, when expressing a series of past actions, it is common to begin with used to, and then continue with would, for reasons of style.
*When I was a child, we used to go on vacation to the ocean. We'd play on the beach, and then we'd eat at a small café for lunch.

be/get used to + noun + -ing form

- This is totally different from used to + base form. It expresses an action that was difficult, strange, or unusual before, but is no longer so. Here, used is an adjective, and it means familiar with.
*I found it difficult to get around New York City when I first came, but I'm used to it now.
I'm used to getting around New York City by subway.
- Notice the use of get to express the process of change.
I'm getting used to the climate.
Don't worry. You'll get used to eating with chopsticks.

UNIT 10

▶ Modal auxiliary verbs 2

Modal auxiliary verbs of probability in the past

- 1 They express varying degrees of certainty. Must have is the most certain, and might/may/could have is the least certain.
It must have been a good party. Everyone stayed late.
The music can't have been any good. Nobody danced.
Where's Pete? He should have been here hours ago!
He may have gotten lost.
He might have decided not to come.
He could have had an accident.
- 2 Would have thought is common to express an assumption or supposition.
I'd have thought they'd be here by now. Where are they?
You'd have thought she'd remember my birthday, wouldn't you?
Wouldn't you have thought they'd call if there was a problem?

Other uses of modal verbs in the past should have done

- 1 Should have done can express advice or criticism about a past event. The sentence expresses what is contrary to the facts.
You should have listened to my advice. (You didn't listen.)
I shouldn't have lied to you. I'm sorry. (I did lie.)
You shouldn't have told her you hated her. (You did tell her.)
- 2 Look at these sentences.
You should have been here yesterday!
You should have seen his face!
Should have done is used here for comic effect. The suggestion is because it was so funny!

could have done

- 1 Could have done is used to express an unrealized past ability. Someone was able to do something in the past, but didn't do it.
I could have gone to college, but I didn't want to.
We could have won the game. We didn't try hard enough.
I could have told you that Chris wouldn't come. He hates parties.
- 2 It is used to express a past possibility that didn't happen.
You fool! You could have killed yourself!
We were lucky. We could have been caught in that traffic jam.
When I took the burnt meal out of the oven, I could have cried!
- 3 It is used to criticize people for not doing things.
You could have told me that Sue and Jim had broken up!
I've been cleaning the house for hours. You could at least have done your bedroom!

might have done

- 1 The above use of could have done can also be expressed with might have done.
You might have helped instead of just sitting on your backside!
- 2 I might have known/guessed that ... is used to introduce a typical action of someone or something.
I might have known that Peter would be late. He's always late.
The car won't start. I might have guessed that would happen.

UNIT 11

▶ Hypothesizing

First and second conditionals

- 1 First conditional sentences are based on fact in real time. They express a possible condition and its probable result.
If you graduate from college, I'll buy you a car.
- 2 Second conditional sentences are not based on fact. They express a situation that is contrary to reality in the present and future. This unreality is shown by a tense shift from present to past. They express a hypothetical condition and its probable result.
If I were taller, I'd join the police force.
What would you do if you won the lottery?

Notes

- The difference between first and second conditional sentences is not about time. Both can refer to the present and future. By using past tense forms in the second conditional, the speaker suggests the situation is less probable, impossible, or imaginary.

Compare the pairs of sentences.

If it rains this weekend, we'll ... (said in places where it often rains)

If it rained in the Sahara, it would ... (this would be most unusual)

If global warming continues, we'll ... (I'm a pessimist.)

If global warming continued, we'd ... (I'm an optimist.)

If you come to my country, you'll have a good time. (possible)

If you came from my country, you'd understand us better. (unlikely)

If I am elected as a member of Congress, I'll ... (real candidate)

If I ruled the world, I'd ... (imaginary)

- We can use were instead of was, especially in a formal style.
If the situation were the opposite, would you feel obliged to help?

Third conditional

- 1 Third conditional sentences are not based on fact. They express a situation that is contrary to reality in the past. This unreality is shown by a tense shift from Simple Past to Past Perfect.
If you'd come to the party, you'd have had a great time.
I wouldn't have met my wife if I hadn't gone to Brazil.
- 2 It is possible for each of the clauses in a conditional sentence to have a different time reference, and the result is a mixed conditional.
If we had eaten (we didn't), we wouldn't be hungry (we are).
I wouldn't have married her (I did) if I didn't love her (I do).

Other structures that express hypothesis

- 1 The tense usage with wish, if only, and I'd rather is similar to the second and third conditionals. Unreality is expressed by a tense shift.
I wish I were taller. (But I'm not.)
If only you hadn't said that! (But you did.)
I'd rather you didn't wear lots of makeup. (But you do.)
I'd rather you ... is often used as a polite way to tell someone to do something differently. The negative form I'd rather you didn't ... is especially useful as a polite way to say "no."
"I'll come in with you." "I'd rather you waited outside."
"Can I open the window?" "I'd rather you didn't."

Notes

- wish ... would can express regret, dissatisfaction, impatience, or irritation because someone WILL keep doing something.
I wish you'd stop criticizing me.
I wish you'd do more to help around the house.
- If we are not talking about willingness, wish ... would is not used.
*I wish my birthday wasn't in December. (I wish it would be...)
*I wish I could stop checking my smartphone 50 times a day! (I wish I would is strange because you should have control over what you are willing to do.)
I wish he would stop throwing his dirty clothes on the floor.
This is correct because it means I wish he were willing to ...

UNIT 12Determiners

There are two kinds of determiners.

- 1 The first kind identifies things.
articles – a/an, the possessives – my, your, our ... demonstratives – this, that, these, those
- 2 The second kind are quantifiers, expressing how much or how many.
some, any, no
each, every, either, neither much, many, more, most
(a) little, less, least
(a) few, fewer, fewest enough, several all, both, half another, other
Determiners that express quantity are dealt with in Unit 6.

each and every

- 1 Each and every are used with singular nouns. Each can be used to talk about two or more people or things. Every is used to talk about three or more.
Every/Each time I come to your house it looks different.
Each/Every bedroom in our hotel is decorated differently.
- 2 In many cases, each and every can both be used with little difference in meaning.
We prefer each if we are thinking of people or things separately, one at a time. We use every if we are thinking of the things or people all together as a group.
Each student gave the teacher a present.
Every police officer in the country is looking for the suspect.

enough

- 1 When enough is used as a determiner, it comes before the noun.
We don't have enough food.
- 2 When it is used as an adverb, it comes after the adjective, adverb, or verb.
Your homework isn't good enough.
I couldn't run fast enough.
You don't exercise enough.

Articles

The use of articles is complex as there are a lot of “small” rules and exceptions. Here are the basic rules.

a/an

- 1 We use a/an to refer to a singular count noun that is indefinite. Either we don't know which one, or it doesn't matter which one.
They live in a big house.
I'm reading a good book.
She's expecting a baby.
- 2 We use a/an with professions.
She's a lawyer.

the

- 1 We use the before a singular or plural noun when both the speaker and the listener know which noun is being referred to.
They live in the green house across from the library.
The book was recommended by a friend.*
Watch out for the baby! She's near the fire.
I'm going to the mall. Do you want anything?
I'll see you at the office later.
“Where's Dad?” “In the backyard.”
- 2 We use the when there is only one.
the world the Hudson River the Atlantic Ocean*
- 3 We use the for certain places that are institutions. Which particular place isn't important.
We went to the movie theater last night.
We're going to the beach.

a followed by the

We use a to introduce something for the first time. When we refer to it again, we use the.

I saw a man walking a dog in the park today. The man was tiny and the dog was huge!

Zero article

- 1 We use no article with plural and noncount nouns when talking about things in general.
Computers have changed our lives.*
Love is eternal.*
Dogs need a lot of exercise.*
I hate hamburgers.
- 2 We use no article with meals.
Did you have lunch yet?
Come over for dinner tonight.
But ... We had a fantastic lunch in an Italian restaurant.

When was Lonely Planet founded?

In 1973. How many guidebooks have been printed?

Over 130 million. How many ...

The travel guide company Lonely Planet was founded by Tony and Maureen Wheeler in 1973. Lonely Planet is an outstanding publishing success. ... (How many?) guidebooks have now been printed and it has books for almost every country in the world. They have been translated into 13 languages. The website www.lonelyplanet.com receives ... (How many?) visitors per year, and there has been in excess of 10 million downloads of its apps. It has offices in the UK, the US, and India, with its headquarters in Melbourne, Australia.

Tony Wheeler lived in many different countries when he was young because ... (Why?). He studied engineering at Warwick University. Maureen was born in ... (Where?). She went to London at the age of 20 because she wanted to see the world. She met Tony in Regent's Park ... (When?).

In 1972, they traveled overland across Europe, through Asia, and onto Australia. The trip took six months. They wrote their first book, called Across Asia on the Cheap, ... (Where?). They have lived in Melbourne on and off for over 30 years. Together they have been to ... countries (How many?). Tony says that the most amazing place he has ever visited is a remote hilltop city called Tsaparang, in Tibet.

The Wheelers sold Lonely Planet in 2011, but Tony still writes for the company. His new book, Dark Lands, recalls his experiences in countries such as Pakistan and Colombia.

Can you believe it?

Mystery of man in the snow

People are now questioning Peter Skyllberg's story about getting stuck in the snow. It has emerged that Mr. Skyllberg had been living in his car since last May when he disappeared from his home in central Sweden. His business had collapsed, was in a lot of debt, and his girlfriend had left him. He hadn't spoken to any of his family for over 20 years, so nobody missed him. Local people say that he was only a mile from a main road and snowmobiles frequently pass that way, so it is very strange that his car was not noticed earlier. They can't believe he couldn't get out of his car and get help. Police now believe that Mr. Skyllberg actually just wanted to die.

RUSSIA

DRIVERS STUCK IN 120-MILE TRAFFIC

Tens of thousands of vehicles were stuck – some for three days – in a huge traffic jam on a road northwest of Moscow.

The length of the backup on the M-10 highway, which is one of the busiest in the country, was said to be 120 miles (200 km), according to media reports.

Heavy snow has been blamed for the gridlock, with one driver reported as saying he had traveled just “one kilometer over 24 hours.”

Temporary food vehicles have been set up along the road, but many drivers said they were running out of fuel to keep their engines and heaters running in the sub-zero temperatures.

“Drivers help one another and that’s it. The problems are on the side of the authorities,” a truck driver named Sergei said. “There are no gasoline tankers, no water, nothing. We are just stuck here.”

A police official said that by Sunday evening “the reach of the traffic jam is no longer than 34 miles (55 km) and is gradually falling.” The road is now thought to be moving normally again.

Fans line up for new game console

Nintendo has launched its eagerly anticipated Wii U in the US. This is the first major home console launch for over six years.

Hundreds of fans lined up outside Nintendo World Store in New York City, which hosted the official midnight launch despite the cold temperatures.

"Our store managers ensured it was well-stocked for the launch following a huge number of pre-orders."

The Wii U features the GamePad controller, a tablet-type device that allows users to continue playing after the connected television has been turned off. The controller boasts a 6.2-inch touchscreen display and a three- to five-hour battery life.

Initial reviews of the console are mixed, mainly because gamers think the number of games that are available don't justify the $299 cost. Among the games expected to be best-sellers are Nintendo Land, ZombiU, the New Wii Sports, and New Super Mario Bros U.

One man, Isaiah-Triforce Johnson had been camping outside the store since October 22nd to ensure that he would be the first to lay his hands on the console. But the majority of the crowd hadn't joined the line until a few days before the launch. They were given grilled cheese sandwiches and apple cider by Nintendo employees while they were waiting.

The Clinging Woman

A man (whose name we never learn) wakes up early one morning to see a woman hanging from her balcony. He calls the police, who come to rescue her. His neighbors treat him like a hero. He thinks he did nothing that was brave and wants to forget the whole episode. Two weeks later the woman comes to his door to thank him. She introduces herself as Lydia Simpson.

They get to know each other and have meals together. One evening he asks her why she tried to kill herself. She replies that she had been engaged to be married, but the man had left her for someone else.

He is attracted to her because she is neat, feminine, and self-reliant. In time they get married. She is the perfect wife and homemaker. They have a close, intense relationship, with very few outside people coming into their lives.

The man is promoted at work. He needs to find a secretary. Lydia proposes herself. He tries to explain that it wouldn't be a good idea for his wife to be his secretary as well, but she takes this as a rebuff of his love. The next day she tries to commit suicide again by gassing herself in the oven. She is rushed to the hospital, where she confesses to him that she had also tried to kill herself when she was 17 because a boy had let her down.

The man is determined to devote the rest of his life to taking care of his wife. He refuses to go on a business trip to Canada in order to stay with her. They decide not to have children. Their own company is enough for them. He gets sick and does some work from home with Lydia acting as his secretary. He becomes depressed and even contemplates suicide himself. As he approaches 40, he sees himself trapped.

His company is opening an office in Australia, and he is offered the opportunity of going there for three months. He is worried because this will take him away from home. He tries to put off telling Lydia, but she eventually finds out. She reacts very badly but helps him to prepare for the trip. He knows that she will probably try to kill herself again. He also thinks about suicide as a way out of this suffocating relationship.

He discovers Lydia has taken an overdose of sleeping pills. He sees her lying on the floor with the empty bottle of pills still clutched feebly in her hand. She is still alive. He is about to call for an ambulance when he makes a big decision. He goes out of the house and doesn't come back until several hours later when he knows his wife will have died.

MALAYSIA AIRLINES FACTS

MH370 took off from Kuala Lumpur en route to Beijing on March 8, 2014. There were 227 passengers on board from 15 countries along with 12 Malaysian crewmembers. An hour into its flight at 01:19 (Malaysia Time), the pilot transmitted his last words, "good night," to air traffic controllers. The plane then disappeared from air traffic control radar screens two minutes later at 01:21 (Malaysia Time). Malaysian military radar tracked the plane for another hour, when it completely disappeared from radars. The search for the plane lasted for seven months and was conducted by a multinational team. Nearly a year later, on January 29, 2015, the Malaysian government officially declared MH370 an accident with no survivors.

THE APOLLO MOON LANDINGS FACTS

The American Apollo 11 was the first manned spacecraft to land on the moon. It was launched on July 16th, 1969 from Kennedy Space Center, in Florida. Four days later, on July 20th, astronauts Neil Armstrong and Buzz Aldrin became the first men to step onto the moon. Armstrong described the event: "One small step for a man, one giant leap for mankind." This was heard by people worldwide as the landing was broadcast on live TV. A third astronaut, Michael Collins, waited in the rocket to pick them up. They spent eight days in space before returning safely to earth. There were six Apollo landings altogether between 1969 and 1972.

PRACTICE*ONE OF THE WORLD'S MOST INTERESTING Historical Mysteries

Richard III was born in 1452. He became king in 1483 after the death of his elder brother, Edward IV, having seized the throne from Edward's two young sons. He imprisoned the boys in the Tower of London, where he allegedly had them murdered. The scandal of the princes in the tower caused Henry Tudor to challenge him for the throne. Richard amassed an army of 12,000 men near the town of Leicester. Henry marched towards him with his army of 5,000. They met and fought in the Battle of Bosworth Field. This was the last time a king actually fought in battle with his men. Richard, just 32 years old, was killed and Henry Tudor took the throne as Henry VII. He was the father of Henry VIII and grandfather of Elizabeth I.

According to historical records, Richard's body was taken to Leicester and buried without a coffin or shroud in a graveyard that was subsequently destroyed in the 16th century. It wasn't until 500 years after his death that a team from Leicester University set out to trace the site of Richard's burial. In August 2012, they began excavating in a parking lot in the city and soon discovered the skeleton, which was found in good condition but with its feet missing. It also had a badly curved spine and ten battle-related injuries. It was subjected to months of DNA tests, which linked it to descendants in Canada, Michael and Leslie Ibsen, who are genealogically linked to the king's sister, Anne of York. This was final confirmation that the body was indeed Richard III. A facial reconstruction of the skull was also made, which looks remarkably like portraits of the king. Richard III was portrayed by William Shakespeare as a monstrous, hunchbacked tyrant with a withered arm, who murdered two innocent princes in the Tower of London. However, modern historians argue that the king was the victim of Henry VII's propaganda and archeologists found no evidence of a withered arm.

In 2014, the king was finally given a royal burial and his remains were laid to rest in Leicester Cathedral.

UNIT 10 p. 78

THE END OF THE VIKING AGE

The Vikings reigned supreme in Europe for over 300 years. Indeed, fear of the Vikings played a pivotal role in reshaping that continent, but by 1100 AD Viking power began to weaken. Back in their Scandinavian homeland, the Vikings' descendants had divided into separate kingdoms led by rival kings, which ultimately became Norway, Sweden, and Denmark. Not only in Scandinavia, but throughout Europe, the people had begun to form themselves into powerful kingdoms, and the Norse raiders ran out of easy victims. In England, the victory in 1066 of William the Conqueror, a descendant of Norsemen from Normandy, marked the end of Viking terror.

As their power collapsed, the lifestyles of Viking settlers changed and beliefs disappeared. They became part of new, mixed communities. They intermarried with the locals and forgot many of their old ways. They were converted to Christianity, and warriors no longer went on raids. However, Viking civilization has never completely disappeared. Many places in northern Europe still have Viking names and Viking ideas, such as the creation of parliaments and the right to free speech. These are still very much a part of many modern societies. And of course Viking stories, myths, and legends continue to be enjoyed worldwide. Unlike Columbus, the Vikings may not have established a permanent presence in North America, but their genes have been spread widely throughout the Western world. Millions of Americans and Europeans carry at least a bit of Viking blood.

VOCABULARY AND PRONUNCIATION

Word pairs CD4 18

- A Are you going to take a vacation this year?
 B I'd love to – but we'll have to wait and see. We're a little short on money right now.
- A We're hoping to go to that beach house in Massachusetts, but it's touch and go whether we will.
 B Why's that?
 A Well, I don't know if I can get the time off work.
 B But I thought they were good about giving you time off.
- A Yeah, they are, by and large, but the company I work for is small, and we have to cover for each other, so it's always a case of give and take.
 B Yeah, I can see that. At least you got away last year. I'm sick and tired of not being able to go anywhere.
- A You get away every now and then, don't you?
 B More "then" than "now." We used to take the long weekends in the mountains every other month, but since the kids came along it's more difficult. Oh for the peace and quiet of the mountains, but I don't suppose we'd get much peace or quiet, even if we could afford to go, what with three kids and two dogs.
- A Is Chris fed up, too?
 B You know Chris. He never complains, he just grins and bears it.
- A I tell you what. If we do manage to get that beach house, why don't you all join us? It's huge.
 B Oh – that's so nice of you ... uh but I don't know. Wouldn't we be spoiling your vacation? What would Pat think? What if ...
- A Look, no ifs or buts. The offer's there – you can take it or leave it!
 B I can't tell you how much I appreciate it. It would be fantastic, but can I talk to Chris about it first?
 A Of course, of course. I'm sure you'll want to go through all the pros and cons together.
 B I can't think of many cons. It's just too good to be true. Thank you so much.
 A Well, as I said, the offer's there. Let's hope I get the time off work – we'll have a great time together.

THE PACE OF LIFE

How well do you use your time?Answers to quiz*Mostly "a" answers

You're a daydreamer. Did you actually manage to finish the quiz? You have little control over your life. Chaos surrounds you. Perhaps you tell yourself that you are being creative, but the truth is you are frightened of failure, so you don't try. Your abilities remain untested and your dreams unfulfilled.

Mostly "b" answers

You represent balance and common sense. Your ability to manage your life is impressive, and you know when to relax. You understand that the best decisions are never made in an atmosphere of pressure. You are able to meet deadlines and look ahead to make sure crises don't happen.

Mostly "c" answers

You live in hope that something or somebody will make everything in life turn out right: for you. "I'll get around to it," you tell yourself. What you don't tell yourself is that you alone can manage your life. You are an expert at putting things off until later and finding excuses when you do so. Forget these excuses. The right time is now.

Mostly "d" answers

You are certainly an achiever. Superman or superwoman. You know how to get a job done and you are proud of the way you manage your life. You are obsessive about using every second of the day to its maximum and get irritated by people who are not like you and prefer to take life at a slower pace. Learn to relax a little. Remember, stress kills.

Verb Patterns

Verbs + -ing
adore can't stand don't mind enjoy finish imagine loathe	doing swimming cooking

Note

We often use the verb go + -ing for sports and activities.

I go swimming every day.
I go shopping on weekends.

Verbs + preposition + -ing
give up look forward to succeed in think of	doing

Verbs + infinitive
afford agree choose dare decide expect forget help hope learn manage mean need offer plan promise refuse seem want would hate would like would love would prefer	to do to come to cook

Notes

- Help* and dare can be used without to.
We helped clean up the kitchen.
They didn't dare disagree with him.
- Have to* for obligation.
I have to wear a uniform.
- Used to* for past habits.
I used to live in the city, but I moved last year.

Verbs + sb + infinitive advise allow ask beg encourage expect force help invite need order persuade remind tell want warn would like	me him them someone	to do to go to come

Note

Help can be used without to.
I helped him do the dishes.

Verbs + sb + base form (no to) help let make	her us	do

Notes

- To* is used with make in the passive.
We were made to work hard.
- Let* cannot be used in the passive. Allowed to is used instead.
She was allowed to leave.

Verbs + -ing or infinitive (with little or no change in meaning)
begin continue hate like love prefer start	doing to do

Verbs + -ing or infinitive (with a change in meaning)
remember stop try	doing to do

Notes

- I remember sending the text.*
(= I have a memory now of a past action; sending the text.)
I remembered to send the text.
(= I reminded myself to send the text. I didn't forget.)
- I stopped drinking coffee.*
(= I gave up the habit.)
I stopped to drink a coffee.
(= I stopped doing something else in order to have a cup of coffee.)
- I tried to sleep.*
(= I wanted to sleep, but it was difficult.)
I tried counting sheep and drinking a glass of warm milk.
(= These were possible ways of getting to sleep.)
